Outside Men Declare that They Will Enjoin the Dumping of Refuse in Sarpy County-Juror Spencer Given a Clean Bill-Court Notes.

The garbage war has broken out again with all its pristine vigor. Alexander Macdonald, who owns an exclusive monopoly of the business of removing the city refuse, two weeks ago obtained an injunction forbidding about twenty of the outside haulers from interfering or attempting to interfere with his exclusive works. The men whom this injunction affects have formed a combination to contest the injunction. They were present in Judge Ambrose's court room in force yesterday to obtain a dissolution of the court's order stopping them from doing their work.

In the crowd was Abner Travis, who has had for just one year the privilege of removing all the courthouse refuse. Travis had a contract with the county commissioners which expired June 1. He being among the rest of the city garbage haulers enjoined from prosecuting his work asked to have the injunction modified as to himself.

When he began such an action two weeks ago his contract was in full force. But as the case was continued after efforts had been made to get a hearing, time passed until the contract had died a natural death. Judge Ambrose declared that the contract expired at midnight of May 31, and so he was not called upon to decide the question as to whether the city of Omaha had an exclusive right whereby it could shut out Douglas county from making such contracts as it

Travis has the promise of the commissioners that they will renew his contract for another He is preparing to make a showing allowing him to take the job. In the mean-time the other garbage cases are continued

Macdonald is not having altogether plain sailing in his efforts to enforce his contract Since he secured a decision in the supreme court, the outside haulers have continued to ply their trade. As he got 25 cents for every dead cat he hauled, not to mention other things, everybody has sought to take a hand in the business. Parties also talk enjoining him from using Sarpy county as a dumping ground.

If it was whisky it was an article which does not inebriate, for the bottle which some of his fellow jurors allege that William Spencer had concealed in his coat while serving on the jury before Judge Duffie the judge has judicially declared did not have any bad effects or incapacitate Spencer from serving intelligently in the case.

A few weeks ago, while Judge Keysor was absent on an outside circuit, Judge Duffle heard a jury case entitled the First Naheard a jury case entitled the First Ra-tional Bank of Corning, Ia., against the Star Lumber company and the John R. Davis Lumber company. This was a con-solidation of four suits, the plaintiffs claiming the right to sue on four promissory notes and hold the Davis company, as it has assumed to appropriate the assets of the defunct Star Union company. The weather was warm and the jury grew tired of ice water, but seemed unable to procure anything more invigorating, so far as the court records show, except Spencer, who had what he afterward explained was a bottle of cough medicine. Some of the jurors naturally grew jealous of his success as they saw him tip the bottle to his lips and take the "split" away with a smack. They were prevailed upon to aver in affadavit that in their opinion and belief the bottle contained a mild decoction of snake juice, but whether it did or not, and this is still a disputed point of fact, the court refuses to on the showing tha was sampled during the trial by the panel He said he had observed Spencer's conduct and had heard him ask questions for enlightenment during the course of the trial and was convinced that he had the full possession of his physical, moral and mental powers. The verflet for some $4,000, which was rendered, met the court's approval and he said he could not set the verdict aside. He consulted the other judges and the bench seemed to be unanimously of the opinion that there was no harm worked in this in stance by the use of the bottle, granting that the affidavits made a true showing. Out the Matrimonial Ties.

The equity court has succeeded in putting an end to two unhappy marriages. Joseph Addison was folned in wedlock to Anna Addison in 1887 at Cincinnati. Their union proved not particularly unhappy until October, 1893, when Joseph says his wife's conduct became unendurable. Coming home from his work, she accused him, when he wept because his daughter was ill, with weeping nothing but crocodile tears. The follow-ing morning and at noon he refused to when so he testified the wife took a large butcher knife, intending to carve him. He fled from his home.

The union of Mary Cooley and Thomas Cooley was not felicitous, according to the evidence submitted to the court. Thomas was very violent in his treatment of his family. He selzed her by the throat, tore off her clothes and pounded her until she despaired of her life. They were divorced. Minor Court Matters.

George H. Roggs Died at an Early Hour Yesterday Morning.

George H. Boggs, who had been a resident of Omaha for thirty years, died at his home, 320 North Twentieth street, yesterday morning at 4 o'clock in the 59th year of his life. The cause of his demise was bronchitis. For months he had been in shattered health and recently made a trip to Hot Springs, Ark., in a vain attempt to recover.

Returning home, Mr. Boggs had been ill more or less for several weeks and the sequel of his suffering was not totally unexpected. The news of his death created widespread regret in a community where he was beloved as a citizen and man. Mr. Boggs was a member of the real estate firm of Boggs & Hill and had been successful in accumulating a fortune. He had been in the realty busness here for twenty-five years and was a man of excellent judgment.

TRACKS TO FAIR GROUNDS

Railroads and Street Railway Company Will Proceed with Extensions at Once.

Executive Committee of the Omsha Fair and Speed Association Makes a Report-Grounds Will Be Made a Beautiful Park.

Chairman Baum of the state fair building mercial club yesterday. It is addressed to the members of the club. The document is one of an extension of the street car service to the state fair grounds. The official report is as follows:

The executive committee of the Omaha Fair and Speed association, believing you to ters. be deeply interested in the progress of our preparations for the coming state fair, desire o herewith report to you the condition of our work to this date.

