CELEBRATED IT IN CHURCH

St. Patrick's Day Observance of a More Serious Character Than Usual.

UNION STRVICES OF CATHOLIC CHURCHES

Hundreds Were Turned Away from th Doors-Finer Day a Saint Could Not Choose-Public Took an Outling.

The glimpses of green that herald the approach of St. Patrick's day burst into full profusion yesterday. They adorned the breasts of all loyal Irishmen, and not a few others, who were cosmopolitan enough to sympathize to that extent in the rejoicings in honor of Ireland's patron saint. For the first time in many years St. Patrick's day and the Sabbath were ushered in by the same sunrise, and on this account much of the hilarity that commonly marks the event gave way for celebrations of a more serious character. But for the almost universal green ribbon and shamrock there was nothing to indicate that it was a holiday outside of some of the Catholic churches, where special services gave emphasis to the

BROUGHT EVERYBODY OUT.

Mildness of St. Patrick's Day Makes it a Holiday for All.

Yesterday was an ideal spring day and from the moment when Old Sol first looked over the eastern hills until he hid his face on the Honolulu side of the continent he was on his good behavior, and evidently out on a holiday. As soon as the old crop grower rose out of his eastern nest and shook the frost and chill from his person he commenced to turn on the caloric, and before he had-reached the zenith station on his globe trotting trip he had forced the mercury up close to the sixty notch. He was not content with this, however, and just after the noon hour had passed he brushed some more frost from his brow, and, taking another turn at the wheel he drove the quicksilver ten. at the wheel, he drove the quicksilver ten degrees higher, and there he kept it during greater portion of the afternoon. quite apparent that the forces which were controlling the wind were working in con-junction with Old Sol, and that there was an understanding that the prettiest kind of spring zephyrs should be turned on for the which are manufactured in this latitude, those furnished yesterday had their mouths filled with evidences of spring. In fact, their breath had a faint and far away odor of fresh mown hay, mixed up with honeysuckle and the like, and as they blew over the hills and valleys they left a feeling of warmth and cheerfulness in their wake.

The day was enjoyed by the people of this city, and from morning until night they were as active as a lot of colts released from winter confinement. Pastors of the churches felt the effect of the balmy atmosphere, and while the general languor did not extend to them, it was noticed to be visible in the congregations, the members of which cast many longing glances out of the windows and wished that sermons were shorter, especially on bright and warm Sunday morn-ings in early springtime. On the streets the children of worldly parents played marbles with the orphan waif, and they played for keeps, too, paying little or no attention to the bustling and happy throng of humanity that passed along the thoroughfares.

The man who possessed a horse and carriage was looked upon as a king, though he was but little happier than his poorer neighbor who gathered his wife and little ones around him and went out for a stroll, or took a ride on the street car. Every vehicle city was evidently pressed into service, while the smooth streets and the level country roads were traversed by the endless caravan, made up of the costly equipage of the millionaire and the cheap wagon of the expressman which stands on the street corner during the six unholy days of the week Cyclers, both male and female, covered many miles, wheeling out into the country, where they tried again the many routes which they abandoned last fall.

In addition to the vast army which rode in street cars, in vehicles and upon bicycles, there was a still larger army which went on foot, and all day long this army marched and countermarched, never stopping until night drew her curtain of darkness over the earth. This vast army was composed of men, women and children, and to them the bright, warm day was a new era. It meant the coming of spring and the unlocking of the icebound fetters which had held the earth in their grasp for six long months. When they deserted the streets last night it was to hope that the rising sun of today would bring an-other round of warmth, and, if the promise made by the weather clerk is worth any-thing, they are not to be disappointed, for he has given it out that the delightful weather will continue for some days at least.

