CAREER OF A MAN WITH A MISSION

Shoemakers' children proverbially go barefooted, and the reformer's own domain is frequently the last place reached by reform. About the 1st of August last the advent of a disciple of Dr. Parkhurst was announced by Omaha dailles "Rev." Alexander F. Irvine came to Omaha with general letters of introduction from several prominent church workers in New York. He was received by local ministers cautiously, but without question of his recommendations or sincerity. He stated that he had been doing mission work in New York in connection with Dr. Parkhurst and that he had been identified with the Parkhurst political movement, but that he had outgrown the field for work in that city. He yearned for opportunities to extend his activities and he thought the redemption of Omaha just the task he was fitted to undertake.

RATHER FLEXIBLE CONVICTIONS. Mr. Irvine did not profess to be a man of very strong denominational convictions. Although he appeared before the public an "Rev." Alexander Irvine and posed as such in his addresses before the Municipal league and other bodies, he confessed to his more intimate associates that he had never been ordained to the ministry. In New York he had become a member of the Presbyterian church because the mission work for which he was employed in the Church of Sea and Land was conducted under Presbyterian aus-pices. When he reached Omaha he made application to the president of the local Baptist board for reception into that denomina-tion, with a view to ordination, and mem-bers of the board were notified of his re-quest. In the meanwhile, however, he sucquest. In the meanwhile, however, he succeeded in securing employment from the Congregational Extension society to take charge of the Chapel of the Carpenter on Poppleton avenue and the river bottoms. With a prospect of revenue from Congregational sources of course he would not hesitate on questions of doctrine. So he joined the Congregational church. His ambition was become lawfully entitled the use of the prefix "Rev." Some of the influential people of the church were finally led to establish the Church of the Pilgrim for him, and he secured the crowning glory of ordination as a minister of the Congregational church on the 7th and the Secured that the Secured the Secu the 7th day of February of this year. OUT AS A WITNESS. Eager to introduce Parkhurst methods into Omaha, Mr. Irvine appeared voluntarily as a witness before the grand jury that was recently called by the district court to investigate the existence of corruption among public officers. He appeared again before the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners a few weeks later as a voluntary accuser of the entire police department and related his experience in patroling the burnt dis-trict in the guise of a newspaper reporter. So far as can be ascertained Mr. Irvine failed to produce anything tangible to sustain his accusations on a legal basis before PETITIONS STEALTHILY FOR DIVORCE.

On February 13 Alexander F. Irvine filed a petition in the district court for divorce from Nollie Irvine, his wife, non-resident de-As the law of Nebraska requires the plaintiff in such a case to have been six months a resident of the district in which he sues, it will be seen that the Omaha Parkhurat did not let any unnecessary time pass before initiating these proceedings. In his petition Irvine charges its defendant not only with infidelity, but also with extreme cruelty and habitual drunkenness for two years last past. The notice to the non-resident defendant was published in an obscure weekly paper with the evi-9 was the time at which answer to Irvine's petition should be filed, and the notice to Mrs. Irvine further stated "that on the 16th day April, 1895, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 6 p. m., before competent authority at the town hall in the city of Stamford, county of Fairfield, and state of Connecticut, the plaintiff above named would take the denosition of deposition of Andrew Lowry and other sundry witnesses in this action

The manner in which these proceedings were instituted savered strongly of an at-tempt to take snap judgment upon a defenseless woman. An inquiry addressed to the mayor of Stamford, Conn., brought forth this

THE MAYOR'S LETTER. OFFICE OF THE MAYOR STAMFORD, Conn., March 28, 1835—I have had a thorough investigation made as to the matter. The net result is that no one can be found who ever heard of Rev. I will add that the idea of a hearing on such a matter in the town half of Stamford is simply absurd. The hall is kept locked except when used for public purposes. Yours very truly.

Irvine to a representative of The Bee, who called upon her a few days ago.