The plans for the remaining buildings are now in the hands of bidders and the contracts will be let within the coming week.
We have completed arrangements with the various railroads for their entrance to the grounds, both for freight and passenger traffic. The Omaha Street Railway company has contracted with us to build a double track line to the grounds, and the work will e began at an early date and completed in ample time. The telephone, telegraph and electric light wires will be extended to the grounds. The grounds committee has in view a comprehen-sive landscape plan, including drives, lakes, fountains, and planting of trees and shrubbery, which will make, in connection with Elmwood park, the most attractive resort in the west, and will comprise a total area of

While the plans of this committee contemplate an expenditure in excess of the amount already subscribed, we feel that we can depend upon the property owners and business men and citizens generally of Omaha to respond to our call. Very many of our most substantial and public spirited citizens have not yet been asked to subscribe, but we hope that with the co-operation of your committee all may be given an early opportunity to do so. After the list of subscriptions is completed will be classified and the names of subscribers published. The report caused considerable enthusiasm around the Commercial club, and it was at once filed by Commissioner Utt. The committee will re-let the contract for building the poultry building. ident of Carroll council in this city Judge Rives explains why he did not attend the Knights' convention, and reiterates his view the race during these cyclic periods on the subject of consolidation. As the letter treats of a matter of general interest the recipient has offered it for publication.

"Adepts are beings who were once men like ourselves, but have developed so that It is:

LEBANON, Ky., May 25.—Dear Sir: I have been too busy of late to reply to your letter inquiring as to my attending the Catholic Knights of America convention at company that meeting. I did not think it would seem proper to thus indicate a desire on my part as grand president of the Young Men's Institute to secure the consummation of the consolidation project which I had suggested. My suggestion was for the consideration of the Young Men's Institute. The matter was such that mature deliberation should be given to it, and while I individually thought, and still believe, that the consummation would redound to the good of the Young Men's Institute and also for the Catholic Knights of America, yet I realize that very many of both orders seem not to appreciate the strength of the reasons impelling me to make the suggestion. There seems to have been much misapprehension as to what was actually proposed for consideration, and some were hasty in arraying themselves in opposition to something that I had never proposed.

I recognize the fact that the Young Men's Institute is as yet too young to feel the importance of a provision for the families of arraying themselves in opposition to something that I had never proposed.

I recognize the fact that the Young Men's Institute is as yet too young to feel the importance of a provision for the families of its members, and of creating a fund out of which burial expenses may be paid.

I look ahead for some years, and I now prophesy that within ten years many who now oppose the measure will regret their opposition. The only plausible objection was that fraternal insurance could not be developed in the same society with a high social and fraternal development. They went upon the idea that what had not been accomplished in the past could not, for that reason alone, be accomplished in the future, forgetting that every socity in which the experiment had been tried started out with restrictions that prevented the full development of the social feature. The Young Men's Institute not only has no such restriction, but has that feature well developed, and if the argument is sound, there is nothing left but to abolish entirely the Blavatsky was the messenger and the Theosophical society the organization which served that purpose, proof of which is that in Blavatsky's works, 'Isia Unveiled' and 'The Secret Doctrine,' is contained knowledge as to man's age, origin, developmen and destiny, life and death, post morten states and the evolution of many kingdoms of nature, not found elsewhere."

"Do adepts have bodies? "There are many degrees of adepts. Each one has a body corresponding to his degree of development. The lower orders have bodies similar in form and degree of density to our own. Those of higher de grees have more ethereal bodies. The latte have the power to make and use bodies suit insurance feature that we have and reverse the action of the fifth grand council.

It is, however, now unnecessary to discuss the proposition of consolidation, for it would never have been practicable without a rea-sonable, unanimous consent of the members able for any temporary work they may un dertake. With them the body is an in-strument to be made, used and thrown asidat will. But each adept has his permanent of both orders; one has declared against it and that is the end of it. A union of various Catholic organizations would be of great advantage if it could be brought about, while divided as we are into many, we necessarily lack the strength that larger called the thought body, which is not bound by limitations of time and space and which may be projected at will through any stance to any distance by the power of

H. Hoffman, who lives at 110 South Thirteenth street, was in police court yesterday with a tale of woe which was the result of with a tale of woe which was the result of his transactions with a cheap furniture company. He bought a bill of $59 on the installment plan and had paid $26. Recently the furniture establishment passed into the hands of creditors. When the collector came around after the monthly payment, Mrs. Hoffman wanted some information as to whether he was entitled to collect under the new arrangement, and on this the collector abused and threatened her. A complaint was filed against the offender for disturbing the peace.

Husband's Unexplained Absence. Mrs. Fred Smith of 1021 North Nineteenth street is much disturbed by the unexplained absence of her husband, who has been missing since Friday morning. Smith had out of employment for some time and left home Thursday morning with the statement that he was going to the Union office to inquire for work. He has not been heard from since and his wife fears that some accident has befallen him.

Are You Comfortable Today?

There's no use sweating yourself to death trying to find a cool placepick out the shady side of your house and swing on one of our Gem woven Hammocks. Always a big difference in the make of Hammocks-some makers pay no attention to the comfort of the occupant. Ours are made with this special end in view. They're the only Hammocks made on the automatic, self-adjustable principle-prevents being thrown out and makes the Hammock accommodate itself to any position the occupant may choose to recline in. Warranted to swing two in the hottest weather. Ten dozen on sale tomorrow,
