FRANCIS MAKES IT EMPHATIC

Denial that the Burlington is Manipulating

Eates from Denver.

OTHER ROADS TRYING TO THROW DUST

Says Only Five Tickets Were Sold, and These at Regular Rates, and He Had Heretofore Written Chairman Caldwell to This Effect.

There is a grand row right in sight over the Denver school teachers and the pernicious activity shown by some of the railroads in getting the little business there was from the west.

When the Burlington was charged with cutting the rate for the school teachers of the Colorado capital Mr. Francis, general passenger agent of the road, sent a letter to Chairman Caldwell explanatory of the situation, conceding that the records of his office showed five round trip tickets sold, but at regular tariff rates, and then the general passenger agent proceeded to recite a few things which other roads had been guilty of to secure business.

It is now learned that Chairman Caldwell considers the answer of Mr. Francis ambiguous and that competing lines would regard the letter with much more favor if Mr. Francis had come out and stated unequivo-cally, not what the records of his office showed, but that no cut or other unauthor-ized effort had been made to induce the teachers to patronize his road.

Last night Mr. Francis was informed of Mr. Caldwell's opinion, to which the general passenger agent of the Burlington replied: "All this talk about the Burlington cutting the rate for Denver achool teachers is cal culated to withdraw investigation from the doings of competing lines. In fact, very much like throwing dust in order that some other road may escape in the general cry of 'stop thief.' I wrote Mr. Caldwell that we had discovered that five tickets had been purchased, but at regular tariff rates. Since that time I have redeemed one ticket. I have every reason to believe that of the ther four tickets out one or more has been purchased by competing lines for redemption, and I have very grave doubts whether a single passenger traveled on the tickets still out. When I was informed that the Denver office was manipulating the market I im-mediately requested our Denver agent to discontinue the sale, if otherwise than at tariff rates, and was informed that every-thing was straight and above board. Now, I haven't a word to say, except that all this hue and cry is raised by some one who is desirous of withdrawing public scrutiny from in Omaha Published in Book Form. It has been a great many years since the railroad world of America has been so intensely interested over the outcome of a case as during the hearing in the matter of the petition of the receivers of the Union Pacific system in reference to the wage schedules of employes. During the long conference between the officials of the "Overland" system the employes affected by the change in schedules and the circuit court of the United States, Judges Caldwell and Riner sitting, the interest was wide spread, the railway employes as far east as Maine and as far west as California showing by the eagerness in reading the daily papers that many vital principles were at stake.

While the newspapers of Omaha published extended proceedings of the trial, much that was interesting and much that vitally concerned railroad workers had to be omitted, but the decree of Judge Caldwell that the proceedings should be printed in book form went far toward satisfying the railroad world with the limitation which the newspapers ere compelled to place on their report of

This book has now been published by the Omaha Printing company, making a handne volume of nearly 800 pages, with wide margins and large type, and is a decided contribution to railroad literature. The case itself was history making and the book will in tangible form the proceedings in that trial, which were unique throughout, for they were little like the usual dry proceedings in a court of equity. In addi-tion to the 500 volumes ordered by Judge Caldwell, the Omaha printing company has printed 1,000 extra copies, both in leather and paper bindings, which will be offered to railway organizations and others nterested in the case. The book is complete in every respect, not only having the evi-dence in existence, but the complete schedules, both old and new, comparisons as to the cost of labor on various railroads. In brief, it is an unabridged compendium of the wage question which Judge Caldwell

LANTTHING TO GET BUSINESS.

Railroads Are Accused of Using Some Strange Methods.

The volume of passenger business to move by the railroads of the transmissouri country very much smaller this year than during the same period for the last ten years, last year of course being excepted. But the small business has not deterred the railroads from going after the business with scalping knives, utter demoralization being the result. Probably Denver has been the scene of the greatest demoralization, school teachers from that city east bound having greatly benefited by the keen competition of transmissouri trunk lines.
While charges have been made against several roads, it now appears that one of the roads supposed to be entirely innocent of the cutting of rates has resorted to very pecul-lar methods to secure business. "In fact." lar methods to secure business. "In fact." said a railroader. "It is a little the worst thing that has been done by a railroad in being no less than hauling Denver teachers eastbound on advertising tickets and that too on a rate of $18 from Denver to Chicago when the standard rate is $23.25. Such a condition of affairs can result in still further reduction. Edi torial transportation is regarded as entirely sacred to newspapers that carry advertise-ments for the various raffroads, and is usually issued by the advertising man of a rail-road on the request of an editor or other person so empowered to make requests and usually passes directly under the eye of the general passenger agent. General offices of railroads have invariably a supply of these tickets on hand for the purpose of paying newspapers for the advertisements they carry. But this 'under the hat' business of securing business on the part of a Colored line quite transcends anything of the kind ever attempted in railroading. I understand that several of these advertising tickets have been obtained and will be forwarded to the chairman of the Western Passenger associato show to what extremes roads will resort

The Milwaukee & St. Paul road has decided to meet the conpetition. It will extend the limit on tickets and accept similar extensions on the part of Charges against the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern for selling a ticket from Reinback to Chicago at $7.50, the authorized rate being $8.50, were today dismissed by the chairman of the Western Passenger association, because there was not evidence enough to sustain them. In the election of two directors, Elliott of Butte, Ment., and J. F. McVean of Cleveland were successful nominees. salaries of the various officers were fixed by the convention as follows: President, $3,000 per year: vice president, secretary, and chief editor of the Railway Times, $2,400 each; directors, $1,500 per annum. A resolution of thanks to the delegates was given to the convention by the Pullman delegates for the action taken in relation to the trouble at Pullman and for donations made to the Pullman relief fund. President Debs said there was but one thing in the proceedings of the convention he would change if he had the power and that was the vote in relation to the admittance of the negro to membership in the union. How-ever, the majority had voted against the measure and he proposed to stand by the action of the majority in all cases. In the matter of the proposed action against the Pullman company he cautioned the delegates to stand firm and to give their utmost confidence to the officers and the board of directors. He assured them that the organization would win this fight as it had won all it had undertaken in the past. He believed it might result in the greatest railroad strike in the history of the country and this was only another reason why they should stand firm and take advantage of every opportunity to help their struggling

LET THEM GO AHEAD.

