Wheat Was Bullish and a Fraction Lower Yesterday.

CORN WAS WEAK EARLY BUT FIRM LATER

Onts Were Fairly Active and Bustness Heavy, the Market Fluetunting with Wheat and Corn.

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.-Wheat was bullish and from %c to 12c lower than yesterday's price after an early buige to 62c for May. Corn and oats had a somewhat similar experience, each of them closing at moderate declines for the day. Realizing sales by holders of provisions were too much for the fresh buying orders which came in, and in consequence, pork, lard and ribs also suffered in price to a moderate extent.

Wheat was somewhat weaker early in the session, mainly on some generous selling by a few of the big holders, and at one time was %c below the close last night; but the weakness was only temporary and there was a quick reaction of nearly %c, but this In turn was all lost before noon. news was in the main bullish; cables came bigher, the light world's shipments reported higher, the light world's shipments reported yesterday were officially confirmed and the country deliveries were again moderate, while the clearances aggregated about 450,000 bu, in wheat and flour. The telegram received yesterday a mouncing a shrinkage of 5,000,000 bu. In the Indian wheat acreage was also exerting a decidedly bullish influence. The market was also helped by the increasing strength for provisions, and there was active covering by shorts and good investment buying. Pardridge was a heavy buyer much of the time, but the advance drove him out of the market for a season. On the bulge there was active for a season. On the bulge there was enough realizing and short selling to force prices a 1rifle below early figures. May sold early at 61%c, weakened to 61%c, then up to from 62c to 52%c, split, back to 51%c, and at noon was about 61%c. The market weakened during the last hour by Bradstreet's report, which showed a decrease in the world's stock of only 1,837,930 bu, where over 3,000,000 bu, had been tooked for. The selling was on a large scale, and May went to 61%c, finally closing at from 61%c to 61%c bid.

Corn showed a little weakness early and sold at one time ½c below last night's close, but reacted in sympathy with wheat and provisions and went up ½c, but by noon had weakened and was the same as it closed yesterday. May opened ¼c lower at 29¼c, and on the bulge in wheat sold up to 29%c. There was decided weakness during the closing hour and May closed at from 29½c to 29¼c, a loss of from ¼c to ¼c from yesterday. The selling was very free.

Oats were fairly active and business quite heavy, the market following the fluctuations of wheat and corn. May started at 29%c, sold at 20½c, grew more quiet, sold off to 29%c and closed at from 20½c to ½c since yesterday.

Another small run of hogs started the provision pit on the boil again, but an inclination to realize was soon manifested, for after selling as high as $10.55. May pork declined to $10.60 and closed is lower at $3.55.

Estimates of long produ yesterday were officially confirmed and the country deliveries were again moderate

Riverside, Cal., is flooding the markets of the country with frosted oranges. The fruit is of good color and is sold for good fruit and the buyer is not aware of its real character until it goes into consumption. The latest advices from Chicago indicate that there were forty-five cats of that kind of fruit standing on track and the price of so-called fancy fruit has dropped way down. The result cannot but be detrim nual to the California orange trade. It would be far better in the long run if California fruit growers would dump their frozen fruit instead of sending it cast to prejudice people against them.

More Cheerful Temper Prevailed in Wall Street.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—A more cheerful temper prevailed in Wall street today, and this condition was reflected in spasmodic bursts of comparative strength and an animation in the stick speculation. The improvement was not uniform, however, as the more confident tone was based up in expectation of a continued easy uniform, however, as the more confident tone was tassed up in expectation of a continued easy condition of the money market and the belief that the withdrawals of gold for shipment on Saturday will be nominal in amount. The impression that the proposed Monroe doctrine resolution of Senator Davis would be either postponed or defeated caused a feeling of relief in financial circles, which may, or may not, be justified. Considerable favorable significance was also attached to an announcement that an English insurance corporation would suitocribe to £60,000 of the new issue of bonds. A ripple of strength, which was of noteworthy extent only in New Jersey Central, caused a trifle more strength than has yet been manifested in relation to the impending conference of the presidents of the anthracite industry, according to the best authorities, is rapidly approaching a condition of utter demoralization. Coal is ptocked everywhere and prices are not far from the lowest figure recorded in the spring of 1886.

