A RUNAWAY TRAIN.

works of Mrs. Bloomer were made, but a Quickness of Wit and Bravery Prevents a Catastrophe. The Christmas St. Nicholas has a striking story by Fred P. Fox, intitled "President for One Hour." It tells of a quick-witted boy who prevented a railroad collision by which many lives would inevitably have been lost. A heavy cattle train had broken into three sections on a steep grade and the engine was running "wild" in advance of one of the sections. Tom Martin, the hero of the story, telegraphed to have the track cleared of all other trains, and then proceeded to catch the runaway. Here is the story: Then out of the gloom there came a steady voice; it seemed filled with an inspiration. It was an opportunity for the genius of a true "railroad man"; and the man, or rather boy, tee was read and adopted, as follows: Whereas, Great affliction has fallen upon Hon. D. C. Bloomer, the president of this association, and the Nestor of the Potta-wattamic county bar, in the death of his beloved wife, Amelia Jenks Bloomer; and, Whereas, By a residence of almost forty years in Council Bluffs Mr, and Mrs. Bloomer have endeared themselves not only to the members of this association, but to our citizens and the community generally; and. was there, ready to prove his capacity. The boy Tom spoke up: "All of you men get out and oil the track-pour on oil, put on grease, smear it with tallow, or anything! That will keep back the engine a little-perhaps enough. After the engine has passed keep on with the work. Remember, we've got to save Flynn's life-yes, and save the cattle, our citizens and the community generally, and. Whereas. By this dispensation of provi-dence our president has lost the one who has walked by his side for more than fifty years and society has been deprived of the services and association of a woman who, by her character and ability, her friendli-ness and devotion to the best interests of all classes, has done much toward its advance-ment; therefore, be it Resolved. That we deeply deplore the death of Mrs. Bloomer and extend to our venerable president our heartfelt sympathy in this the hour of his severest trial. Just then the ticket agent, hearing the men hurrying about, had come downstairs and asked the trouble. As briefly as he could, Tom t.id him the situation, and then said "Mr. Lenox, I'm going to climb into the runaway engine, if it's a possible thing, and check her up. I've $5 here. Take it, and if I'm hurt give it to my mother. Tell her I was going to get her a Christmas pres-ent, and tell her I know that she would tell me to do just what I'm g ing to do. God bless her! If I come out all right-and there is a chance-don't ever let her know what I did Promise, quick!" Before going out Tom took off his well Our stock must be reduced $20,000 by Feb Greatest clearing sale ever taken

You surely don't think your father would think of such a think do wer!" then a mile level, and then a four-mile up-grade into Mount Vernon. Once more he crept down into the tender, opened wide the crept down into the tender, opened wide the furnace doors, raked the fire, and threw in the coal evenly over every part of the great firebox. He left the ashpit door open for better draft, and then climbed upon the coal to see if he could distinguish his relentless pursuer. The light had begun to dispel the fog, and 300 feet away he could see the on-coming train. "It will take all the speed she's got," he thought, and leaving the tender he crept back into the cab. a thing, do you?" "Guess we do," came the ready reply from one of the youngsters, "and pop means business, too-he's looked you up, and you don't believe for a minute that he'd throw $75,000 in cold cash over his shoulder, do you?"

they were not geared to so high a speed as were those of the locomotive. The engine was now going at the rate of a mile a minute, or faster. More coal was necessary, and he resolved to leave the window and stand by the furnace. In ten min-utes the level was struck and the pursuer had gained two hundred feet, on account of its greater weight; a minute later the up-grade was reached. More coal was needed # and the shovel was kept busy feeding the fiery mouth whose tongue of flame seemed never to be satisfied. As the engine began the ascent of the up-grade the freight section was only fifty feet away. After a mile on the grade, the locomotive pulled slowly away from the freight. Then Tom closed the ash-pit door, went back to the window, closed the throttle a little, tried the air brakes and three minutes later pulled into the depo at Mount Vernon, and came to a stop. He looked out of the window, perched high in the air, and said to the operator: "Just wire Wayville that engine 303 has arrived bere safely, and that Tom's all right."

An Unclean Trade.

One of the dirtiest trades is that of the weaver of rush chair bottoms. A well made rush bottom will last a long time, and the demand is not great for such chairs, though their use is reviving. The rushes come to the weaver still solled with some of their native ocze, dry and dirty. The preparation for the work requires the wetting and twisting of the rushes, and in this process muddy streams are wrung out, which trickle over the hands of the worker, and make dirty puddles on the floor. It is just possible that malaria germs lurk in the rushes.
