PROMULGATED THE ORDER

Anti-Secret Society Decree of Papal See Read in Omaha Churches.

WITHOUT COMMENT FROM THE BISHOP

Sentiment Among the Clergy that it Was Uncalled for and Will Remain a Dead Letter - Number that Might Be Affected.

In all of the Catholic churches in the diocese of Omaha yesterday the decree of Pope Lee requiring all Catholics who may be members of the Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias or Sons of Temperance societies to withdraw from them was promulgated. The circular of Bishop Scannell to the priests reads as fol-

"I beg to call your attention to a decree of the holy office, dated June, 20, 1894, and approved by the Holy Father Lee XIII, referring in the following terms to the Odd Fellows, Sons of Temperance and Knights of adhere to these societies and will not separate from them, they are to be deprived of the sacraments.' (Translation from the Latin.)

"Please instruct your people as to the nature and requirements of the above decree."

It is regarded as a fact of considerable significance that the circular is not attended by a single word of comment or specific direction from the bishop, and this enhances a feeling before existing that no special effort will be made to enforce the decree. Indeed if the statements made by several in any way represent the sentiment of the whole body of the clergy in the diocese, the decree will be a dead letter. These priests agreed that there was no occasion for the order, and that it would have no effect.

It is estimated that there are several hundred Catholic members of the societies named in this diocess, and they will probably not be molested in their membership.

He said the Sunday school average for the year 1893 was 102, and the average for the year closing was 233. Greater work might have been done in this line had all might have been done in this line had all forces been thoroughly aroused. The Young People's society reported last January thirty, and would report this January 105. During the year ending January 1, 1895, eighty-five members were received into the communion of the church, forty-five of whom came by baptism. During his pastorate of a little over a year a total of 125 had united with the church, fifty of whom had been received by church, fifty of whom had been received by baptism, the present membership being 255. This was encouraging, but only showed the need of greater exertion

He urged the membership to be earnest in preparing for the special meetings which he hoped to begin with the week of prayer.

A French count of the seventeenth century hobnobed with a Plattduetsche peasant and a New York policeman in dis-tress. Faust, the Great, and Mephisto, mas-ter of the lower regions, were there, and seemed to enjoy themselves perfectly. The colored gentleman in costume delighting the assemblage with a banjo selection from the stage, was represented by G. F. Gellen-beck. Reuben and Cynthia rendered a comic song in a manner which earned them admira tion. Mr. Atstadt and Miss Edith Andres participated in this number. Zitzmann brothers in the role of Spanish students played a mandolin and guitar duet and Kuhn guests. and Zitzmann executed another on the zither.

AMUSEMENTS. "Finnigan's Ball," an up-to-date farce comedy, if the house bill is to be relied upon, began a week's engagement at the Empire theater yesterday, playing to good houses, matinee and night. The "up-todateness" of the aforesaid farce consists, however, in a series of old after pieces, which have done duty on the vaudeville stage for almost a generation, George H. Emerick being responsible for the articula-Emerick being responsible for the articulation of the skeleton for show purposes. It serves the useful purpose of introducing two new comers to western audiences, Murray and Mack, whose celtic business is decidedly reminiscent of Murray and Murphy and Ferguson and Mack, names familiar to theater-goers for a decade past. There is, however, much that is new introduced by these two low comedians, and their burlesques upon modern crazes like boxing and amateur circus gyrations, were exceedingly funny. They have a breezy lot of small beer talk, suggestive of Conroy and Fox, these worthles having contributed somewhat to Murray and Mack's act. The company surrounding the two Irish comedians is not made up of any remarkable talent, the women especially being of a negative order. Billy Link endeavors to give a like-

SWAMPED IN THE SNOW AND LASSOED

Stubbornness and Kicking Propensity in Common with the Mule-Favorite Animal for Parks of Aristocrats-Disappearing Before Civilization.

