

CONDUIT TO NEW OMAHA'S TRADE

Business in a Jobbing Way Shows Improvement During the Past Week.

HOPES FOR THE FUTURE ARE VERY BRIGHT

Continued Favorable Reports from All Sections Tributary to This Market Are Having Their Effect Upon the Volume of Trade—Manufacturers' Doings.

Trade conditions generally have improved during the past week, though the change for the better has not been very marked. It is, however, noticeable that a feeling of waiting and expectancy is possible to report some little improvement in the demand for staple goods in most lines. The continued favorable weather has been a factor in the growth of crops in all sections of the state has not only produced a better feeling, but has put what money there is into circulation. The prospective purchasing power of the people promises to be great as every succeeding day carries the crops nearer to the date when they may be considered secure from drought damage. Country merchants are commencing to get over their hesitatingly an inclination to buy a little more freely.

CLLOUDS HAVE ROLLED AWAY.

Trade is better than it was one year ago. W. H. Robertson, Omaha manager of the R. G. Dun & Co. Mercantile agency, began his usual trade talk by saying there never was a time when the merchants in Nebraska were so busy as they are today; there never was a time when they were so certain to pay existing debts as now, and there never was a time when their prospects for being able to meet future obligations were more promising. He pointed to these facts as being the more important ones in the present situation. He said that the policy of the market ten days before some of Omaha's leading jobbers in the matter of credits.

SOME FACTORY FACTS.

Omaha is acquiring quite a reputation in the west for its carriages. The Drummond Carriage company yesterday shipped a two-seated double top roadster to Los Angeles. The Omaha business men are also learning to do some work in the home market and it is not necessary to go east for a carriage of the kind. The Drummond Carriage company, of Sanborn, Dr. Lee, W. B. Rutherford and T. C. Hayden are among the recent comers to the home market. S. P. Gilman, who is prominently identified with the milling industry in the vicinity of Valentine, is a company which has been preparing to handle the product, as the growers are all anxious to grow pickling stock.

The trend of commerce and industry, as a whole, is decidedly favorable. It is as surely westward as is the flow of population, and we cannot afford to allow our attention to be diverted to the east. We must turn to the energies, abilities, wealth and abundance of the resources of the west. The local and direction of industry often occur in this country with startling speed. Frequently we find that a new industry has sprung up in a few days, and it is less moving westward a thousand miles, and trades that a few years ago centered in the east of the continent, are now never to return. As movements like these usually come through the general public, it is not surprising that the westward movement, as a rule, they are changes in the direction of the westward movement, and must be accepted as working out the country's well being through a survival of the fittest.

OUTLOOK IS NEVER BRIGHTER.

Farmers Jubilant and the Business Men Correspondingly Happy.

In discussing the outlook for the crop and the business outlook for the future, the local representative of the Snow, Church and Company Commercial agency has the following to say: It is very gratifying to be able to say that it now appears the fear that the small grain in the state of Nebraska, if not absolutely by a wide margin, a portion of a crop, was groundless, as we were so satisfactorily shown by the reports of the state geologist to show that the crop will not only be practically a full one, but an extraordinary one. There are, of course, some portions of the state that have suffered, in so far as small grain is concerned, but the larger portion of the state in which there have been at least some crops, and in many places more than fulfilled, and we are informed that in many localities the farmers will be forced to move the question of the future, they will find a place in which to store their surplus, and in many places the absolute assurance of an extraordinarily large crop of corn, with the certainty now of a bumper crop of wheat, and a bumper crop of cotton in a condition to be evaded, and the farmers throughout the state, and the business men, are no doubt feeling an jubilation in the knowledge that the crop is a bumper one. Wheat Bulls on Chicago's Board Routed on All Sides.

Bottom fell out of that cereal. Stop Loss Orders and Exhausted Margins with Vicious Sell Selling by the Home Talent Helped the Downward Tendency.

CHICAGO, June 15.—The wheat bulls on the Board of Trade were whirled today and routed, temporarily at least. What had been a few days ago a "sneaking thud" to "the loss in price only stopped with the closing of the session, and was at the bottom of a big decline in the market yesterday. Corn and oats were also very weak. Provisions alone of the speculative articles made a gain in value.
