This green-cycd monster lurked in the minds of the pilgrims at Piymouth Rock and Jamestown-the Puritan of the north and the cavaller of the south; grow to immense proportions: the spirit of envy and jestousy increased, until a mighty strug-gle and a baptism of blood buried out of sight the dividing lin. of our nation.

SOBER, UPRIGHT MEN.

All honor to the traveling men, who have taken part in, reunlied the scattered frag-ments of a great country and produced the meths of a griat country and produced the new man-the American citizen. But there is another feature of their mission upon which I speak with all the fervor of my soul. A large per cent of the traveling salesmen are intemperate. The great com-micial interest of our country demands sober, upright men. It is a hopeful sign, in the evening of the interenth century, to see the principle of temperance making its imprised up of the great comprised impr ssion upon every legitimate enterprise of our country. Even those who are en-gaged in traveling for wholesale liquors are themselves required to be temperate men. The influence of the drammers of today is in the direction of right-doing. At our last annual convention they voted the wine from their banquet, and thus set before the world an example worthy the imitation of all. was a master stroke, and if other organiza-tions representing the business interests would follow the example in a short time legislative enactments would follow that would rid our country of many evils. Men would rid our country of many evils. Men who travel with grip and trunk are brought into close contact with every shade of throught, and every kind of humanity. alone making the world better, but the God-fearing men, who, in business pursuits of life, implant a principle, and by a single word sow the seed of the kingdom of God in the human heart. "Ye are a royal priesthood." said the inspired writer, and thus taught the beautiful 1:seon of universal royalty. The cloquence of the pulpit will never convert the world, but the eloquent acting of men in the humble walks of life will melt the stony cart and bring the world to God. Who can estimate the value of a single toble act if the ever restless billows of the leep move from shore to shore, and the ound of the acollan harp mounts upon waves inseen in the realm of space, to an unknown thereal shore? Is it not also true that the nfluence of a noble act sets in motion waves of the moral atmosphere, that roll onward and upward, until they kies the chores of a brighter world than this?

GENEROUS DEEDS.

The drummers have recently given nearly $300 to our Orphans' home, and on Thanke-giving Gay, a few of them called to pay their respects to these little sculs, who had been 's kindly remembered. The children sang "There Shill Be Showers of Blessings." and is the song closed I may tears trickling down the checks of these noble sons, and I thought which of the two received the greater bless-ing—the childran or the drummers. The kind, loving act made the moral atmosphere quiver with life and love. Not dong since, I sat in a hotel, near a table; a drummer sat opposito me writing orders to his house, After a while he said: "Now I'll write to another." Appreciating the statement, I said, "that is a noble thing to do." He turned to me and said: "My friend, I ther have been traveling for twenty years, and I have never failed writing my mother every day," and then he continued in a beautiful touching tribute to his mother. What a beautiful touch-ing tribute to his mother. What a beautiful source to the young men who heard it. Only a few words were spiken, but who can estimate the influence over the hearts of the young men who heard it then, and the