The Modern Way

Commends itself to the well informed, to do pleasantly and effectually what was formerly done in the crudest manner and disagreeably growth dates from about five years ago. There were night funerals in New York before that, but they were comparatively few The growth of the custom is due to several causes: The night funeral is less expensive, and it meets the convenience of a much greater number of friends of the dead; with the increase of societies and their growth in membership the loss of a day or a half a day in attendance at the funeral has come to be a serious tax, and in this respect the night funeral makes a saving of time. In line with this economy of time a decided change, within five or six years, the custom with regard to pall bearers.

There are now perhaps twenty funerals with-cut pail bearers to one with them. Some of the night funerals are held at home, some at church. If at church, the body is taken, after service, to the undertakers, and there kept until the burial. If at the house, the body may be taken to the lyn, Ia.

undertaker's, or it may remain in the house over night. The morning service, a prayer by the clergyman, would be attended by only the immediate members of the family, who would take leave of the dead alone. The interment would be without further service at the cemetery.

The number of funeral services held at undertakers' is also increasing. No charge is made for the use of the shop for this purpose. It is in some respects more economical than a funeral at home or church, and with larger space than in a house, it brings all attending together, instead of separating them in various rooms.

LEARNING THE ART OF WAR.

General Wingate Argues for Military Drill

The Grand Army of the Republic, acting officially through its delegates at the last national encampment, has formally approved of the previous action of Lafayette post and of the New York state encampment in recommending the introduction of military instruction in the schools, and has charged its commander-in-chief with the duty of promoting it throughout the United States. In pur-suance of this authority, Commander-in-Chief Lawlor has organized a special staff in rela-tion to this subject. In every state a special officer of the Grand Army of the Republic is in charge of the movement. The posts are pressing it, the press is advocating it, and the educational authorities, with occasional rare exceptions, favor it. In New York City alone it has within the last three months been introduced into nearly forty public schools by the voluntary act of their principals, who promise to parade 7,000 uniformed and well-drilled boys on Memorial day, and every principal who has adopted it speaks of it in the highest terms as beneficial to followed the path of the morning breeze, the the boys of his school. In seeking to intro duce this system, the Grand Army of the Republic is wholly unseifish. Its members know from stern experience that the citizens of a republic should have the rudiments of military training, and not wait to learn it in Practically none of our schools have any rovision for physical training. The proposed system is not to be confined as some think, to the manual of arms and marching, but starts by giving the boys a thorough "setting-up" drill, which will make them erect, well developed, active and alert It teaches them extreme neatness in person and clothing, attention and prompt obedience both to their teachers and to their officers One of the New York principals said at the last meeting of the advisory committee: "In my school the sons of a banker, a lawyer and a truckman stand together in the ranks, and obey without question the orders of the son bowed and reverent heads just caten a glimpse of the white soutanes of the priests as they chanted the solemn high mass.

The only reasonable objection music, which was exceptionally beautiful. Har is a coward. The only reasonable objective was rendered by a select choir of thirty two countries. From the Philharmonic club, assisted by Miss Madeline O'Rork, the whole being under the direction of Prof. R. whole being under the direction of Prof. R. tion that has been made is the expense of the uniform, and the feeling that, although the drill was entirely voluntary, the uniform the poor and the prosperous. Experience has proved that this is not the drawback it was feared it would be. The cost of a uniform is no more than an ordinary suit, often less, and the boys take so much better care of it that it is cheaper. A cheap uniform also does away with the distinction in cloth-ing which now exists between poor boys and those who are well-to-do, and which the former feel keenly. It is not expected that any of these boys will enter the army. It is probable that a number of them will, when they become 18. join the National Guard. The great majority will do neither, but will take up the same avocations as boys do now who leave school. But, unlike the boys of the past, they will be thoroughly grounded in drill and accus-tomed to discipline, and this acquired while young, they will never forget.

