MARTIN TO BE POSTMASTER by a group of enthusiastic friends, who congratulated him on his good luck.

A Bee reporter was also the first to carry the news to the federal building. The postal employes, generally, were pleased with the appointment. Named Yesterday by the President to Succeed Major Clarkson.

NOBODY EXPECTING

Under the civil service law all but three employes at the postoffice are exempt from removal, except for cause. The three exceptions are assistant postmaster and two janitors.

James Woodard, the present efficient assistant postmaster, has filled the position for eighteen years under various administrations. How the Surprise is Explained at Washington-J. N. H. Patrick Named for Government Director of Union Pacific-

Comment on Appointments.

Information comes to The Bee through the Associated press and also from its Washingon correspondent that yesterday President Cleveland transmitted to the senate the names of a number of men to serve as postmasters in their respective towns. The first mentioned party is Euclid Martin whom President Cleveland names as postmaster in this city, to succeed Major Clarkson, the present republican incumbent, who was appointed by ex-President Harrison.

Several other Nebraskans were also made happy with postmasterships, as follows: August Klein, West Point; Arthur N. Morse, Atkinson, and Asa F. Hollebaugh, Falls City. Other postmasters nominated at the same time were: John C. Curtin, Helena, Mont.; J. H. Hudson, Pine Bluff, Ark.; J. D. Adams, Rico, Colo.; W. C. Bremerman, Boone, Ia.; James A. Jackson, Howard, Kan.;

F. G. Edmiston, Crockett, Tex. To add to the surprise President Cleveland in the afternoon appointed J. N. H. Patrick as government director of the Union Pacific railroad to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Major Joseph W. Paddock, who held the position for a number of years. Mr. Martin was not a candidate for the position and the honor came very unexpectedly. He was not considered in the race, as it was given out that he had his lightning rod up for the government directorship of the Union Pacific railroad. IT MADE BRYAN FEEL SORE. When seen by The Bee's Washington corspondent, Congressman Bryan said:

"I have no doubt that Mr. Martin will make a good postmaster for Omaha. So far as politics are concerned, I do not suppose that his appointment was intended to gratify the democrats, since it is well known that he is not in sympathy with the majority of the democrats of his city, as was shown by the last election. At the primary he was de-feated when a candidate for delegate to the county convention. He led the bolt against the action of the democratic state convention, although the Omaha delegation voted unanimously for the nomination of Judge Holcomb. I suppose the president means to say by this appointment that the bolting dem-ocrats are to be given preference over any silver democrats, regardless of the sentiment of the community. I suppose, of course, that Secretary Morton has absolute control of the appointment, as it is generally known that Martin represents the political desires of the secretary in Omaha. I presume that Euclid Martin merely indicated that he wanted the appointment and Morton had it made. That is all there is to it.'

The Bee's Washington correspondent says that when Congressman Dave Mercer was informed of the appointment of Euclid Martin he threw up his hands in amazement and "Let the whole case be respectfully referred to Congressman Bryan!" Senator Manderson says: "Martin will make good postmaster, but his appointment indicates that the president has no regard for ecommendations and endorsements, makes the appointment on his own responsi-

Secretary Morton will say nothing concerning the action of the president in the Omaha

SKETCH OF EUCLID MARTIN. Euclid Martin was born at Moundsville, W. Va., in 1847, and moved to Minonk, Ill., in 1861, where he secured his early education and completed his studies in the higher schools of Illinois. At the expiration of his school years it was in Minonk that he de-termined on beginning his business career. Imbued from birth with the energy of the of the man here found room for their develop-ment. Unaided and alone he made a place for himself and scon was in possession of the best business in the county. He was also elected representative from Minonk and served his constituency with distinction for one term in the Illinois legislature. After being identified with the interests of Minonk for fourteen years, Mr. Martin followed the course of business westward, and in 1882 moved to Omaha, where, from that time to the present, he has been closely identified with and a leading figure in the business and political affairs of this city and business and political affairs of this city and state. He was the originator and founder of the farm implement jobbing house of Parlin, Orendorff & Martin, and at present is its president and treasurer. He served four terms as president of the Board of Trade and for four years was an active member of the Board of Education, during all of which time he was chairman of the committee on buildings and property. Mr. Martin was appointed by President Harrison as one of the Nebraska commissioners to the World's fair in 1893, on recommendation of the fair in 1893, on recommendation of the governor of the state. MR. PATRICK'S CAREER. reserved seats, 75c. All parties desiring reserved seats must call early and secure same at C. A. Melcher's, South Omaha, and Heafey & In 1857, President Buchanan appointed him to the position of receiver of the United States land office, then located at Dakta City. Here he served until the election of President Lincoln. Early in the 60's he entered the United States army, serving for two years as quartermaster. He was a member of the first test served. quartermaster. He was a member of the first state senate, going from Douglas county. This was the only political office which he ever held. For years Mr. Patrick has resided upon his magnificent farm, just west of the city limits. He has been connected with many of the enterprises looking to the up-building of the city and has always been ready and anxious to push Omsha to the estate to one Tallant to secure the negotiable promissory note of the former. Tallant sold and assigned the mortgage debt to C. A. Eggert, and the latter recorded the assignment to him in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the mortgaged premises were situate. C. A. Eggert, before the maturity of the mortgaged premises were situate. C. A. Eggert, before the maturity of the mortgage debt, sold and assigned it to Sophia M. Eggert and she neglected to record the assignment to her. Beyer then sold the mortgaged premises to one Flury, and he paid the mortgage debt to Tallant, the mortgage. In a suit by Sophia M. Eggert to foreclose the mortgage, held:

First, That the evidence supported the finding of the district court that Tallant had neither real nor apparent authority as Sophia M. Eggert's agent to collect the mortgage debt.

