Entertainments for Miss Kissam and Mrs. Buckholz-Presentation of Medals at Bellevue Brings Out a Crowd of Fashionables-Society Notes.

Society is standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet fust at this time, not knowing which way to turn. It is "between" period in the social world. and will continue so until the coming out parties for this season's debutantes are annonneed. Then one may expect to see a litmore life and animation among the

The only thing at present talked of is the coming minstrel show at Boyd's by the swellest of society women, rehearsals for which are now going on at the home of one of the leaders. Mrs. Virginia McConnell, who made the success of the minstrel performances in Council Bluffs, is in charge of the stage management here and it leaks out she has discovered remarkable versatility in at least half a dozen of the fair sex who will sit in the first part and in the olio deserpentine danc s. "splits." and other features of the good old fashioned vaudeville, Forty young women will appear in the first part, which promises to be kaleidoscopic in effect. Rumor says the "end women" are rehearsing in a battened room on Capitol hill, and the loker are guarded so scalously that an oath is required from the comedi-eun's not to divulge a single rib tickler until the night of the performance. A stump speech will be made by one of the debutantes of last year upon some of the trimmers of society which will be worth the price of ad-

The Wyman Wedding.

would be hard to imagine a prettier wedding than that of Miss Isabel Wyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wyman, end Mr. John W. Robbins, which was salemutend Tuesday at high moon at the family residence of the bride, 1106 South Thirtyfirst street. Essentially a home wedding the house was ablaze with golden rod, with here and there cut flowers to add their color

At noon the wedding procession entered the drawing room from above stairs, pre-ceded by two pretty children, who suspended the ribbons ferming the line down which the Bridal party passed, Master Crosby Wyman and Stella Gregory. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss May Wyman, the best man being Mr. F L. Mc-Cry. Rev. S. Wright Butler performing the woman, was daintily gowned in white crape de chine, with a veil held by orange blossoms, carrying a bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid was also most sweetly attired in white Swiss, carrying a large bunch

The formation of the Omaha Glee club by a number of the leading male singers of this city is a movement in the right direction and should meet with the hearty encouragement of a musical-loving public. It is the intentention of the club to confine itself to music that the people will appreciate, and not attempt flights-in the rendition of important tempt flights-in the rendition of important musical compositions which require careful rehearsals for months. While Mr. Torrens will have the direction of the club, the selection of music self be left entirely to a committee composed of Mr. C. L. Deuel, Mr. L. B. Copeland and Mr. C. H. Ogden, the club liaving as officers D. H. Wheeler, jr., president; I. H. Traynor, vice president; C. E. Abbott, secretary and treasurer. The executive committee is D. H. BEERBOHM TREE ENTERTAINS ROYALTY

Haymarket Company Gives a Performance at Balmoral Castle ann Rushes Away by Special Train to Fill Their Regular Eng gement.

(Copyrighted 1804 by the Associated Press.) LONDON, Sept. 29.-Theatricals the last week were signalized by one of Queen Victoria's spasmodic indulgences in a dramatic trest. Monday night, as already cabled, the Haymarket Theater company gave a brilliant and successful performance of "The Ballad Monger and the Red Lamp" in the ball room of Balmoral castle, Scotland, before her malesty, the royal family and party and representatives of the principal families of the neighborhood. The Haymarket company was afterwards entertained at supper the members of the royal family and their guests being present.

For this entertainment of royalty Beerbohn Tree, after being commanded to take his company to Balmoral, only had twentyeight hours in which to prepare for the trip, paint new scenery and secure new properties for the strange sized stage of the ball room in the castle. Everything had to be made with magician-like rapidity and finished in time to be transported by train to Scotland and arranged for Monday night.

After the supper the Haymarket company, flushed with success and honors fairly won. left Balmoral castle at 1:30 a.m., drove ten miles to a railroad station, and then, by means of special trains and a special steamer, succeeded in reaching Dublin at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, where the company opened an engagement. The queen was much interested in this race against time and telegraphed her congratulations to Mr. Tree when informed that the company would open on time at Dublin.

Tonight is fixed for the premiers of "Odetts" at the Princess, when Mmc. Anna Rupert will for the moment give up beautifying female faces and turn her talents to entertaining London play-goors. She has un-doubted dramatic talent, and as Clement Scott is standing sponsor—it is his version of "Odette" that will be produced—a strong cast should be able to fill the Princess for the few weeks of Mme. Rupert's lease.

TRIPP EDGAR OPENS TOOLE'S. At the same hour Tripp Edgar opens Toole's theater with Hoyt's "Trip to China-tewn." R. G. Knowles, who has made such a distinguished success at the London halls, will, upon this occasion, make his first essay on the legitimate boards, and will be supported by a strong cast, including H. de Lange, Tripp Edgar, Edgar Stevens, Hanry Hilliard, Fred Bonsfield, George Egbert, Albert Bernard, Fann Marriott, Edith Vane Georgia Wright, Aubrey Ford, Kate Ever-leigh, Marie Dainton and Madeline Rowsell. Sarah Bernhardt has added "The Second Mrs. Tongueray" and Oscar Wilde's "Salome" to her repertoire.

The chief event of the coming season at the Opera Comique, Paris, will be a lyrical version of "La Femme de Claude," the words by M. Gallett and music by M. Albert Cohen. "A Gay Parisienne" is announced as in rehearsal at the Avenue theater. For it Ivan Carli has written the music. The marquis of Lorne, replying to in-quiries, writes to the Associated press as follows: "Kensington Palace, Sept. 28, 1894,-Sir: Regarding the spera being written by Mr. Hamish McCun on librettos of mine, it is true that Mr. McCun has the music in a forward state of preparation. The themes are worthy of the author of the well known cantata, 'Land of the Mountain and the Flood,' They are founded on the heroic tales so well known in Ireland and Scotland. They are linked with those of England and are fully equal in interest to those so successfully treated in Germany by Wagner.

