OMAHA'S DAY OF JUBILEE

Dedication of the New State Fair Grounds Yesterday.

ATTENDANCE OF MANY THOUSAND

Rain and Clouds Delayed the Opening of the Program but Made the Day Perfect-The Dedicatory Exercises.

'Jubilee day" was a success. In spite of the clouds which in the early forenoon threatened disaster to the hopes of its progeritors, Omaha grit and enterprise carried the day. Gangs of men were early at work to remove as far as possible the effects of the deluge of the night before, and, as if in recognition of their perseverance, the clouds broke away and as bright a sun as ever blessed a Nebraska cornfield shone out on Omaha's White City. The program, which had been delayed by the gloomy menace of the morning, was carried out in full. In an hour's time the light soil of the fair grounds was thoroughly dried and thousands of people donned their holiday attire and went out to assist in an enthusiastic launching of Nebraska's great enterprise, the state fair.

The bright sunrise which greeted the early riser gave every promise of a bright September day. But a bank of clouds was blown up from the north and two hours later the skies were entirely overcast. The prospect of rain was a wet blanket on the spirits of a group of men who stood at the windows of the Commercial club and looked out on the darkening horizon. The question of a postponement of the exercises was seriously discussed, but vigorously protested against by one or two members of the committee. Finally some one discovered a rift in the clouds and as it broadened and lightened the mental thermometer of the gazers took a rapid flight upward. It was determined that the celebration must go on in any event and the members who had already gone out to the grounds were telephoned to make every effort to get the grounds in shape for the festivities.

The first motor car reached the grounds shortly after 9 o'clock. Then the avenues were wet and soggy, but the few visitors who had taken chances on the rain floundered through the sticky mud with undiminishe enthusiasm. Even at that hour there were several hundred people on the grounds and the arrivals were constantly increasing. Every burst of sunlight seemed to have an in stantaneous effect and when the sky was a length cleared the mud vanished as though by magic. By 11 o'clock fully 2,000 people had arrived and the grounds were as dry as though the rain had been weeks ago. There was not a particle of dust and the White City could not have been found in a more perfect condition to receive its guests. THEY KEPT COMING.

From that hour on the crowds arrived as rapidly as the railroads and the motor trains could carry them. From each of the main entrances there was a constantly moving line of new arrivals toward the interior of the Hundreds of carriages dotted the roads leading in from all directions and there 25,000 propie on the grounds before night. The exercises which were to mark the formal opening of the grounds were postponed for an hour or two in order to offset the tardiness of the crowd. It was after 11 o'clock when the speakers and the committee appeared on the platform, which had been erected in the main court, and ther-was a general impulse of the crowd in that direction. The First Infantry band played several selections, while the people were dis-tributing themselves around the square, and then Henry D. Estabrook paved the way for the speakers who were to follow. Mr. Estabrook said in substance: "We. the people of Nebranks, meet here on this day, in the month of September, to celebrate the completion of a mighty work; to contemplate the issue of our endeavor, and to resolve that if human effort can accomplish in so short at time and under such plish in so short a time and under such untoward circumstances all that we see before un here, we will never faiter, but go forward with the expectation that in Nebraska all things are possible. We welcome this burst of sunshine as a happy omen. We have not always had rain in Nebraska. Sometimes the clouds have floated high above us, not descended to bless us with their bounty, but now heaven and earth have their bounty, but now heaven and earth have kissed each other, and what is that kiss-but Nebraska?"

Mr. Estabrook introduced Rev. Dean Gardner of Trinity catheiral who offered a bref prayer, in which he gave thanks for the prosperity that had come to Nebraska, and especially for the Fair City that wes outspread around him. At the end, the vast audience joined with him in repeating the Lord's prayer. "America" was then sung. the "Elks" quartet leading and the entire audience joining with a spirit that made the melody audible far outside of the confines of PRESIDENT LINDSEY'S REMARKS. In introducing Z. T. Lindsey, who, as president of the Omaha Fair and Speed association, was to sum up the story of the tria's and triumphs. Mr. Estabrook said that the spectacle before him was not the World's fair which had been conjured up from the mlasmas of the Illinois swamps. It was not equal to that Apocalypse of the New Jerusalem that seemed to have been brought down to show the people what the abode of the in-mortals was like. But the managers of the World's fair were blushingly inferior to the men who had builded the White City. In the other case money had been poured in like water. Their resources were unlim-ited, but here it had been wrung from a drouth sufferer. Blood had been squeezed from a turnip and how it had been done only the good Lord and Mr. Lindsey knew. But Lindsey would tell how it was done.

