GOUDY ASKS RENOMENATION.

LINCOLN, Aug. 14 .- To the Editor of The Bee: While it is not the custom for one to announce himself formally as a candidate for the nomination for any state office, his aspirations commonly coming to his con-stituents through other tehomnels, still no law of go d sense or of good taste will be broken by a departure from the cust m. It would so in uncless to announce that hich has been commonly and generally known for months past, but in the light o known for monine past, but in the light of a recent statement in certain sections that "Mr. Goody has withdrawn from the race," this is mide necessary. While my rightar work during the summer has taken me into a great many cuntles and into every part of the state, my efficial work in those counties has made it impossi-ble for me to make a personal campaign in the usual manner and thus to meet whatthe usual manner and thus to muct whatthe usual manner and thus to meet what-ever of argument may have been presented antagonistic to my ren mination. This seems now the only available method of bringing my candidacy fully before the people. One of our state papers recently said:

One of our state papers recently said: "Super.ntendent Goudy is a candidate for a third term wholly on his own responsibility, and his race is to be made upon his record of two terms of service." Now, in c.nnection with this the argu-ment against a third term has been used. On this point, in the light of the history of the department of education of the state of the department of education of the state of Nebraska, I will only say that in decid-ing to make this campaign I had no thought whatever of asking for the establishment of a precedent or of there being any special consideration or favor to myself involved in his office served three terms each. onventions and voters disregarded the "third term" idea in this department, as the peo ple have largely in other educational mat-ters, and for me to decline to stand for re-nomination because of the third term would be in direct opposition to all I have advo-cated for twenty years past for teachers of institutions of learning doing satisfactory objection, especially as some of the county superintendents are serving third, fourth, and in one or two instances, I believe, fifth terms in their offices; and when city super-intendents and principals are serving continuously in their respective fields for a lorger series of years than even county superintendents. School men everywhere superintendents. School men everywhere admit and teach adoption of long tenure in school affairs as the only sound one, and the patrons of the schools are rapidly coming to the same position, and, as a rule, are loth to change a tried for an untried teacher, of a state institution of higher learning. I am glad that the paper in question made so correct a statement of my position. I am in the race not wholly because "my friends" demand it, but because, having had four years' experience in the state super-intendency as supplementary to many years of experience in the primary and high schools, four years in the county superin-tendency and two years as a member of the faculty of the State Normal school, making twenty years in various lines of school work in Nebraska, I may without being chargeable with egotism claim that I am better fitted for the duties of this office than ever before.

will be interesting to those having the cause of public education at heart. Where four years ago there were few counties making any special effort to systematize and to organize the work of the country schools so as to bring them into harmony with the High school and with the university today nearly all of the counties of the state are making efforts in this direc-tion with most encouraging progress, thus preparing the way for the realization of a school system, "the ladder with one end in the gutter and the other in the university." This is one point which this department, with the hearty co-operation of county superintendents and teachers, has especially urged and pushed. Much of the impetus of this matter of the improved classification and systemization of the schools is due to the fact that the material for carrying on the machinery of the work has, within the past term, been furnished by the state office for the first time, and at a very small cost to the state and at no expense to the districts.

Bootleggers Who Thought to Satisfy Thirsty Macedonians Arrested.

Macedonia is a democratic town, but it has not had a saloon since the prohibitory law was passed ton years ago, so it is said. During the soldiers' reunion that was held there this week some Council Bluffs persons thought it would be a good time to make little money and incidentally do good to their neighbors by curing their thirsts by starting up little "joints" in the woods just east of the park where the meetings were held. For a little while the "joints" did a rushing business, for it was thirsty work listening to so much oratory. But unex-pectedly Deputy United States Marshal E. W Hillweg dropped down upon the scene, and Thursday evening four melancholy bootleggers were brought to this city to have learing before Commissioner Steadman. Do O'Leary, J. O. Davis and W. H. Morton, three of the defendants, were granted con tinuances until Saturday. William Bolten who had a horse and buggy and carted his bug juice around the outskirts, will have a

The county institutes have received a much larger attention within the four years of my administration than heretofore, upof thirty counties having been visof 1892, upited during the institute season wards of forty in 1893, and so far this season, owing to the grouping of the institutes, over fifty institutes have been visited with three weeks of the season yet to come. 4. Another thing attempted, and in a good degree accomplished within the present administration, is the regular communication through an established medium with the county and city superintendents, with prin and school boards and with teachers, thus keeping the state department of education in constant contact with the schools all over the state.

5. Under the present administration supplies of all sorts necessary for school records and school reports, and for the machinery of the work have been furnished in abundance by the state to the school di ndance by the state to the school districts at a cost greatly less than the districts themselves could have provided them as well as at a much lower average cost to
