DEATH OF FRANK J. RAMGE. One of Omaha's Old Citizens

Passes Away. The death of Frank J. Ramge, who passed away yesterday morning at 1:45 o'clock, removes another of Omaha's prominent men from the business and social world. Ramge was born at Hessen, Darmstadt, Germany, in 1851. In 1859 he came to America and resided in New York. Four years later he moved to Omaha, and within a year he embarked in the tailor business on Farnam street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth, remaining in that location for some years. In 1887 he built the Ramge block at Fifteenth and Harney, and removed his business to that point. Mr. Ramge was married to Miss Carrie Younger of Council

Mr. Ramge's health had been gradually falling for the last three years, and three months ago he was compelled to retire from business. At the time of his death he re-sided at Nineteenth and Davenport streets. He leaves a wife, three brothers and one sister. Two of the brothers reside in Omaha, but the third and the sister reside in New York, Mr. Ramge was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, lodge No. He was also a member of the Omaha

John W. Honza, a loyal Bohemian-American, died Sunday night at his residence, the Honza hotel, on Thirteenth street, rear Plerce, at the comparatively early age of 52 years.

Mr. Honza during his twenty years' residence in Omaha had made a host of friends by his honesty and upright conduct. He had fought for this country and was an hon-ored member of the Grand Army of the Republic, which body will have in charge his funeral. He was a very ardent republican. and while he never sought office for himself, he was always very active in local poli-tics and was an able speaker, both in Bo-hemian and English. He had acquired a thorough mastery of the language and was frequently called upon by republicans to address political gatherings. Death Came Without Warning.

The city physician was called to Eighth and Leavenworth streets yesterday to investigate the sudden death of Charles Wagner, who was found dead in bed at his rest

Wagner was a saleonkeeper, and although a heavy drinker had been in good health. He retired as usual Sunday night, and at 5:30 in the morning some one called for the key to the saloon, and he called his wife to get At this time he was in his usual health, soon after he complained of a headache. Nothing was thought of it, however, until an hour after, when Mrs. Wagner woke up to find her husband lying dead beside her. Apoplexy is supposed to be the cause of his denties.

PLUMBER BADLY BURNED, William Inman's Face and Hands Splashed with Burning Asphaltum. A small blaze in the plumbing establish ment of W. G. Higgins in the rear of 1503 Harney street at 8 o'clock yesterday was the cause of a painful accident.

Mr. Higgins and a helper named William Inman were reducing some asphaltum with turpentine, preparatory to painting a lot of pipe, when the inflammable liquid caught fire. A sheet of flame enveloped the helper and singed the eyebrows of Mr. Higgins Inman's hands and face were spattered with Inman's hands and face were spattered with the burning asphalt, and although immediate assistance was rendered, he was terribly burned. The skin and portions of flesh peeled from his hands, and his face and neck were covered with burns. Fortunately his eyes escaped. He was taken to an adjacent store, where a couple of physicians wrapped his burns in cotton and oil, after which he was taken home. He will probably he laid investigate the Omaha police department, but not a single accuser responded to the challenge. Even ex-Policeman Cox was not present. He left word with Secretary Brownice that he had not secured all his evidence, but would endeavor to do so during the present week. Attorney Mahoney said he hoped that all accusers would come forward. He was anxious to have the investigation and so was Chief Seavey. Mr. Mahoney suggested that subpoenas be issued and the entire matter forced to a showdown. The suggestion was adopted. Commissioners Hartman and Strickler heartily concurred in brief addresses, in which they voiced their impatience with the farcical manner in which the investigation had fizzled, and they berated "dilly-dallying on the part of the so-called reformers." It was decided to take final action on the subject next Monday night, unless Mr. Cox could get his witnesses to-gether Wednesday, in which event the in-vestigation will commence Wednesday night. Secretary Brownlee read a copy of the report of the councilmanic committee on finance recommending that the cost of the new fire engine be paid out of the fire fund instead of the general fund. The secretary also read a communication from the committee on finance of the city council recommending that the salary of the first assistant fire chief be re-duced from $150 to $125 per month; salaries of the engineers of steamers from $105 to $90; patrol conductors to $70; drivers to $60 nouth: police alarm operators from $60 per nominations Makes Trouble.

Yesterday the attention of the Omaha police and the government secret service was called to the circulation of bills in which the denomination had been raised ten fold, and so skillfully that they deceive any but the most expert of money changers. It was the paying teller of the First National bank who first detected the spurious money. He found $1 coin certificate that had been raised to $16. It was brought to the bank by local customer. At the office of the Consol dated Tank Line company a bill similarly raised was also detected. The bill at the First National is a $1 de nomination treasury note, payable in coin, of the series of 1886 and with the likeness of Stanton on one side. The one from the tank line company is a silver certificate of the 1880 series on which appears the face of Martha Washington. Without the use of a glass to follow the ink stains in the fiber of the paper the only manner in which the bogus bills can be detected is by the vignettes on either side. This betrays its spurious origin, but affords no protection except to experts, who are aware that these likenesses do not appear on any bills of the denomina-

It is by the vignettes alone that these bills may be detected, unless a powerful glass is used. Agents of the Treasury department will be at work on the matter soon and will locate, if possible, the skillful manipulators of pen and ink who have so successfully worked the issues of the government. The Largest in the World.

(From the Chicago Inter Ocean.) How many people in Chicago know that with all her other great industries there is also found here the largest soap and washing powder business in the world. The N. K. The whole place is in immiproducts in the United States. This great ousiness is not of mushroom growth, but the result of persistent effort, broad business advertising.

Many brands of soap are made in these factories, but Chicago is best acquainted with Santa Claus, which long ago found favor with those who care for our homes. Announcement is now made that The N.

With keen business perception they saw in cottonseed oil the basis for a still larger business in a ore healthful, more economical and in every way more desirable food product than lard. When this new product was perfected and their plans carefully arranged they turned Price's Baking Powder a radical change in their attention from the lard business, and his opinion of all things American might with a courage born of the confidence that they had produced what the world had so long demanded, viz., a substitute for lard they launched "Cottolene." The quick acceptance by the public of this really meritorious article attracted the attention of the ever-ready imitator, and the market was soon flooded with imitations, sailing under colors of all descriptions. But Cottolene was first in the heart of the people and those who use it are not at all likely to go back to

Fairbank company attribute their success to the merit of the articles they produce; to the fact that their products are staple necessities of life, not luxuries, and to careful, thoughtful, persistent newspaper advertising, which they continue through all seasons, in hard times and in good. "A Temperance Town" is a concise resume of the prohibition question in the state of Vermont, and the claim is made that in summarizing the abuses of the liquor laws, and writing it up for presentation in a dramatic way, Mr. Hoyt has done the cleverest work of his entire career. The scene is laid in a small village, where there is a rabid prohibition element and an equally determined set of people known as the "rum crowd." The satire on both is keen at times, but at others it is said that Author Hoyt points out cer-tain truths which it is impossible for either

Engineer Rosewater Points Out Faults. City Engineer Rosewater thinks that future ordinances, locating additional water hydrants, should specify the size of pipe to be laid by the water works company, in order to reach the new locations.

Under the present system the council simply authorizes the hydrant, leaving the company to lay any sized main that may suit its convenience. The contract provides that a hydrant must be located for every additional 400 feet of pipe which is laid. For each hydrant the company receives $60 a year. The entire cost of 400 feet of six-inch pipe, including the laying and cost of hydrant, aggregates less than $300. Thus the company receives an interest of 20 per cent on the investment, not considering the revenue from property owners who connect along the line