A former citizen of Omaha, one who was iere in the days when the city consisted only of a few squares, and when it had the eputation of being, and in reality was, a visiting his old friends and companions of hose times. W. H. Root-"Bill' Rootcame to Omaha in 1856, and lived here for seventeen or eighteen years. Some of those years were stirring, and Mr. Root has many stories to tell of the old citizens of the city who are now staid and quite dignified. A number of years ago he moved to Wyoming, and his present address is Laramic. There he has engaged in the pursuit and capture of live wild animals, and has shipped them to suaded by the democrats to run for the legislature. He went into the campaign, but that is all that need be said. Mr. Rootboasts, however, that he received more votes than any other man on the democratic ticket, and five more than the highest vote east for a populist. Mr. Root was the first man west of the Missouri river to make a business of capturing alive the wild animals and birds of this part of the country. While he is ready to get any kind of animal, his specialty is elk, and he has caught and shipped more than 200 of these animals. The last shipment he made was to Sir Peter Walker, who lives seventeen miles outside of Liver-He knows the habits of these ani-

"The elk, or wapita, as it is called by the Indians, and by a good many of the westerners, is the largest of the deer family the moose excepted," said Mr. Root, the other day, "Before it was interfered with by the march of civilization across the con-tinent its range extended from Maine to Fexas. Now it is only found in the west and is fast disappearing. It is an animal Texas. that will eat almost anything, and this is one reason why it can be kept alive so easily in captivity. Unlike any other member of the deer family, it can either graze or browse, and consequently, it is found both in timber and on the plains. It will breed well in captivity if it has plenty of room to move around in, but like any other wild animal, if it is closely confined it will not. Taking all these facts into consideration, you to go 100 or 150 miles from the railroad track, as they are very shy. In the month of June they can be found in the high hills. and a few of them are caught then, but the right time to get them is earlier, in March and April, when they are down on the plains. They are then very thin, as there is very little old and no new grass at that time of the year. This would not be so if nature were allowed to work out its own way, but you know the advance of the whits man has changed all this. Naturally the animals would feed in the spring on the grass that borders on the river banks, and as the year advanced they would go further and further up the hills, going to the river for a drink less and less frequently, as they got further away. Finally they would need water only once in two or three days. When winter and the snow came they would have the grass on the tops of the hills left. This of grass that lies under the snow But when the rivers were fenced in and the fences gradually extended, all this was changed. The animals could not get the crass that was on the river banks, and were compelled to eat that which nature had provided for their winter food. Consequently, thousands of them die from starvation, and those that do manage to survive the winter are worn almost to skin and the winter are worn almost to skin and bones. It is the same with the wild range cattle. You hear a good deal about the number that are frozen to death during a severe and long snow storm, but the simple fact is that they starve to death. Those animals could live through the severest storm that ever raged if they had food enough, "As I said before, the best time to hunt clk is in the months of March and April and after a snowstorm. The ranchmen have the herds located before the fall, and know just where to find them. After the storm the hunting party starts out. The snow is soft, and all wear snowshoes. They can eep up with the herd pretty easily, as the elk has slender feet, and at every step he takes he plunges through the snow, and soon wears himself out. This applies only to the younger ones, those 3 years old or under, for the big old bulls are strong enough to get away. But it is the younger ones that we want, and they soon fall behind. The Aunters are provided with ropes, and when they reach one of the animals struggling through the snow they cast this around his head and throw him down. They tie his legs, leave him where he is caught and go after the next one. This is continand go after the next one. This is continued for twelve or fifteen miles before the hunt is finished. Some of the men have hunt is finished. Some of the men have coroner's jury has been impanelled and looked the body will be bely yesterday. The body will be caught as many as thirty or thirty-five coroner's jury has been impanelled and looked at the body yesterday. The body will be that they can, they pile the animals on a sledge, and haul them to the corral. There they are loosened, and after they have been Mr. Charles J. Green will lecture before fed for a few days they are all right again and ready for shipment.

ARE GOOD KICKERS. "The shipping is not the easiest work in the world, either. The elks are placed in a or four days before they are put on the cars they are given nothing to eat. They can't be forced to go, and the only way to get them in is by coaxing. I get into the corral with some hay, and soon one of the animals comes to smell of it. As soon as he gains confidence I walk up into the car, and and stopped at the Paxton.

Dr. Victor Rosewater returned Saturday from an extended trip to severa! castern cities. While absent Mr. Rosewater visited a number of public libraries for the purpose to draw a wagen. They can do that easily as they are strong animals. Like a mule, they are very hard to get started, but when you get them to trot they will cover ten miles an hour for ten hours a day without apparently affecting them. The one great difficulty is that when they run away the strongest and sharpest bit cannot stop them. Usually a strap is fastened around their noses, and when they start to run away this is tightened until it shuts off their wind. They have another characteristic of the mule, stubbornness. They can be coaxed, but not driven. Another peculiarity of theirs is that they cannot bear dogs or children, and whenever any of these appear they either start to fly or to fight. gold chain.

