Horses for a Song.

TECUMSEH, Neb., Sept. 24.-(Special.)-Never in the history of Johnson county has the horse market been such a dead letter as it is now and has been for the past year. There is practically no sale for herses of any kind in this locality and seemingly no demand for the stock from the east, as there has been in former years. A team of young driv-ing animals that would have cost from $200 to $250 two years ago can now be purchased for less than half that amount. At a forced sale in this city a few days ago a 4-year-old work horse, which was of good bone and muscle and free from marks, was knocked off to a $4 bidder. Last week at a public sale near this city good animals, both driving and work horses, were sold at from $6 to $10. The city marshal has in the past ten days picked up a dozen horses on the streets that had been brought to town by farmers and turned loose with the expectancy that some one would take the animals up and keep them. If he had taken them to 'and keep them. If he had taken them to the pound they would, in all probability, have remained there the rest of their natural lives at the expense of the city. Accordingly he took them to the bone yard and killed them. Nor were these horses old, worn out plugs, On the contrary, with a little good feeding, years of service could have been gotten out of them. A man could go out among the farmers in this vicinity today and get the services of hundreds of prime horses for the keeping of them through the winter. Stallion service fees have dropped more than half in a single year. For instance, last year the horoughbred Percheron draft stallie $25; this year from $8 to $10, with less de-Of course the crop failure and dry pas ures this year are partially responsible for this state of affairs.

AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Mayor and Council Fail to Agree on Mr. Wood's Successor.

TWO APPOINTMENTS ARE REJECTED

ference-Mayor Will Try it Again in a Week.

At the meeting of the city council last evening Mayor Johnston was confronted by unexpected opposition in his efforts to fill the vacancy in the council caused by the resignation of Mr. Wood, and the place is still open.

As soon as Mr. Wood's resignation had been accepted the mayor submitted the appointment of Clinton Morgan, but the appointment was voted down by Conley, Koutsky, Walters, Ryan and Meis. Then the mayor read a communication evidently written long before in expectancy of the occasion appointing Patrick Rowley. This provoked some amusing comments and an adverse vote by Meis, Walters Ryan and Kontsky. On Councilman Meis' motion the council went into executive session to consider the Mayor Johnston spoke of his surprise at th ntagonism displayed toward the appointments, and said he would have to consider the matter a week or so before sending in another name. Mr. Walters, who seemed lead in the opposition, said one of the chief reasons of his opposition to Clinton Morgan was the latter's discourtesy to him and other councilmen in not seeking their friend He was friendly to Morgan, but thought it no more than courtesy that he

Ed Conley and Jack Ryan said they ha nothing against either of the men named but that they had promised Rudelph Hartz their support. Conley, Walters and Ryan called attention to the meekness with which the council had received and accepted the mayor's former appointments, and suggested that it was an opportune time for the mayor to show his appreciation of the fact by select ng a man to their own liking.

The mayor replied that the matter should be carefully considered. The First ward was the largest in the city and its wishes for an able and conscientious representative should be respected. He had great regard for Mr Hartz, but his name had not been mentioned to him until late in the evening, whereas many heavy property owners had called on him in behalf of Mr. Morgan. He would take time to consider the matter. Mr. Walters wished it understood that he flid not pose as a kicker or a disturber. He wished for harmony and was anxious to preserve democratic peace, but in view of the favors enjoyed by the mayor at the hands of the council, he thought the forme should give some attention to the latter's wishes in the present case. The talk was so conciliatory and, peaceful that Council man Bulla likened the executive a Methodist love thought much democratic fellowship would follow. In conclusion he seconded the remarks of Walters, Ryan and Conley. The mayor said he entertained no ill feeling on account of the opposition displayed, but gently denied that he had been guided by personal preference in the making of former appointments, the majority of them being made at the solicitation of their friends. He promised to consider the matter carefully and make a more favorable appointment, if apossible, at the next
