of time in any country under the sun. These are hold words, yet I hold myself at all times ready to defend them. Coming into power at a time of panic, when business was at a standatill, when labor was unemployed, when our treasury was empty, with courage fidality we entered upon a struggle with fidelity we entered upon a struggle with the enemies of the people; we emerged from that struggle victorious in this:

- have repealed the McKinley law.
- 'We have greatly reduced taxation.
- "We have made living cheaper. "We have made all money taxable.

"We have taxed surplus incomes. "We have restored freedom of elections in the repeal of the election laws.

We have reduced public expenditures and "We have reduced public expenditures and we have declared undying hostility to all itrusts and menopolies organized for the op-pression of the people. On these founda-tions 'We build our house.' On these issues we go before the public. For them we have fought the good fight. To them we have kept the faith and of them we have no fear." HOKE SMITH'S OPINIONS.

ecretary Smith came forward at the close of Speaker Crisp's address and devoted most of his time to the financial question. In opening his remarks, the secretary re-

Niewed the financial troubles of the past eighteen months and congratulated the south as well as Georgia upon the excellent show ing made. The attention of the commercial world had been attracted, and he predicted for that section a period of development and marked prosperity such as it had never be-fore experienced. The Cotton States and Infernational exposition would prove of great assistance in this work, but the attention of capital once secured, its confidence must utmost importance to the future welfare of the state that in the coming election the prople of Georgia should show the world that wild theories of the populists had not foothold amongst them. Calling attention to the present experien of the great states of Kansas and Colorado under populistic rule, the secretary asked who would wish to see Georgia follow the leadership of a Lewelling or a Waite. Bad ns was the record of the third party in the west, the crary theories of their leaders in congress were enough to stagger comprehen-sion and shock thoughtful men. They sought disbursements amounting to over $25,000, 000,000. The people of Georgia could not afford to endorse such a party. The state would be disorganized locally and discredited before the world if it appeared to have even listened to their impracticable theories. Few of their beliefs were worthy of discussion; but there was one which seemed to have appeared attractive, although when cara-fully investigated it must be classified with their other theories almost as equally wild and impracticable. He referred to the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the rati of 16 to 1 by the United States alone, and declared it to be a plan utterly at variance with sound business principles and fraught with incalculable evil. He did not wish his position misunderstood. He was a thorough bimetallist, strong in his faith, and no one could be more unalterably opposed to the adoption of a single gold standard. Such a course would bring about a contraction of the currency calculated to cripple the industries and to lessen the demand for supplies.

EVILS OF A SINGLE STANDARD. The injury inflicted by a single standard corrency had been recently demonstrated abroad, and the evil effects had been felt here upon products of this country raised for foreign consumption. He believed these evil effects would be lessened by preserving the present per capita of currency where three-fourths of our great product goes abroad, three-fourths of the injury could not be reached except by the sucof himetallism in the places of con-Currency in the United States sumption. had not been contracted, but, on the confrary, the per capita today was $24.19, as against an average of $14.85 from 1850 to

The secretary then described the eight different kinds of money now used in this country, and maintained that the instant that any of these went to a premium it would be a commodity for private sale, and contraction would follow; but by preserving them upon an equality and by an increase equal to the growth of business and popu-This lation, contraction would be prevented. accomplished (1) by changing the bullion in a silver dollar so as to require ats worth of silver in every the international agreement, which, if 100 cents worth of silver in every dollar. changing the ratio, or (3) by calling in all money of small denominations, say $10 and less, not consisting of silver, and giving sliver the right of way. He especially silver the right of way. He especially commerce act. It has several clauses of urged the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on local interest in regard to reducing the of the United States of great value. After sketching the history of silver demonstiza-tion by Germany in 1871 and subsequently by Norway, Sweden, Donmark, Holland, Russia and the nations comprising the Latin union, Secretary Smith said: "In the meantime, the United States had changed from the coin-age of only $3,310,619 silver dollars in y years up to 1873 to the coinage $419,746,000 standard silver dollars and to the purchase of silver, upon which treasury notes were issued, making a total coinage value of $570,000,000 of silver used In this country during the last twenty years. From an average of $1,000,000 a year the United States had changed to the use of hearly $30,000,000 a year. The annual pro-duct of silver, in the meantime, had changed from $80,000,000 at the coinage ratio of 1873 to $200,000,000 at the coinage ratio of 1892, and depreciated in value about 50 per cent. From these facts several conclusions are irresistible. First, the people of the United States have the use of seventy times as much pliver as money of full legal tunder at pres-ent as they had before 1873. Second, the depreciation in the value of silver was due

The whole administration of Mr. Harrison, with the exception of the first year, (which received its impetus from the excellent financial conditions existing at the close of Mr. Cleveland's term), was one of falling revenues, increasing exenditures and a heavy exportation of gold. The receipts during the Cleveland administration were $62,000,000 less than during the Harrison administration, while the total expenditures were over $181,000,000 less. Twenty-two million dollars in gold were imported into this country in excess of the amount exported during Mr. Cleveland's administration, while Mr. Harrison from office with a net gold balance against us of nearly $153,000,000. These figures are startling. The net exports of gold during the last three months of Mr. Harrison's administration amounted to $35,000,000 while the net exports of gold during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1804, amounted to but $4,580,000. COMPARING EXPENDITURES.

