Change of Managers in the Sharpless Creamery Company.

EXTRAVAGANCE THE ALLEGED CAUSE

Lack of Attention to Detail Run Up the Expense Account to a Figure the Firm Cou'd Not Stand.

John A. Carliele, who has acted as managed for the Sharpless Creamery company of Westchester, Pa., in this city for several years past, has resigned his position, and for the present J. R. Comfort, the traveling auditor, is in charge. The ground upon which the change is made is that of mismanagement. For several weeks past Mr. Comfort has been in the city and stopping at the Grand, but the nature if his errand was a mystery to all outside parties. He has made a thorough examination of the books, and states that Mr. Carlisle has spent $30,000 in keeping the business running this year, when half that sum should have sufficed. He makes no charge of financial crookedness, but ascribes the great expense connected with the business merely to a lack of attention to the dimes and shillings. Under Mr. Carlisle's management the firm did a large business in this city, the profits amounting to between $8,000 and $10,000 last year, and when he was on the road as a traveling salesman he was very successful.

Held Up the Train. S. W. Creel, a conductor on the Omaha and Council Bluffs bridge motor line, was held up and relieved of his cash this morning about 12:30 o'clock. He was on the last train running from Omaha to the car house. He was in the rear car counting his money preparatory to making a final report at the car house. At Thirty-fourth street in this city a man entered the car, and coming up to Creel leveled a revolver at his breast and ordered him to "shell out." Creel picked up $2.90 off the seat and handed it to the highwayman, who darted out of the door and jumped from the train. The only other passenger in the car was a boy from Broken Bow, Neb. The whole thing was done so quickly that no one in the other car knew what had happened. The robber is described as being six feet in height, with a smooth face. He wore neither overcoat nor gloves. His cap was without a visor. He is supposed to have gone to Omaha on the ice.

DES MOINES, Jan. 30 .- (Special Telegram.)-The supreme court today reversed the decision of the lower court in the case of E. M. and Elizabeth Walker, appellants, against Pinckney L. Walker, appealed from the Cedar district court. Plaintiffs are husband and wife, and defendant their son. January 2, 1890, they executed to him an instrument conveying 165 acres of land upon conditions that he should furnish them a proper home till death and give them a proper burial and pay all taxes, etc., the Governor Jackson relused to local the control of Joe Young, the manner of the extradition of Joe Young, the Council Bluffs stock buyer, charged by a within five years after death of both M. On the margin of the instrument appears an endorsement stating the amounts should be raised to $1,500, the deed to be filed for record and at once delivered to the defendant, it having been held in trust. In the petition it is averred that this was placed there without the knowledge of plaintiffs and that defendant has violated practically all the provisions above set out. The district court granted plaintins' petition by adjudgment, the con-veyance void and quieting title in the plaintiffs. An order was then made on behalf of defendant giving him $1,700 in full for all services rendered, with interest and costs. From this judgment, favorable to defendant, plaintiffs appeal. The supreme court sustains the appeal, holding the order to have been a judgment out of harmony with rules previously laid down by the Iowa supreme court. It is therefore error and costs lie against defendant. The decision is, however, without prejudice, and defendant is to be allowed to proceed to the protection of his rights.

Other cases decided were: Napoleon Golden.

case is a peculiarly sad one, as the girl has no mother, and her father works during the day time and has had little opportunity to devote to her. The Burlington depot at Greenfield was robbed yesterday afternoon of $30 in money while the agent was at dinner. A suspicious character has been arrested, and is held here

It was shown by the evidence that Mr. Street and his son were in the habit of signing each other's name, and that Mr. Street did not sign the check with the intent to defraud. W. H. Ballard of Afton was arrested last night for endeavoring to blackmail Charles Craven. Ballard approached Craven yester-day and told him that he was a United States officer, that he had succeeded United States Deputy Marshal Richards, who had been re-lieved for extravagance, and that he was lieved for extravagance, and that he was sent to Creston to meet Craven.
