ROASTING THE RENEGADES.

OMAHA, June 4 .- To the Editor of The Bee: I wish to say a few words in relation manage the property. to the action of the executive committee of the State Republican league at its recent meeting in the city of Lincoln. I feel that these gentlemen assembled at Lincoln conferred a great honor on you by rejecting your name as a delegate to represent this fistrict to the Cleveland convention. It is known to your friends that you did not desire or ask to be a delegate to this convention. It was thought by the rank and file of the republican party that the machine repubicans of this state, had received a lesson last fall that they would not forget for some time to come. Instead of heeding that lesson they are leading the party to destruc T. J. Majors and his friends ought to have stepped down and out for a time after rebuke that they received from the friends of honest government at the last election, but the men that have had their hands at the throat of the republican party in this state for years do not appear willing to relinquish their grasp until they entirely strangle what was once the party of the toiling masses. The republican machine at Lincoln is a burning disgrace to the people of this state. The bribery, fraud and cor-ruption carried on by those tools of corporate monopoly is an outrage that our people cannot much longer submit to. Republicans do you know the duty you owe to yourselves, your party and your state? Where is patri otism and your manhood? Are you going to leave all the weight on one man's shoullers to fight your battles ong will you allow this old sorehead cry of Rosewaterism to lull you to sleep? Look at your last legislature; it was a blot upon the republican party which you will have a hard time explaining to the people at the next election. To the republicans of Dougas county I would say that the men com prising the delegation to the last legislature from this county to a man worked against the interests of this city and county. I need not take up my time in telling you what they have done. The people of this city and county, irrespective of party, will remember them in time to come. To the men that pretend to look after the intersts of labor in this city I would like to say a few words. Gentlemen of the Central Labor union, what became of the bills that you had before the legislature in the interest and cause of labor? Did you in-quire of these members who had pledged their support to you the cause why they falled to carry out their promises to you and to the men that you asked to support them, and way you falled to censure them publicly on their return to this city? To the republican members of our city council I would also say a few words. Gente-men, where are the promises of economy and retrenchment that you had pledged to the overburdened taxpayers of this city in the beginning of the present year? We have had great hopes, but we have been sadly disappointed. I think some of you gentle-men will have a hard time explaining to the taxpayers at the next election why you failed to keeff your pledges to the people. To the Hon. George P. Bemis, I, as an humble citizen, in behalf of myself and others, wish to return you thanks for the faithful protection of the interests of the overburdened taxpayers of this city, and all I desire to say is that we are grateful to you for the faithful performance of your duties under trying cir-time to come.

Properties Regarded as Quite Certain. Unsatisfactory as it may be and against the hopes of those in interest there is a growing feeling about Union Pacific headquarters that the American Loan and Trust company will, through a separate receiver succeed to the control of the Oregon Short line, Utah Northern and Southern Extension railroads, now a part of the Union Pacific. It had been hoped that Judge Gibert would so modify Judge Sanbern's order in the premises that the representatives of the con-solidated mortgage would hesitate about taking upon themselves so heavy a burden, but nodification was in the nature of at engla ening the hands of the trustee of the consoli-dated mortgage and the hopes of those interested have gone down correspondingly as the trustee's interests have arisen.

In view of this somewhat complicated con dition of affairs all eyes are directed toward Salt Lake, where the final battle is to be fought before Judge Merritt of the territorial court. Should be include the Southern Ex tension in the order of transfer it an additional obligation of at least $400,000 representing defaulted interest, upon the suc cessor receiver, which will have to be paid in addition to the $1,759,000 on the other properties composing the Short Line, as it is commonly known. It is contended that in equity Judge Merritt can do nothing less than protect the first mortgage interests, which are in his court, and to do this he will have to ask Mr. Egan, or whoever the rewell as paying properties. In addition to the amounts named above, there will be $425,000 n interest due August 1, which will have to be raised in two months from the surplus earnings of the several companies included

It is conceded that the American Loan and Trust company and those associated with it can raise $10,000,000 if necessary to carry out the expressed purpose of a separate ceivership. The only thing that is left for the officials of the Union Pacific, therefore, to base their thought upon as to the divorcement of the Short Line is, "Will the American Loan and Trust company undertake so onerous a burden as it appears to be from a close examination of the orders entered by Judges Gilbert of the Ninth and Sanborn of the Eight United States circuits?" what is claimed to be particularly sig-nificant in this connection is the fact that Jim Hill of the Great Northern-Northern Pacific was in Portland Monday, and held a conference with John M. Egan. He walked to the street as the butcher's young man wheeled in his cart and flung away his pail of water.

"Will you just hang about here, Butt?" he asked, "while I burry round to the nearest iron monger's? I chan't be gone long. We're going to work a little burglary. Take the capture from the street, though, of course we had been too busy to be certain. "There's a set of harness hanging over at the back," said Hewitt. "I think we'll the him up with the traces and reins—nothing like leather. We don't need a gag; I know he won't shout." note if anybody comes to that stable at the he won't shout." further end."