During the republican administration expenditures increased at the rate of $60,000, 000 a year, while the revenues decreased more than $18,500,000 annually. Mr. Cleveland retired leaving a surplus of $230,348,-000 in the irrasury. Four years of repub-lican miarule reduced the surplus to $62, 450,000, with charges fixed for the year amounting in round numbers to $95, 000,000, in excess of the revenues. "The condition of the revenues. "The condition of the treasury being known to the financial world occasioned alarm lest the government could no longer maintain at par the charmous burden of 420,000,000 of silver dollars, intrinsically worth about 65 cents on the dollar, and $150,000,000 of Sherman notes, predicated on silver of the same character. This was not the only cause of depression. Financial punks may be expected about every twenty years, judging by the past history of this country, and was due in the early 90s. The Baring failure in London also was largely responsible for the demoralization of busi-ness, but the fears were intensified by the before the game was over. As it was he is only credited with a single, but it was all that was necessary. Score: fact that the government, already carrying an immerse volume of currency intrinsi-cally worth less than its par value, could not stand the additional unusual purchase of $60,000,000, provided for by the Sherman act, and maintain its ailver at par. It was apparent that unless these purchases should case the day would surely come when gold and silver dollars could no longer be main-tained at par and would reach their commerchar value rather than their legal value, driving gold at once out of circulation and bringing this country to a single sliver standard, with the same evil consequences that would follow the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 15 to 1 by the United States alone. The repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman bill stopped the panic, and where money could not be had at any price in the summer of 1893, it can now be readily obtained at low rates of interest. And yet, with the terrible experiences of last year fresh in our minds it is proposed to open the minis without a limit to the flow of silver that would certainly produce silver monometallism. The fear of silver monometallism materially con-tributed to last year's panic. What would happen with free and unlimited coinage of silver, which would absolutely produce such a result?" Mr. Smith closed his speech with an appeal to the voters of the state to remain true to the democratic principle of sound money inaugurated by Jefferson, supported by Jackson and preserved by Cleveland.

Athletic club, created a surprise here for the reason that as yet nothing has been heard from Jackson. E. L. Webster, secre-tary of the club, proprietor of the Peavey Grand opera house and well known to both Corbett and Jackson, said: "I telegraphed both Corbett and Jackson the club's offer when we first got our $25,00 subacriptions together and in bank, nearly three weeks ago. Brady, for Corbett, ac-cepted at once, requiring a deposit of $2,500 for training expenses. We did not hear from Jackson, but thought he should have as much, and sent the two certified checks. We notified Jackson of this, but got no answer from him. I telegraphed Jackson at New York and Chicago and Parson Davies at Ghicago repeatedly, but have both telegrams and leiters from Corbett and Brady expressing satisfaction with our arrangements. I have telegraphed Jackson, asking him when and where our representative, himself and Corbett could meet to sign articles, and received no re-sponse. Corbett has replied to Jack son, and as a result have come to the con-clusion that he is all wind and doesn't want to fight. We will be glad to hear from him, but do not propres to expend our $5,000 in trying to do so. We are confident we can pull the fight off, and will make our offer to Corbett and Jackson good to Corbett and Firzimmons if we do not hear from Jackson in a week. Corbett has tel-graphed me his willingness to cancel his theatrical engagements to get at Jackson. " All persons here who have seen the cor-respondence believe as Webster dors that Jackson doesn't want to fight, and now that it has come to a show down he is trying to squeal out by ignoring a club that offers a $25,000 purse and has $5,000 in bank. "Webster and two others of the club went to New York tonight. Webster said: "We see one to a line the fight in how that Webster and two others of the club went to New York tonight. Webster said: "We are going to clinch the fight, if possible, be-fore we come back."

"It is, therefore, evident that silver, at a ratio of 16 to 1, if unlimited coinage was attempted in this country, must either flood our mints with enormous quantities of sil-ver, which would at once depreciate the of our money, or it would be coined in reasonable quantities, and this only in reasonable quantities, and this could not substantially affect the mercantile value of the bullion throughout the world. In either event we would be forced to the exclusive use of a dollar worth little mora than half the present dollar. It would cause the settlement of all contracts at the rate of 50 cents on the dollar. It would require the reorganization of all prices, to be adapted to the new depreciated currency. It would compel a change of all legislation in fixing salaries. It would necessitate the entire re-adjustment of the private and government siness of the United States to meet conditions caused by a degraded dollar. confusion incident to such changes would be great. Commercial failures, business wreck and ruin must at one be precipitated.

"No panie from which our country has suffered could be compared to that which would fall upon the industrial interests by such action. The fear that the government of the United States would not be able to maintain its various moneys upon a parity. but that we were upon the point of being to the silver standard, with results similar to those just described, materially contributed to the panic of last year. the condition of the treasury, which led in the Point of Rocks, closely bunched, Cocoon and King Darlington came into collision, and Martin, who drove the stallion, was thrown violently to the ground. The horse ran away, pursued by a mounted policeman, who finally succeeded in stopping him just after passing the wire. Martin was badly cut and otherwise injured. When Darling-ton started to run Quarter Stretch was set running by his driver in order to escape being run down by the runaway stallion, and came the last quarter of a mile on a gallop. The judges raised a storm of jeers when they announced "no heat" as the re-sult instead of placing the hornes as re-quired by the rules of the turf. There was such a vigorous and unanimous remon-strance that finally the officials reversed their ruling and gave the heat to Quarter Stretch. Carl Don got away well in the next heat, and after a close finish with Cocoon, gained the victory, but the flashy sorrel horse was tired and badly driven, and the stout mare beat him back in 2:15% without much trouble. Carl Don parties put up J. A. Goldsmith in place of Dodge, and by a masterly piece of relamanship "John-nie" manged to land the succeeding heat.