When Mr. Lindsey stepped forward he was received with a burst of hand-clapping, which merged into a hearty round of cheers. His remarks were brief and practical. He said that it was just a year ago that the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture had advertised for bids for the location of the state fair. The Omaha Fair and Speel association was Kansas City gentlemen who are conducting formed. It induced the members of the board the running meeting at the Council Bluffs to visit Omaha. The first thing that was de-manded was that the association should raise $50,000. Members said that they could do it and they had. Up to today $72,000 had been expended on the grounds and in the construc-

Continuing, Mr. Lindsey said that he desired to publicly thank all who had been in-strumental in making it possible for the association to succeed. The railroads and the street railway company were first named. The Commercial club stood back of the mem-bers all the time and had never let up for a minute. The newspapers, the hotel men, land owners and others had united their efforts to those already put forth. If any one of them had falled, the fair would never have ma-terlalized. It was nothing but united action and endeavor that had brought about the successful completion of the enterprise.

In conclusion the speaker paid a flattering tribute to the energy and devotion of his colleagues on the board of directors who had given twelve months of their time to planning ont this affair. Many times they had worked until 2 o'clock in the morning and no matter how pressing their personal business, they were always ready to orop it and come to his assistance when he called on them.

SANG THE JUBILEE SONG. Mr. Estabrook announced that neither Senator Manderson nor Senator Thurston, who had been expected to reply to Mr. Lindsey's address, was able to be present and that on that account further speechmaking would be dispensed with. The band rendered another selection and then the song which was composed especially for Jubilee day by A. W. Anderson of South Omaha and day by A. W. Anderson of South Omaha and set to music by J. F. Barten was sung by the Elks quartet, consisting of A. J. Van Kuran and E. B. Treat, tenors, and W. S. McCune and Mr. Barton, bassos. The melody was well adapted to male voices and its rendition was received with prolonged applause.

Sounds of triumph! Songs of praise; High the Glorious Anthem raise. To the bounteous Lord of all. Lo! Mondamin's children call.

Thou hast blest our fruitful land, Thou has blest the toller's hand; Pair Nebraska's golden grain Waves thy praises o'er the plain.

May these trophies of the fight.

Wooed by art from nature's breast, In Thy goodness, Lord, be bleat, Bless Thou still each tolling arm. Be the yield from forge or farm; Wield each muscle, thrill each mind For the good of all mankind. Let Thy love and bounty rest On Nebraska's fruitful breast; Stately home and lowly cot, Peace and plenty be their lot.

After the close of the exercises the atter tion of the crowd was then drawn to the building, where Israel Frank engineered a barbecue that received immediate attention. The crowd filed through the building and each member was accommo-dated with a buge chunk of bread and beef. The assault was desperate, but Frank had been introduced to barbecues before and the big quarters of hot beef and the small moun-tain of freshly baked loaves held their ground until the hunger of the multitude was ap-peased. By that time the race track had been groomed into condition and the bicycle races were called. Following the bicycle races came the drills of the Omaha Guards and Thurston Rifles and the horse races. In the afternoon the attendance was about 15,000, and all means of transportation were taxed to their utmost to bring the crowd away in the evening

So far as business was concerned, Omaha was yesterday a deserted village. The work committee of business men and the general desire upon the part of the citizens to make "Jubilee day" a complete success, caused an almost complete suspension of mislages in every line.

All of the county and city offices, the rallroad offices, business houses and office build-ings were closed. Cigar stores, barber shops and places of like character were open for hours in the morning, but after 12 "Closed for Jubilee Day" signs adorned the doors of almost every building

"We are carrying pobody but fanitors. said an elevator man in one of the big office buildings in the morning, and that described the situation everywhere. The streets during the morning hours were thronged with people, but they were not intent on business They were all looking for the quickest route to the fair grounds, and after the noon hour the street cleaning gang, with their little blue barrels, had undisputed possession of the ousiness thoroughfares.

Ex-Governor Furnas and his assistants closed their office yesterday at the Mil-lard and at an early hour left for a view of the fair grounds. Business has been rushing with them ever since the office was opened and Secretary Furnas has had no op-portunity of noting the daily progress made at the grounds.

resterday for the fair grounds, nine wagon oads in all. They were headed by the Seventh Ward band and paraded the streets before heading for the White City.

