He disregarded the warning and finally, finding the front door barred, got in through the back door. Then he proceeded to make things lively for the occupants. Bringing a razor out of his pocket, he stationed himself in the front door and announced his intention of carving any body that dared to come in or go out. A scrap ensued, in which one of the men om ployed about the saloon got a bad cut in the back of the head. Krettek came into town and filed an information with the city clerk. LITERARY ENTERPRISES. First-Class Maguzines Do Not Do Well in the West. Literary enterprised are always precarious ones. Daily newspapers publish the news they are made attractive to the general public by editorial, local, telegraphic and general features, but literary papers are only appreciated by the more intelligent people who can be interested in stories, gossips, poetry, fine arts, descriptions of travel or de-tails of fashion or invatrical performances. If they are kept up to a high standard they are compelled to expend a good deal of money to employ first-class literary writers or story writers. For this reason the eastern mageastern enterprises.

The first venture was made in 1830, at Vandalia (then the capital of Illinois), and the magazine was called the Illinois Monthly. contained fifty pages and was filled with interesting sketches of western life, inter-spersed with poetry, articles on steamboat-ing, mineralogy and geology. James Hall, the publisher, moved his office to Cincinnati in 1831, and the magazine showed an improvement in style and typography, but the number of subscribers did not increase, and Mr. Hall sunk all his spare money and was compelled to stop the publication. In 1846 Mr. L. A. Hine, a gentleman of considerable literary ability, started a quar-terly magazine in Cincinnati called the Jour-nal and Review. It was devoted to articles on wealth, mineralogy, geology and the like, and contained sketches of western life and adventure and a few poems from western writers. This magazine lived one year, and a few copies can be found in the Cincinnati libraries. At that time no literary papers or magazines had been published in Chicago, and those who had made attempts in St. Louis were so chagrined at their failures that they did not care to say much about them. The first attempt that can be learned of was made by Alphonse Wetmore & Sons of St. Louis, who started a weekly paper in 1844 called the Saturday Evening Gazette. The most interesting articles were entitled "Reminiscences of the State of Missouri." In 1848 Mr. M. Tarver, a gentleman of some literary ability, and T. F. Risk, a young and prominent lawyer, started a monthly issue called the Western Journal. This magazine was conducted with considerable ability and attained a circulation of 1,600 copies. lasted about twelve years.

But these hard days of literary failures are, happily, things of the past. There is now a noticeable sign of increasing interest in literary work and publications in the west, and the early struggles of those ventures. tures that previously literally "fought, ble and died" have paved the way to success for those now in existence, which are by no means few in number or lacking in popular-ity, not only in their own western homeland. but in other parts of the country as well.

Writers. For this reason the eastern mag and their popularity by employing well known writers, and for the next few days the leading politicians and delegates will swarm about the Savery house and work all sorts of schemes in the interest of their respective friends. The contest on the governorship is the most remarkable the state has seen for many years, there being no less than seven distinct and avowed candidates, with several others who will receive the complimentary vote of their county delegation on the first ballot. It is definitely known that no one can be nominated on the first ballot, and it is more than probable that half a dozen ballots will not settle the contest.

General Drake is the leading candidate in the point of delegates known to be for him and Senator Harlan is close second. Both arrived today and established headquarters. Both are in good spirits and hopeful. General Drake this afternoon had 350 delegates figured out as certain for him for the first ballot, and Senator Harlan counted on 300, and each hoped for more. Rooms have also been en-gaged by Colonel Ormsby, Senator Harsh, Secretary McFarland, Senator Conaway, Senator Parrott and ex-Senator Kamrar, all can

Judges Given and McCreary will contest for the supreme judgeship, and also have rooms. Others who have engaged rooms at the same hostelry and will arrive soon are: H. G. McMillan, James E. Blythe, John N. Baldwin, S. T. Meservey, Congressmen Dolliver and Henderson, Senator William B. Allison F. C. Letts and G. B. Prav.

The latest figures on the governorship were given out this evening as follows: Drake, 260; Harlan, 290; McFarland, 181; Parrott, 185; Harsh, 58; Ormsby, 38; Kamrar, 20; Letts, 18; leaving ninety-three not placed, including most of those elected today. An estimate, made by another calculator in the city, puts a different face on the matter. He gives Drake, 328; Harlan, 332; McFarland, 243; Parrott, 175; Ormsby, 44; Kamrar, 23, and Harsh, 58. All estimates, however, are at fault as not taking into account the unwill really hold the balance of power.

HARSH'S FRIENDS ARE CONFIDENT They Declare that He Goes Into the Con-

CRESTON, Ia., July 6 .- (Special Telegram.) -The numerous Harsh clubs of Iowa met in this city for the last time this evening before the state convention, which meets at Des Moines Wednesday to select a governor. From returns, based on reports from friends in each county, it was developed that Harsh will have many more votes in the convention than any estimate yet sent out has credited him with. It is significant that he has more instructed delegates than any other candidate and has a majority of the votes in his congressional district, which is also Drake's district. The senator was seen tonight and was very hopeful. He opens his headquarters in Des Moines tomorrow. A large delegation will go from here in his interest to

He asked permission to leave an instrument in the agreeing to give the instrument to the farmer if he sells four pianos to the neighbors. only request the agent makes is that the farmer sign a card so the location of the plane will not be lost. The card turns out to be a promissory note for $480, and the piano is probably worth $150. A piano was left at Thomas' and a promissory note for $480

Absorbed the Central Stock Yards. SIOUX CITY, July 6 .- (Special Telegram.) The Sioux City Stock Yards company this morning bid in the property of the Central Stock Yards company at sheriff's sale for $16,500. The property was sold under the foreclosure of the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company, trustee for the holders of $200,000 of first mortgage bonds. The yards were established a number of years ago and bonded for $200,000. They were then absorbed by the Union Stock Yards company, but owing to the incumbrance against them were not included in the sale of that company's property earlier in the week. This purchase gives the Sloux City company possession of all the slock yards property and all the pack-

American and European Methods of Using

The standard American method of utilizing

Magazine, has hitherto been to distribute the water to the several consumers or mill own-this could not be bought up secretly and in large blocks the whole water power enterprise would fail to come to fruition. In Europe, however, several such enterprises came into being in spite of the inability of the pro-been accomplished by means of wire rope transmission of power and it is easy to see that the invention of the electrical transmis-

"My catarrhal trouble dates back about seven years. I could feel it all through me. I seemed to have a continual cold in the head, with a painful pressure on top and through the temples. The nose and mouth were full of mucus that stopped me up in the head. The dropping of this secretion into my stomach disordered that organ so that I became dyspeptic. Soon I became languid, weak, without ambition, and, in a word, 'run down' completely. I felt that the real cause was the catarrhal poison in me, and after a course of treatment with Dr. Shepard I am so restored and changed as to feel entirely a new man."