Second, That the record of the assignment of the mortgage from Tallant to C. A. Eggert was notice to Flury that Tallant had sold his interest in the mortgage debt.

Third, That the mortgage and the note it was given to secure belonged to the legal holder of the note, and if Flury desired to pay it off and have the mortgage released he should have paid the money only upon surrender to him of the note.

2. Section 29, chapter lxxiii, entitled "Real Estate," Compiled Statutes, 1893, construed and held:

First, That such statute should be strictly construed.

Second, The statute is a legislative command that the registry laws shall not be so construed as to make the record of the assignment of a mortgage notice to the mortgagor that the debt has been assigned.

3. In the absence of statutory enactments to the contrary the general rule is: If a mortgage has peen assigned the debt which it secures, will be protected in making payment to the original mortgage.

4. Notwithstanding sald statutes permit a mortgage assignment to be recorded, if the mortgage assignment to be recorded. If the same manner as he would prior to the enactment of the registry law allowing mortgage debt ma ready and anxious to push Omaha to the Yesterday afternoon, when informed of his appointment by a Bee reporter, Mr. Patrick said that the action of President Clevelant was a complete surprise, as he had never sought the appointment. He said that he was of the opinion that the selection was due wholly to the efforts of Secretary Morton, who was one of his old-time friends. who was one of his old-time friends.

A Bee reporter was the first to break the news to Euclid Martin, at the Commercial club. He was somewhat surprised and was evidently disappointed in not securing the appointment of government director of the Union Pacific, a position which he preferred to that of pestmaster.

"I don't see how I can devote my time to the postmastership," said Mr. Martin. "I will await official advices from Washington before making definito reply. I was not a candidate for the place, and am somewhat surprised at the appointment. As I said before, I don't see how I can take it, but I'll take that up later. I have no plans at present with relation to the small patronage at my disposal, as I had no idea that I would be appointed postmaster."

Mr. Martin was immediately surrounded

It is rumored that Charles Connoyer will be assistant postmaster, but there are no official advices to that effect,

The appointment of Martin is regarded in political circles as a compromise. There have been a number of prominent democrats mentioned for the place, including Charles Connoyer, ex-Governor Boyd, C. V. Gallagher General Lowe, W. A. L. Gibbon and being no let up in the gradual reduction decreasing earnings of the company. Last Saturday thirteen men in the foundry were given their time checks, and still there is no assurance that other reductions will not follow, although it would seem that the shops were about down to the minimum in order to keep them running. In conjunction with the discharge of these men there is told a story of self-sacrifice which deserves a place alongside the historical self-denials that are a part of the nation's heritage. One of the men to go was a middle-aged and do not care to discuss the matter much.

Mr. Morton doubtless favored Mr. Martin's father of a large family, who had but recently appointment and it is no surprise to me.

He had bundled up his overalls and his tin pail was on his arm when a com-rade of his came up and took in the situation at a glance. This associate had toiled with the discharged employe for some time. He the discharged employe for some time. He had grown to like his fellow workman, with whom mutual confidences had sprung up as they worked over the moulds, or had drawn off the molten stream from the furnace. They were comrades, as much as they might be living as they did in different sections of the city, and only seeing one another in the shop, or in the reading room provided by the Woman's Temperance association, which they were privileged to visit at the noon hour. "You haven't got your time check?" said the younger man to the older, as he turned toward the door.

"Yes, this time reduction has touched me and the work of years is represented by the money which I will draw today. God knows what I will do when this is gone." There what I will do when this is gone." There was pathos in the voice, even the suggestion of moisture around the eyes. "It looks pretty desperate, I can tell you, with a big

"Say," said the younger man, and there was a ring in his voice as he began. "I am a single man, there is no one dependent upon me, the world is wide, and I am husky enough to fight outside of Omaha. You stay at your job and I will take your place in the ranks of the reduced. Discharge will probably come to me sconer or later, and I might as well go flow and help a comrade than wait. 2. The mere fact that a man is found dead under a railroad car does not raise the presumption that he came to his death through the negligence of the railroad company.

3. In a suit by an administrator against a railroad company for negligently causing the death of his intestate, there is no presumption of law that either party was guilty of negligence.

4. Negligence is a cause of action or defense and must be proved by the party allering it.

5. If there is any presumption of law in such matters it is that all parties act with ordinary care, and such presumption continues until overthrown by evidence.

6. Whether a certain act or omission is or is not competent evidence of negligence is for the court, but whether such evidence convicts a party of negligence is for the fourty.