OPENED THE FAIR GROUNDS LINE Street Cars Make the First Trip and

Then Go on Schedule Time. Thursday night when the rain commenced t fall 150 men were just driving the last spikes and putting the finishing touches upon the fair grounds extension of the West Leavenworth street car line. It was impossible to is now shipped not by the dozen crates or continue the work in the storm and the track by the carload alone, but by special trainmen were sent home with instructions to reworth street car line. It was impossible to men were sent home with instructions to report for work at daylight in the morning. The wire workers, however, were not given a chance to rest. They donned their mackintoshes and labored all night long. They had commenced work at 5 o'clock Thursday morning and after a steady pull of twenty-eight hours, without sleep, had the connections was every indication that there would be made for the first train to the fair grounds. Officers of the Omaha Street Railway con pany were out early in the morning and while were enthusiastic enough over "Jubilee day," they really were glad that the threatening weather promised them a few hours' additional time in which to prepare for the inevitable rush. Every effort was used in pushing the work of surfacing up the track and completing connections that had been left from yesterday.

It was a few minutes after 9 o'clock when he motor train that was to delicate the extension to the new fair grounds was started from the west end of the old Leavenworth street stub at the Belt line tracks. The car con-tained General Manager Smith, Superintendent Tucker, Secretary Goodrich and Directors Mercer and Brown of the Omaia Street Rail-way company. It was necessary for them to make the trip in order to ascertain that all was right along the line. There was no cere-mony. Crowds had been gathering all all ng the line, anxious to reach the fair grounds and it was necessary for the line to be place! in active operation at the earliest practicable moment. There was no effort to make a speed record. The roadbed was more or leinsettled and caution marked the progress of the train on the trip.

The track has only been completed

Clemen's corner, at Sixty-first street, and when the train bearing the officials reached that point a delegation of Westside's and members of the local committee on state fair success were in waiting to welcome the party A few minutes were devoted to congra ula-tions, after which Ashton Clemens of the committee of the business men presented Conductor McBride with a handsome silv r hadge on which was inscribed "To the Conductor Who Took Through the First Train to the Fair Grounds." Conductor McBride waconsiderably surprised at the presentation and was so badly rattled for a minute that he tried to collect fares from the officials. After a short halt at the western terminal the re turn trip was made and then the signal was given for the opening of regular business on Eight trains were put on at 9:30 o'clock and the number was gradually increased un-til noon, when sixteen double trains were on the line. The trains were run around the oop on Howard street and transfers were not accepted from any other line in the city By the time the trains were started regularly the weather had cleared finely and the cars were at once taxed to their capacity to ac-commodate the crowds bound for the grounds.

While the street railway company has done all possible in getting the line in op ration, it is yet far from completion. The graders only left the cut at Fifty-first street Thursday morning and the tracks were laid hastly The rails are uneven in places, but many men are at work truing them up and by this evening the roadbed will be in very fail

Fancy Clothes

For the Young'uns.

This is an off year for ornamental boys' clothes-at least here-More fancy clothes this season than we ever had, put together-Juniors-Gypsies-Reefers-Saliors-and a good many other what-youmay-call-'ems

But the best part of a comedy is coming-the prices-often before you were made to pay 3, 4, 5 dollars for a small suit fust because there was a bit of trimmings to it.

And now we propose to show you that either some dealers made a round fat profit out of that fancy boog-a-boo, or we're phenominal buyers-perhaps hypnotizers.

$1.25 Is our price for a dark mixed cheviot fancy suit. Reefer style coat, with sailor collar, braided, and so are the sleeves. Lucky to get one at less than $3.00. Samples in show window, $1.25 Our price for a blue cheviot Junior-Gypsy style-silk corded from the collar down, and differently designed patterns, too. Display in our show window. For a blue mixed, double-breasted cheviot suit-Reefer stylesailor collar, braided, $3 to $3.50 buys none better. Samples

$1.90, $2.25, $2.75, $3.50 represent the other qualities we retail. Tell you what's good for you. Come around and look into the corner show window. Every kind is sampled there, see anything you like, step into the elevator, get off on the second floor, feel of the cloth and have it tried on. That much costs you nothing and what you learn is profit.