Mrs. Irvine is serving as maid-of-all-work in the household of Mrs. Cheney, 275 West End avenue, New York City. She is a rather comely little woman of about 30, of the English rustic type of heauty, with a slight indifference as to the pronunciation of her H's. In spite of the fact that she appeared in a bine singham dress with a big appear, and a blue gingham dress, with a big apron, and her sleeves rolled up, it did not take a great deal of imagination to realize that ten years ago she was just the kind of English lassic to capture the heart of a Tommy Atkins, returning from a campaign in the

"Well, that's just like the man," she said with an indignant look, after she had read over the charges of her husband which were handed her. "There's not a word of truth in it. That is the reason he went He found that he could not get a divorce in New York, so he went there, and he told me if he could not get one in Omaha he would go somewhere else where

MRS. IRVINE'S STORY.

Then she told her story in a rather dis connected way. She was married to Irvine at Gasport, Eng., in 1886. When she met him he was a private in the Royal Marine Light infantry and had served in the Soudanese campaign with General Gordon. So far as she knew he had served well, and he had two medals as a recognition of his services. They had five children in all, two of whom are dead. All went well enough until he obtained a leave of absence to visit his old home in Ireland. The next thing she knew, about two months later, she got a letter from him, saying that he was on the way to Australia. He and a fellow private, Best, who is brought up as a co-respondent in the case, left the English army and went to America. He completely left her also, and left her with her children on her hands to shift for herself as best she could. She went back to her went she could. She went back to her parents' house and lived with them for almost twelve months. Then she found out that Irvine was in America, and, having prefixed a "reverend" to his name, was doing missionary work in the siums Mrs. Irvine folary work in the sidms. Mrs. Irvine followed him to New York and they lived first on Broome street, then on Second avenue and then on Pike street. In the meanwhile Irvine had become one of Dr. Parkhursi's satellites and took charge of the Church of Sea and Land, since abandoned. But he was a fellow with an ambition to gain fame and got his name in the papers. and get his name in the papers. He was getting in with some of the swell charity workers of the metropelis, and he began to think that he was a person of some impor-

NOT EDUCATED ENOUGH FOR HIM. He told his wife more than once if he wasn't saddled with her on his hands he could marry plenty of "educated ladies."

"I wasn't educated enough for him," Mrs. of the throat.

Irvine added sareastically, "but I was good enough for him when he married me." Whenever she asked for money to make their home half-way comfortable he refused, although he was quite willing to spend it on some unregenerate pauper, and though he could tell other people how to live he was unwilling to show them how to live by his wn example.

At last, one day, he told her that he would not live with her any longer and that he was going to get a divorce from her. He

he would give her $100 if she would leave peaceably and pay her enough He gave her $40 and paid her $6 a week toward her support for just four weeks, and outside of that she had not had a cent from him. Since that time she has been sup-porting herself by working out as a servant. She has been at 265 Second avenue, 136 East Forty-eighth street, and is now at 275 West End avenue. Then he got Lawyer Frank Moss of Lexow committee fame to file a bill of divorce. The New York law makes adultery the only ground for divorce and it was necessary to trump up some harge. So he got Hugh J. Best, the man who had left the English army with him, to appear as co-respondent. He thought that Mrs. Irvine would not appear to refute the charges and the divorce would be granted to him by default on her part. When they found that she was going to appear against tim, his lawyer saw that Irvine had no case nd the suit was dropped. But this treatment of his family got abroad and made his work as a pastor and mission ary ineffective, and so he selected Omaha as mough to obtain his divorce. His children to claims to have sent home to his people in Ireland, but it is said that they are now it

ACCUSES HIS BEST FRIENDS. "I don't care now if he does get his divorce, Mrs. Irvine continued, "I'll be glad to get rid of him entirely. But I do think he ought o put the children somewhere, where I can se them now and then. It's pretty hard for a mother to have her children taken away from her. I know I can't have them with ne. I am working just as hard as I car o keep myself and to be decent, and I could not take care of them and work out. And do you think that I look like a person who could pound a man who served eight years in the English army and went through the war in the Soudan with Gordon? It don't seem very grateful, either, that he should ccuse his best friends. He says I have been living with Newberry O'Connell. The O'Con-nells practically kept him alive when he first came to New York, and he would have been hungry many a time if it had not been for them. I can give you the addresses of the people with whom I have been, since I left rim, and they will all tell you that I have done nothing wrong. Lawrence was another friend of the family, and Hugh Best was he man who left the army, and all his tharges are absolutely false."