Our regular army consists of 25,000 men. The National Guard of all the states num-bers but 117,000. Yet it would take 7,000 men in case of war to garrison the existing forts around New York alone, and 13,000 when forts around New York alone, and 13,000 when they are completed. Eighty-five thousand men are required to man all the forts of the indicate an increase of $3,750,000 in Colorado,

If, however, we can have the boys of the country, representing as they do all classes and conditions of society, instructed while young in the rudiments of the military art, an efficient force can be organized in a sufficient force can be organized in a sufficient force of the liberties. cient time to render the liberties of the country safe. county jall, charged with arson. The occupants of the Withnell block are very bitter toward the insurance companies that took risks with Shultz & Co. They say that they had been warned against the firm at various times. The tenants in the Withnell block state that they remonstrated against the furriers being allowed to occupy a store room under their rooms, but it availed them nothing, and after that time they have lived in dread of fire, which finally occurred. The police are in possession of the knowledge that a man employed as a collector called on McCabe about ten days ago and presented a bill, which was not met at the time, but the collector's attention was called two boxes on the floor, nailed up, and asked if he would accept the contents in payment of the bill. He was told that the boxes, a good-sized dry goods box, and one about the size of a cracker box, were full of furs, and were worth many times the amount of the bill. The collector called again two days afterward, and the boxes had disappeared. The police have not found these boxes, but it is thought that possibly they have been shipped to McCabe's father-in-law in Iowa, or some of the friends of the firm.

It is said by some of the people occupied about the Withnell block that on the night of the fire about 10 o'clock McCabe was seen going into the building with a large oil can. and a few minutes later Shultz followed with a similar can. Nothing else suspicious was noted at that time, but within an hour one of the occupants had occasion to cross th street, and as he neared the door of th store, he heard it closed gently. This was taken to be suspicious, as there was no light in the building, and he approached to within a few feet of the window, and peered in to see if all was right. He was unable to see any one, and retired to his room.
It was learned that McCabe had been, wo or three different occasions within the past ten days, to the Rock Island ticket of fice, asking about a ticket to New York City, and on one of these occasions he remarked that he was tired of this city and was going to leave it for good as soon as he could mak arrangements. He did not, however, pur chase a ticket from the Rock Island agent.

HUGE YIELD OF GOLD. Output of Last Year Surpasses All Previous

Records. Statistics compiled at Washington show that the world's gold product for the past year surpasses that of any other year in the history of the world. The production for 1893 exceeded that of all previous years and was reported by the mint bureau at $155,-522,000. The production for 1894 seems likely to be not less than $175,000,000, or a gain of nearly $20,000,000 over the figures of 1893. The principal gains have been in the United States, the Witwatersrandt region of South Africa. Australia and Russia. It was evi-dent last summer that mining activity in Colorado and other western states would carry the product of this country for the year from $35,955,000 to $42,000,000. It now looks as though the fotal would reach $45,-000,000. Director Preston has checked and men are required to man all the forts of the seabcard, although it is conceded that they seabcard, although it is conceded that they are behind the age. If war should break out, where are we to get these men?

Volunteers, of course, could be readly raise! In any number. But they would not be an army, and could not stop one any more than army, and could not stop one any more than army and could not stop one any more than army after France's regular army was capmans after France's re ounuces, of 1892, 1,210.868 ounces, of 1893, 1,478,475 ounces, and the estimated production for 1894 is 2,200,000 ounces. The complete figures have been received up to the close of November and every month shows an enormous increase over the corresponding month of 1893, with an advance during the present year from 149,314 ounces in January o 175,309 ounces in November.

The value of this product was about $26. 000,000 in 1893, and will be about $28,000,000 in 1894. Other portions of Africa are expected to show slight gains, but they produced in the aggregate last year only about $3,000,000 worth. Australia, which showed production in 1893 of $35,688,600, is credited with an increase of $3,000,000 in 1894. The Russian empire was credited in the last mint report with the same production in 1893 as in 1892, which was $24,806,200. Official fig-ures since received show an increase in 1893 of about $1,500,000, and it is thought that this will rise to $2,000,000 for the present year. These gains alone will swell the verld's production by $26,000,000, and would make an aggregate of more than $181,000,000 if no losses were indicated in other countries. It is expected that such a loss may in China where the reported product of 1893 was $8,426,000, on account war with Japan. Even a large loss here would leave the world's product above $175,-000,000, and would exceed the most sanguine estimates made by Director Preston in his last report on the production of the precious metals. Mr. Preston is endeavoring to keep his estimates within conservative bounds, for he does not wish to make a larger claim than the facts will finally warrant, but it would seem that his estimate of a few months ago of an agggregate production for the year of $170,000,000 was certain to be largely ex-