"I remain, yours faithfully, LORNE." It is not improbable that one of these works will be seen upon the London stage next year, as a leading impressario is some what impressed with the subject.

MR. IRVING ON THE ART OF ACTING. Mr. Irving has been unburdening himself on the art of acting. He insists that "it is a great point in the dramatic profession no estimate one's ability Mr. Irving also thinks that every actor should be a scholar, at least so far as it is tort that many ignorant men have been great actors, Mr. Irving returns the reply "How much greater they might have been had they been educated-if the great imiby a trained intelligence. Upon the much-debated question whether cting is feeling or training Mr. Irving says:

The young man desirous of becoming an actor must avoid embracing the mischies dea that acting is merely a matter of feel ing: that a part is to be interpreted merely trayal. I have said that acting is a science and therefore the actor should try to make it as exact a science as possible. He should study every facial expression, every gesture every inflection of the voice, every ment that he intends to employ in the eation of his role before he takes the stage and should know just how he is going to speak, look and gestleulate in every phrase and not trust to feeling to inspire him to do these things after he goes upon th

Mr. Willard writes to the Associated pres that he has finally determined his future and says: "I terminate my London performance of 'The Professor's Love Story' on October 26, and will act at Brighton, Birmingham and Liverpool during the month of November After that I mean to rest absolutely until the autumn of 1895." Some London newspapers having announced that Mrs. Humphrey Ward was writing a play which Mr. Irving had accepted, Irving writes the Associated press, saying that "the statement is untrue."

magnificent reception in St. Paul, Duluth and all the cities of the northwest where it has been seen. It is a racing drama, decidedly original, and novel in its dramatic construction, possessing elements of such profound human interest that it is attractive and highly successful as a racing drama. It fills a field distinctively its own in its aplendid presentation of life on the turf, and s so thoroughly natural and lifelike that it brings one directly in touch with life on th race track, which it so superbly depicts. "The Derby Winner" was written nearly three years ago by Alfred H. Spink, editor of the Sporting News, St. Louis, and manager of the South Side electric track at St. but met with no other resistance. while building this track that Mr. Spink determined upon presenting the varied scenes, incidents and mediums of race track life upon the stage. How well he has succeeded in his cleverly evolved ideas is seen in the large and enthusiastic patronage accorded to "The Derby Winner" wherever

t has thus far appeared.
"The Derby Winner" is a drama in four acts and seven scenes. The opening scene reveals to view General Grant's old log cabin, where that famous soldier spent his earlier days. In the background of this scene is the little, old church where General Grant was married, and around whose hal-lowed associations are clustered memories which are near and dear to the American

In the second scene of the first act is the famous Cherokee garden of St. Louis, with the South Side electric light track beautifully lit up as if in actual operation in the distance. The second act is the famous stable scene. Here are introduced the noted race horses. In this scene the trainers, sta-ble boys and jockies are having a good time. singing, danoing and shooting "craps." is here that Billy Eldridge, who is cor sidered the best colored comedian on the stage, does some decidedly effective acting. Then comes the great racing scene, pronounced by press and public as the most effective and realistic representation of race track ever seen on the stags. The story of "The Derby Winner" is interesting in the extreme. It tells of true love that refuses to run smoothly at first, but which is set right in the end. Its dialogue is crisp, pithy and entertaining. Its scene are full of animation, its situations are stir ring and its climaxes of a finished character Alice Noble, the heroine, who is fondly it love with Milt West, who owns the Girl," is put to a severe test in the many trying situations in which the "Missour Girl" figures. But through all the ordeal she remains true to the last and i willing to sacrifice her life to believe The story is graphically told and the play beautifully staged.

The 'legitimate' dramatic season will be opened by Julia Marlowe Taber. It has long been everywhere acknowledged that this

artiste is supreme in her chosen field of art

The repertoire of her coming engagement at Boyd's embraces the three choicest star comedies-"School for Scandal, "Belle's Stratagem" and "Love Chase, Shakespeare's most brilliant comedy, "Muc Ado About Nothing," and a one-act tragic novelty, "Chatterton," by Ernest Lacy. "Gloriana" comes to the Fifteenth Street theater for three nights, commencing Thursday. It is the old story of mistaken identitles, servants masquerading as mastere and vice versa, and of taking on new loves ere the old are disposed of. This play is from the French of "True d'Arthur." It is generally trivial and full of impossibl situations, but is also full of the ludicrous side of human nature. In the second act the fun is positively sparkling. The count has the lion's share of the witty things his privilege.

In brief, the story is this: Leopold Joce lyn, a young gentleman in the foreign of fice, is about to marry the daughter of rich tanner, when an old sweetheart, Gloriana Lovering, turns up. To avoid Jocelyn pretends to be his own valet valet impersonates Jocelyn. But still the valet impersonates Jocelyn. But still ahe loves him. Then the complications begin with the introduction of the fire-eating count, who gets a letter of warning and forthwith wants to kill the lackey under the belief that he is Jocelyn.

After a great deal of trouble all hands find their way back to their proper stations in line again, and then we, who had been laughing steadily for an hour, left the theater and agreed that it was funny and a theater and agreed that it was funny and a