Mrs. Cheney, at whose house Mrs. Irvine s working, says that she has never found anything to criticise in her conduct, and the other people with whom she has worked all say that her behavior has been unim-LAWYERS SUBSTANTIATE THE STATE-

The lawyers in the case in New York tell substantially one story, although with some variations. Joel M. Marx, 1258 Broadway, who wa

Mrs. Irvine's attorney, when called on by the representative of The Bee for information as to the reason why Irvine abandoned his suit in New York and went to Omaha, "The simple reason was that he had no chance of getting his divorce when he found Mrs. Irvine was going to oppose his suit and bring in witnesses to refute his testimony. The whole thing was rotten from the beginning.
"The way I became connected with the suit was this. Mrs. Irvine, who knew absolutely nothing about laws, courts or their edure, appeared without any attorney and Judge McAdam sent her to me. I took up her case merely as a matter of charity. There was nothing in it for me; it is true that the judge awarded me $50, to be paid by Irvine, but I had a hard time, and con-sidered myself lucky to get $25. Irvine was a British soldier. He ran away from his wife and came to New York. He wanted to get a separation from her, and got another private, named Best, who ran away with him and is made one of the co-respondents in the bill, to make improper proposals to Mrs. Irvine. She resented them and complained to her husband, but he neither did nor said anything about the matter. He came to New York entirely destitute, and was helped along dent purpose of preventing the party in-terested in the case from seeing it. April 9 was the time at which are were to be When Mrs. Irvine came over with the children he had to take care of them because it would have made too much nois and spoiled his position. CRUELTY ON THE OTHER SIDE. "They lived wretchedly, and he never did anything to make a decent home. Irvine had gotten in with a lot of high-toned ladies and his wife, whom he had married while a soldier, was no longer good enough for him. He took away the children, and said he was going to send them to Ireland to his people. And then he got rid of her by promising to support her if she would leave him. Seeing that her children were gone she was perfectly willing. But he never paid her but $40, and $6 a week for four weeks, and she has been supporting herself by working out as a servant girl. "Finally Frank Moss began a suit for him for a divorce. Irvine went to her and told her he would send her over to the old country to her children. He gave her a piece of paper, which he said she should give to his folks to get both children, but not to bother about it particularly. By chance she happened to show it to a friend some time after, and it proved to be a sum-mons in the divorce suit. She did not understand about it, and got into court on the wrong day. The judge heard her story, and sent her to me to take charge of her case. When Irvine found that she was to appear and testimony would be brought on her side, they had the case postponed a couple of times. That was some time in May, and when the courts adjourned for the summer Irvine skipped out and went to Omaha. They hadn't the least evidence for divorce. I've told you about Best, and Newberry O'Connell, who was named as the other co-respondent, was a son of the family which had picked him out of the gutters and helped him along. The young fellow is a sailor on a man-of-war, and at the time the offense was charged was out at sea. The idea of Mrs. Irvine, who is a little bit of a woman, assaulting a strapping soldier who had seen seven or eight years' tough service, is just as ridiculous as the rest of the charges. That man Irvine managed to throw a good he is out of our jurisdiction now, and we can' do anything about it." MOSS UNAWARE OF NEW CASE. Frank Moss, who is the attorney of Park-Frank Moss, who is the attorney of Parkhurst's society, of course told a slightly different story. "I first met Irvine," he said, "about four years ago. He was working very hard all day and educating himself at night. Several of us took quite a lively intorest in him and tried to help him along. I don't know much about his former career except that he was in the army. He martied this girl when he returned to England. His ambition was to become a missionary, but she was always opposed to anything of the kind. Then he decided to come to America.