Board of Trade Broker Commits Suicide in Washington Park. CHICAGO, March 17.—Frank McFarlane, a ominent member of the Chicago Board of Trade, was found dead in Washington park by two park police officers this morning. Investigation showed that McFarlane had shot himself twice through the left breast. The circumstances surrounding his death show that it was deliberately planned. It showed that McFarlane had been brooding for several days over business embarrassments, and in a letter addressed to the public he says he had tried and fælled so often since he came on the board that he was at last disheartened and ready to give up; that he had met defeat again Saturday, which was more than he could endure, and concluded by warning all honest men to beware of the Board of Trade. showed that McFarlane had been brooding

Orchestral and Vocal Music with Short Address - Substance of Remarks by Rev. Frank Crane-Feature that Met. Instantly with Approval.

"Pleasant Sunday Afternoons" was the topic of Rev. A. H. Byles' remarks before the Young Men's Christian association yesterday afternoon. The ball was crowded to its ut most capacity. In England meetings of this kind are a usual incident, which are heralded over the land by the characters "B. B. B.," which interpreted mean "Brief, Bright and Brotherly." Mr. Byles is crossing the American continent for the express purpose of making these pleasant Sunday afternoons one of the features of the Young Men's Christian association services.

An orchestra of sixteen pleces, accompanying Mr. Lee Kratz, the vocalist, furnished the musical part of the program, which was received with every mark of appreciation. Rev. Frank Crane of the First Methodist church was the lecturer of the afternoon. His subject was "The Perfect Christian," and in a light, interesting strain his discourse was delivered. "Mr. Shakespeare tells us," said the speaker, "that when Marc Anthony came across the body of the dead Brutus, he remarked, This is the man." Mr. Crane disagreed with the poet regarding the definite article in the quoted sentence, for the reason that to deserve it a man should be brave, gentle and obedient. Napoleon was great, but he used to mutter to himself that Alexander was smaller than himself, and therefore not great. "It is wrong for us," continued Mr. Crane, "to stand up for ourselves alone, and when you have done otherwise once you will understand this; that when you stand up for the rights of others, you will lift some one

S. Carrier, city ticket agent. Siegle Lost His Diamonds. Louis Siegle was robbed of $200 worth of diamonds a few nights ago. He came to this city a few weeks ago from the east to this city a few weeks ago from the east to visit Wolf Zacharia, a relative, and while Zacharia was out of the city Seigle made the acquaintance of a man who proved too smooth for him. He invited his acquaintance up to his room at 1515 California street, and when the new found friend left he took the diamonds with him.

DIRECT INDIRECT.

The least direct profit yielding part of the Nebraska is the boys' clothing department.

But indirectly it is most profitable of all depart: ments. Our direct profits on boys' clothes is a bagatelle. A quarter put into better lining, a half into better cloth, a few dimes for better workmanship, shaves profits down considerably on our famous basis of close buying and selling.

But indirectly we gain success. Little shavers grow into manhood in clothes from the Nebraska,

We deal exclusively with honest boys' clothes, and sensible parents who want 'em. We deal with no nickel-in-the-slot clothes, nor any other bought and sold by the ton. Every suit, little or big, is made of the best (quality allowing), sure color, strongly made, strong linings.

These are serviceable clothes-cost more to make -but less to get rid of. We recommend 'em as best in the land. If we're wrong, get your money back at