We re-entered the yard at the door of the court stable. Hewitt stooped and examined the padlock. Taking a nail in his pilers, he beat it carefully against the brick wall. Then, using the nail as a key, still held by the plers, and, working the padlock gently the plers, and, working the padlock gently to prevent this, though, of course, ineffectually. There were papers, tobacco, a bunch of keys and various odds and ends. Hewitt in his left hand, in an astonishingly few seconds, he had released the hasp and taken off the padlock. "I'm not altogether a bad burglar," he remarked. "Not so bad, really."

The padlock fastened a bar, which, when removed, allowed the door to be opened. Opening it, Hewitt immediately seized a cardle strock in a partly consumed hay truss, which stood in a corner, and toward which he had quietly sidled.

"Keep him still," said Hewitt, "we haven't from the top and saw that it was an ordinary spring mattress, perhaps unusually soft in the springs. It seemed a curious thing to keep in a baker's cart. Hewitt, who had set the candle on a convenient shelf, plunged his arm into the furthermore recesses of the cart and brought forth a very long French loaf, and then another. Diving again he produced certain loaves of the sort known as the "plain cottage"-two sets of four each, each set baked "Feel this bread," said Hewitt, and I felt Hewitt produced a large pocket knife and with what seemed to be superfluous care and elaboration cut into the top of one of the cottage loaves. rather thick outer shell. "No," he said, rather to himself than to me, "there's nothing in that." He lifted one of the very long French loaves and measured it against the interior of the cart. It had before been propped diagonally, and now it was noticeable that it was just a shade longer that the inside of the cart was wide. Jammed in, in fact, it held firmly. Hewitt produced his knife again and divided this long loaf in the center. There was nothing but bread in that. The horse in the stall fidgeted more than ever. "That horse hasn't been fed lately, I fancy," said Hewitt. "We'll give the poor chap a bit of this hay in the corner."

"But," I said, "what about the Hewitt lifted his finger instantly for silence and whispered hurriedly: "There's only one. If he comes here we grab him."

The steps came nearer and stopped outside the door. There was a pause, and then a slight drawing in of breath, as of a person suddenly surprised; at the moment the door was slightly shifted again, and one eye peeped in.

"Catch him!" said Hewitt aloud, as we sprang to the door. "He mustn't get

I had been nearer the doorway, and first through it. "Come," he said, "there's nobody about now; we'll lose no time. I've brought a pair of pilers and a few nails."

While I got the straps, Hewitt held the prisoner by a peculiar neck-and-wrist grip that forbade him to move except at the peril of a snapped arm. He had probably never been a person of pleasant aspect, being abort, strongly and squally built, large and ugly of feature, and wild and dirty of hair and beard; and now, his face flushed with struggling, and smeared with mud from the stable yard, his nose bleeding, and his forehead exhibiting a growing bump, he looked menced to pull away the hay from the corner.

"We'll do this by candle light," he said, as he struck a match. "If the door were left open it would be seen from the street. Keep your ears open in case anybody comes down the yard."

meaning of the loaves, the cart and the spring mattress was now plain. There was an anarchist plot to carry out a number of explosions, probably simultaneously in different parts of the city. I had, of course, heard much of the terrible "reversing" bombs-those bombs which, containing a tube of acid, plugged by walding, required no fuse and only needed to be inverted to set go-ing to explode in a few minutes. The loaves containing these bombs would form an ef-fectual "blind," and they were to be dis-tributed, probably in broad daylight, in the most natural manner possible, in a baker's cart. A man would be waiting near the scene of each contemplated explosion; he From the stall adjoining came the sound of the shuffling and trampling of some impatient horse.

Will the reorganization be effected under the laws of the state of Kansas or under the laws of Illinois?" was asked.

"Under the laws of Kansas, most certainly. This was made possible by the law passed by thestate legislature last spring authorto begin with in order to stand more firmly, and (if observed) more naturally when turned over to explode. The spring mattress, of course, was to ease the jolling to the bombs and obviate any random jorking loose of the acid, which might have the deplorable result of sacrificing the valuable life of the conspirator who drove the cart. This thing seemed pretty plain, except that as yet I had no idea of how Hewitt earned anything of the business. I brought he four-wheeler up to the door of the stable and we thrust the man into it, and Hewitt leaked the stable and the stab locked the stable door with its proper key. Then we drove off to Tottenham Court road police station, and, by Hewitt's order, straight into the yard. In less than ten minutes from our de-parture from the stable our prisoner was finally secured, and Hewitt was deep in con-sultation with police officials. The place of meeting is not mentioned, but it seems more than probable that it will be at the Bakunin club, not five minutes' walk from this place. The police have all these places under quiet observation parently important anarchist meetings have been held. It is the only club that has never been raided as yet, and it would seem the only one they would feel at all safe in using for anything important. Moreover, Moreover, Luigi simply declined to open his mouth when asked where the meeting was to be, and said nothing when the names of several other places were suggested, but suddenly found his tongue at the mention of the Bakunin club and denied vehemently that the meeting was to be there—it was the only thing he uttered. So that it seems pretty safe to assume that it is to be there. Now, of course, the matter's very serious. Men have been dispatched to take charge of the stable very quietly, and the club is to be taken possession of at once—also very quietly. It must be done without a mo-ment's delay, and as there is a chance that the only detective officers within reach at the moment may be known by sight, I have come? We may have to take the door with a rush."