"He had found that there was the best kind of field for missionary work right here in New York, and gave up the idea of going to China or India. Irvine really did some remarkable work among the Bowery lodging houses, and Dr. Parkhurst made him the paster of the Church of Land and Sea, which is a saliors' and tenement mission. But Mrz. Irvine had no sympathy with his work and began going from bad to worse. Her conduct became simply unbearable and it spoiled his work as a missionary. People knew of his wife's loose ways, and be could knew of his wife's loose ways, and be could knew of his wife's loose ways, and he could put no spirit into his work. We told him the best thing to do was to get a divorce, for I am sure there were plenty of grounds. suit was broug't and Mrs. Irvine said didn't care whether he got it or not. But when it came up for a hearing she ap-peared in court, and on our motion it was postponed so that she could get a lawyer and postponed so that she could get a lawyer and the make a defense. It was postponed then it returned after the summer vacation, but Mr. is mon irvine decided to resign from the pulpit of the Church of Sea and Land and went to Omains. The case is still on the docket, but has never been brought up. I did not know before that he had filed a bill in Counsel for the receiver evidently did not believe the statement made by Mr. Welch in his first testimony relative to the transactions, and the court was not satisfied either, which resuited in the production of the books. Mr. Welch was asked to explain an item of He said that shortly after the bank failed the company was a little hard up for ready money, and he applied to Mosher to help them out, the latter being a stockholder in the company. A certificate of deposit in the Union Savings bank for that amount was indorsed by Mosher and cashed by the company. This loan, Welch testified, had since been repaid, but counsel failed to elicit how, when or where it had been paid. Previously Welch testified that Mosher had transferred to the company some $27,500 worth of gas stock, to recoup the company for some frauds he had committed prior to the sale to the company by him of the prison plant and to make good some rebates paid to South Omaha packing men Mosher had promised if the packers would not carry out their threat to make their own barrels In addition to this he testified today that the company had purchased from Mosher after the failure of the bank, a lot of gas stock, at 60 cents on the dollar, for $37,000, the company executing notes for $32,000 therefor, the other $5,000 being charges back as error.

Decision is Important in Its Bearing Upon the Construction of Many Large Canals Proposed or Par-thally Completed.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., April 15 .- (Special Telegram.)-The case of Paxton and Hershey against the Farmers and Merchants Irrigation company, involving the right of way for an irrigation canal under construction by the Farmers and Merchants company across the plaintiffs' lands, lying some fifteen miles west of this city, came up for final hearing in the district court here today, a decision being given in favor of the defend ants. Judge Sinclair, in rendering his opinion of the merits of the case, ruled that the provision of the irrigation act granting right of eminent domain was constitutional. The right of condemnation of right of way for irrigation ditches is by the decision placed upon the same basis as the condemnation of right of way for railway lines. The decision is important in its bearing upon the construction of a number of large or partially completed along the Platte valley.

this county yesterday for O'Neill after seed. A telegram was received from Alva Rowland of the relief commission to hold teams for further orders. The $8,250 state warrants have not yet been sold, and no delivery of grain could be made. S. C. Sample, who went to Omaha and Lincoln with the warrants, wired that there was some kink in both cases and he would not start home until Menday.

York County Litigation.

YORK, Neb., April 15 .- (Special.)-Court convened at this place today with Judge Bates presiding. The term will be very short and devoted entirely to equity. Today was mostly spent in calling the docket and setting down cases. Several interesting ones will be disposed of. The cases af Hesser against Johnson, Chandler against Pigott et al, and Kent K. Hayden, receiver of the Capital National bank of Lincoln, against Thomas at all will be taken up. Thompson et al will be taken up.

Death of Mrs. J. C. Bishop. GRAND ISLAND, April 15 .- (Special.)-Yesterday at 10 o'clock Mrs. J. C. Bishop, wife of the county supervisor of Mayfield township, was suddenly taken ill, and at 12 o'clock she was a corpse. Heart disease was the cause. She leaves a husband and six sons. Three of the sons live in the far west. The funeral was held this afternoon, and was largely attended.