ANNOFNCEMENTS.

This evening Sol Smith Russell will appear in a character at the Boyd which will be of great interest to his Omaha admirersthat of Dr. Pangloss in Coleman's old English comedy, "The Heir-at-Law." This play was written by George Coleman, younger, and has been very popular on the English stage for a great many years. Two ough place, has been back for a few days distinguished American comedians made marked successes in the part of Dr. Pan-gloss long before Mr. Russeil made his— John S. Clarke and Joseph Jefferson—and judging from all accounts Mr. Russell's success is no less brilliant and distinctive than was theirs. Although Mr. Russell opens his Omaba engagement on New Year's eye, which is considered by theatrical people one of the worst nights in the year, the advance sale indicates that there will be a large audience. At the matinee tomorrow afternoon Kidder's comedy-drama, "A Poor Relation," will be the bill. This is the play in which comedy and pathos are beautifully the aristocracy of the east and, in fact, of the whole world. This fail he was persuch as no other actor on the American stage has. At the New Year's night performance Kidder's other play, "Peaceful Valley," will be produced, Mr. Russell appearing as Hosea Howe. The engagement will close Wednesday evening with the second performance of "A Peaceful Peace ond performance of a "A Poor Relation." Boyd's theater will have a stunendor attraction this week, beginning Thursday evening next, in the Sandow dero Vaudevilles, in which the marvelous athlete is, of course, the central figure. This will be Sandow's first appearance in this city and already much interest has been manifested in his appearance. His tour of the country, thus far, has been nothing less than a continuous triumph. He is undoubt than a continuous triumph. He is undoubt-edly one of the wonders of our time. Emi-nent scientists have declared him to be the most perfect man physically who has ever lived, and he has been acknowledged every-where as the strongest man in the world. His offer of $10,000 and the gold beit, em-blematic of the championship of the world, to any man who would duplicate his mar-velous performances, has thus far remained velcus performances, has thus far remained unaccepted. History does not record, even among the great gladiators of ancient Rome, a man of such wonderful muscular development as Sandow. It is not only in extraordinary feats of strength that Sandow stands without peer, but in his exhibition of his warveleer. of his marvelous control over his muscle presents a feature such as never has

Taking all these facts into consideration, you will see that it is a very desirable animal with which to stock parks, and within the last four years many of the aristocrats, both of this and other countries, have made it a fad to get some of them.

The governor of Tennessee sent for Hall on requisition. Hall applied for a discharge, but the judge below refused to discharge him. Lost Manhood restored Varieties 5. A. Fuller & Co., Corner 15th and Douglass 5ta, Left of this year, we are getting things in shape for our annual inventory. In order to take up as little stock as possible, we are going through every department and selecting such goods as we do not wish to carry over. It is our object to close them out, and we will make it an object for you to buy them, even though you may not need them today.

Among our overcoats you will find seveal small lots, marked down from $2 to $8, according to quality and former price. The season has not been a very favorable one for heavy ulsters, and we have a bigger stock of them than usual at this time of the year. You will find this week the best time to get one, and it will pay you to buy one for next winter.

In boys' and children's suits and overcoats, quite a few odds and ends have been marked down to almost one half their actual value. Come in and see if we can fit your boy out of these; if so, you will save considerable.

If you are looking for any New Year's presents, you will find in our store elegant neckwear, handsome mufflers, fine suspenders, gloves and many other things suitable for presents, at one-half the prices other stores will charge you for the same.

Store closes at 6:30 p. m.

Rain in Oregon.

More lies are told about it than anything else in the catalogue.

The average annual rainfall in fifteen cities for 18 years according to government reports, is as follows:

Atlanta, Ga......56.23 " Chattanooga, Tenn.........59.84 PORTLAND, Oregon......50.62

They talk about "rain in Oregon" but no one says anything about rain in Florida, Georgia or Texas. Yet either has more rain than Oregon. The reports of government officers located in a dozen other states prove that all have a greater rainfall than Oregon -- to say nothing of the hurricanes, cyclones, lightning and hail of which Oregon has none.

The rain in Oregon is certain to come at regular seasons which people know and can prepare for, and never comes during the harvest season to delay work or destroy crops while in all the eastern states you never know when a rain storm is going to pour down upon you,

The thermometer never falls to zero or rizes above 90°. If you want to get there right side up and on wheels call at or address our Omaha office, 101 Bee Building.