C. P. Huntington Not Scared by Attorney

General Onley's Suits. NEW YORK, June 23.-The World contains an interview with Mr. Huntington in regard to the auits brought against the Pacific receivers by Attorney General Olney. He says the suits do not trouble him and adds: "Of course, I would rather they had not been begun, but if it came to a matter of putting out one dollar to stop them I would not. I will not discuss them. I saw the flaming head lines in the paper the other day: 'Thirty years of crime.' It is the habit of the newspaper to print sensational things without strict reference to how much truth there is in them. But as to these suits, I know all about them and there is nothing in them. For some time back half a dozen or more men have been writing to me and telling me that unless I sent for them and saw them they would tell the people a number of things the people ought to know. There is one man who is particularly active in this line. I told them that if there were things the American people ought to know by all means to go ahead and tell them. These people have gone to Mr. Olney, I suppose,, and that I take to be the origin of the suita. From what I have heard of Mr. Olney I am sure he would not have commenced the suits unless he felt convinced it was his duty to do so. I believe him to be a man of ability and a just man."

NOVEL MASONIC CEREMONY

California Masons Comply with the Last

cident in the history of Free Masonry, unprecedented in this country, took place at Mountain View cemetary today. It was the burial with Masonic rites of the heart of Yguacio Herreray Cairo, one of the early governors of Mexico and a Mason whom the members of the order call a martyr to

The heart has been for a year on deposiin the casket in the Masonic temple of Oakland, it having been brought from Mexico to Gel chapel No. 5 of the Rosa Croix. At the burial place in Mountain View cemetary the foundation stone of a monument was laid by the grand lodge of Masons of the state. The casket enclosing the heart was wrapped in two silk flags, one American and the other Mexican, and deposited under the foun-dation stone. Masons from all over the coast were in attendance. Several Mexican societies were also present. Shortly after the declaration of Mexico's independence Cairo became identified with the Masonic fraternity, and was made governor of the state of Julisco, Mex. While in this position he was informed of a plot against the government by the Carmelites. ordered the plotters thrown into prison, and they were punished. For this action on part, it is said, he became marked man. In the course of time Cairo was retired from the governorship and went to live on a farm to pass quiet life. Soon afterwards he was shot to death by Manuel Piciago. Cairo said he knew that his Masonic faith had hastened him to his doom. Before he died he asked four of his brother Masons to take his heart after his death and give it to some chapter of the Rose Croix for burial. The heart has been since very carefully guarded.

Fearing Pullman company were discussed and the the fiends who had tortured him had repented of havirs allowed him to escape with his life and that they were in pursuit of him to kill him he left the road and concoaled himself. After a painful interval, the herseman, General Tarsney felt convinced, had either given up the search or had turned off on a cross road, so he resumed his walk. Continuning in the direction in dicated by his persecutors, and suffering intensely, the man walked fourteen miles. The tar stiffened about his person and walk ing caused excruciating pain. Finally he knocked at a farmer's door. A woman responded to his summons and was almost overcome by fright. General Tarsney assured her he was a human being, and asked her to call the men. She did so after convincing the farmers who she was, and after relating his experience everything that could be done for him was done. A neighbor was summoned who brought a horse and buggy. Although the new comer was one of the deputies who went to Cripple Creek, his indignation was aroused. He gave General Taraney a revolver, took one himself, and saying, "If they come after us, we will go down together," began the drive to Palmer Lake, but the deputy stood by his charge even coming to Denver, and tonight is a guest in the general's residence.

Sympathetic people were found here and everything possible was done to relieve the man's sufferings. He was made as comfortable as possible. Telegrams were sent to the state officials and to the family here and the welcome news was received that a special train was on the way to carry him

About 4 o'clock the train arrived, bearing Mrs. Tarsney, the eldest daughter, Susie, and Mrs. Batchell, wife of General Tarsney's law partner. When the affecting meeting was over all haste was made to Denver, which was reached a little after 5 o'clock. The general was taken home and everything that medical skill and affection could suggest was done. When first seen General Tarsney appeared prostrated, but was sitting up in the reception room. Conversation at first was evidently carried on by supreme effort Gradually the sufferer became more animated. When he began to talk of the humilisting ordeal his feelings overcame him. To have continued the interview would have been merciless, and the reporter withdrew. The general was asked whom he blamed and replied he had nothing to say. He said he would take no steps to personally prosecute his termenters.

Timothy J. Tarsney was appointed adjutant general of Colorado by Governor Watte. He is a brother of Congressman Tarsney of Missouri and ex-Congressman Tarsney of Michigan. General Tarsney was the personal representative of the governor during the police board troubles when the militia was opposite the city hall. His undaunted bearing at that time antagonized the police and their sympathizers and it was freely stated that if shooting commenced he would be the first man to fall

In the earlier stages of the Cripple Creek trouble he was legal adviser for some of the miners and since the settlement of the strike has resumed his services in that capacity. While the militia was in the field at Cripple Creek he was again the direct representative of the governor through whom orders were transmitted to General Brooks. In this service he found himself opposed once more to napy of the men alligned against his at th city hall.

The A. P. A. was bitter in its threats against General Taraney.
