Council Bluffs Wants It. The telegram published in The Bee yesterday morning to the effect that the Iowa Rowing association were seriously considering the advisability of giving up the regatta this year because no city seems to want it badly enough to pay the price, aroused con-siderable interest among the local oarsmen. It is a well known fact that Council Bluffs has been a candidate for the honor, but the efforts made have not been of the systematic sort likely to win. So far no one seems to know just what is required. Heretofore Spirit Lake has had it whenever it was but new the railroad company and the Hotel Orleans having parted company other places are in the field with a fair show of success. Complicated Case from Malvern. Judge Thornell held a short session of court yesterday afternoon and again last evening caif, justice of the peoce, and W. P. Campbell, sheriff of Mills county. The parties most interested are from Malvern. Baird rented a 160-acre farm from Norris last year, paying $600 for it. He wanted to rent it again this year, but Norris had a chance to sell it, and he served notice to quit. Baird refused to move out, and Norris brought suit in Justice Metcalf's court for a writ of ouster. Baird claims he was not served with notice of the suit, and so did not appear, a judgment being rendered against him on a default. Baird petitioned Metcalf to set the default aside, and he did so. But Norris and his attorneys now claim that he had no right to set it aside, for he had previously resigned his office. Another complication arises at this point, Metcalf claiming that his resignation was ac-companied by a verbal stipulation that it was not to take effect until April 1, and the others that it was to take effect at once. Judge Greene, a few days ago, issued an injunction restraining the sheriff from serving the wri of ouster, and all the parties concerned were here yesterday for a hearing on the question of dissolving the injunction. At the evening sesion further evidence was heard, which was to the effect that when Metcalf resigned he did so to the county auditor, and told the township clerk that the

AS TO THE SCHAFFER DIVORCE CASE New Light Thrown on the Matter by the

MALVERN, Ia., March 20 .- (Special.) Mr. H. E. Schaffer of this city, who was one the police to assist her in compelling her of the principals in a divorce case last week a statement in regard to the matter, which is as follows: "The article in The Bee of the 17th states that 'from the testimony given the cause of the trouble between husband and wife was Mrs. Mary Crow.' This statement is no true, for the testimony shows that the trouble This statement is not had its inception at a period dating back more than fifteen years, and that it culminated while Mrs. Crow was a member of the family, in March, 1894, after she had con into the family in November, 1892. article further states that everything went well until Mrs. Crow had won the affections of Mr. Schaffer and son, Bee. Mrs Schaffer ordered her from the house, but she staid. Fimally Mr. Schaffer and Mrs. Crow moved into two rooms off the living rooms of the family and set up a separate establishment. They kept the door locked between their rooms and those of the rest of the family. The facts are, as proved by the testimony at the trial, that on the 12th day of March, 1894, Mrs. Crow and my daughter, Susie, had a quarrel, and Mrs. Schaffer interfered, and the result was that she accused Mrs. Crow of unchastity and applied to her all the mean names in the vocabulary, and then, and not until then, ordered her to leave the house. She also, a few days after, accused me of having criminal relations with Mrs Crow, and attempted to assault her, and while I was attempting to prevent the assault she struck me a number of times with her fists. I asked her to retract the charges against me, as they were not true, but she would not, and I then left her bed and slept in the only vacant bed in the house and locked the door at night. Mrs. Crow also asked her to retract the charges agains her and she would leave, but she would not and she also locked her door at night, for Mrs. Schaffer repeatedly threatened to kill her. Mrs. Crow said she would leave if she retracted the charges against her, but never would until she did. Mrs. Schaffer testified at the trial that she did not believe that any criminal relations existed, and if she had made this acknowledgement at the time she, in her anger, had made the charges the present condition of affairs might have been averted. Now these are the facts in the