The unfavorable influences of the protracted unusually mild weather and the uncertainty ruling as to the financial outlook are also felt in the trade, it is hoped, however, that the powerful assistance of the resrganization committee of the Reading will be interposed to avert a recurrence of the deep depression of the industry which prevailed last year, and which cut so deeply into the sarnings of the producing and carrying companies. The market opened firm and advances to the extent of 1 per cent were soon recorded in some instances. The improvement was checked soon after the end of the first hour, when a slight reaction occurred. The upward movement was soon resumed, however, and at the top figures gains were scored of I to 1% per cent in Sugar, Chicago Gas, General Electric, Louisville & Nashville and the grangers. Late in the day an stack was made on the industrials, and material declines were effected in that class. The railway stocks also sagged, but the losses in them were only fractional. Chicago Gas was railed on the refusal of the state authorities of Illinois to permit to be filed the certificate of consolidation of the various properties. The stock slumped 2 per cent to 54%. Sugar and Tobacca fell 1% and 2 per cent respectively on rumors of imponding measures in the New Jersey legislature to forfeit the charters of the two companies. The last mentioned recovered & per cent of the decline in the final dealings. Leather preferred fell 1% per cent in sympathy. Western Union was pressed for sale to a comparatively large extent, despite denial by Jeading officials of the unfavorable rumors in circulation regarding the property.

Quite a number of loads of pretty fair corafed cattle were offered on the market, and some of them were good enough to touch the $4.00 mark. The market was not very active, no one being in any hurry to fill orders, still they bought them at fully HOGS—The receipts of hogs were liberal today, the run being the largest of any day since January 8. The market was simply a repetition of what it has been almost every day for the past week or more, there being as usual an advance, it opened active and about 5c higher and the bulk of all the hogs sold early. Both packers and speculators were free buyers. Later, as the most urgent orders were filled, the trade eased off and the market closed a shade lower than it opened. and the market closes a shall all 12.95, as against table yesterday, with quite a sprinkling at 14 and a 44.95 top. Today's advance carries the market to a point 40.945c higher than it was on Tuesday of last week. Representative sales:

Stockers and feeders were in fair supply. The receipts of that class of cattle are larger this week than last, the high prices having apparently stimulated shipments. The demand for feeders is rather light, owing to the scarcity of money, and they are accordingly slow and the market was easier again today. Stockers are in good demand and meet with ready sale at strong prices, Representative sales:

Damage Suit Against Union Pacific Brings to the Surface a Tale of a Marriage that Failed.

There is soon to be exploited in police court, and also in the civil courts, a story of marital life in which the prime elements are the faith of the woman and the duplicity of the man. Surrounding these there are circumstances which tend to make up a story of pitiful interest and one somewhat racy, from the fact that behind it all there is another woman. Ben Boris is the individual about whom the story centers, and the one who will be especially prominent in the criminal proceedings. Boris is quite well known in this city, having been here for years. He was more prominent six or seven years ago, when he was looked upon as, and really was, a man in well-to-do circumstances. The larger part of this amount was invested in real estate, a portion in property near Fifteenth and Webster streets.

Boris and his family lived happily enough together until six years ago. But at that time the other woman appeared on the scene, and since then the family has become of very minor consideration to Boris. He has abused the members and has besten his wife many times. In addition to this physical ill treatment, he has squandered his property, so that at this time his wife and children are in almost destitute circumstances.

Boris met the woman in St. Louis six years ago. Her name is Bertha Baring, and she is living at the present time at 987 North Thirteenth street. She is the daughter of a man prominently connected in St. Louis, and from all accounts was, and is yet, a high-

The woman was brought to this city by Boris. She at once started to cut a big swath with money which he was called upon to furnish. She had corriages and Jewelry and everything else that her heart desired and Boris footed the bills. Nothing was too rich for her and her existence was like that of Aladdin with his lamp.

The thing could not last, as money bags, like other articles, have bottoms. Six years ago Boris was worth $25,000. Today he has not a cent. In order to satisfy the desires of his enchantress he had to raise money, and when his cash was gone he was driven to mortgage his property. It went piece by piece until at the present time all of his pos-sessions are in the hands of mortgage and loan companies.

While paying attention to Miss Baring, Boris is said to have neglected his wife and ill-used her in many ways, despite the fact that the property which he was so lavishly spending had been collected through her ef-forts, as well as his own. She had no posttive knowledge of his entanglement until quite recently. They lived together until a year ago. Then Boris found that his wife was too much in the way and set about to dispose of her. He bought some property in Kearney and sent her and the children there. This was their home until a short time ago. In course of time Boris found it necessary o mortgage even the Kearney property and termined to go to Kearney in an effort to save some of her belongings. She pawned Time in County Court.
