BOISE CITY, Idaho, March 21 .- To the Editor of The Bee: Boise City, Idaho, is a funny old town. It is on the Union Paclific "short line," from Omaha to Portland. The town is in the same latitude as Portsmouth, N. H. To get to it I went through their guest were largely in the nature of a deep snow in Illinois, snow drifts in Nobraska and blizzards in Wy ming. The bankers in the silver country began to say it is the tariff and not the stoppage of silver coinage. In New York it is the same. Even old Cleveland democratic bankers may the hard times are caused by the balance of trade being against up. Gold will always go out to settle that balance. When I asked George W. THURSTON SEEMS WELL SATISFIED. He Declares McKinley's Strength is Growing Every Day. Senator John M. Thurston returned yesterday morning from Washington. He will remain during the remainder of the week, or until after the local convention, when he will rewhat late in arriving at his office, which was tenanted meantime by a number of local politicians who awaited his appearance.

In speaking of the political situation Senof Maj:r McKinley. "McKinley is as good as nominated at this moment," he said deliberately, and then he spoke of the signifi-cant action of the conventions that had already been held in states that had never been counted in the McKinley column. Minnesota and Illinois would, he said, be for Mcafter they had cast a complimentary vote for Mr. Reed. Twelve out and out McKinley delegates had been chosen in New York and McKinley would have two-thirds, at least of the southern vote. He might not be nominated on the first ballot, but his strength would constantly increase. "This is going to be a campaign of the people," added Senator Thurston, "and the people are for McKinley everywhere. Even in New York if a secret informal ballot could be taken today McKinley would get four votes to one for all the other candidates combined."

With regard to the situation in Nebraska, Senator Thurston had but little to say. When it was suggested that there was a tendency among some of his supporters to ignore the terms of the agreement with the friends of General Manderson and instruct the Ne-Instruct the delegates to the national conven-tion for William McKinley on the first bal-lot, and all other ballots until he was nomi-that a feeling of that sort existed in some nated or out of the race. He was certain that so far was chosen unanimously as chairman of the an Douglas county was concerned, the terms of the agreement would be carried out to the letter. He insisted that this agreement had not emanated from him. He had merely accepted it on the representations of his friends as a means of harmonizing all elements. In reference to the probable action of the national convention on the silver question Senator Thurston said that while the terms general principle of the money plank of the previous platform would be unchanged. He thought that the expression of Major Mc Kinley on the subject at the Marquette club banquet in Chicago would make an excellent substitute. The republican party was never in favor of the so-called free coinage of silver because it believed that such action would have an effect opposite to that which was claimed for it by its adherents. It was not in favor of any action that would put a single depreciated dollar in the hands of the public, but it did favor the greatest possible use of sliver consistent with that doctrine, and he believed that legislation could be secured that would create a market for what silver was produced in this

The senator declined to discuss the probabilities of a settlement of the Union Pacific matter during the prezent session. He thought there would be no further postponement of the bridge case and that it would be argued on the date now set. RECEPTION TO THE SENATOR.

The Fourth ward republicans congregated Washington hall last night to give an informal reception to Senator Thurston. As a number of other ward meetings were reheduled, the attendance was largely confined to members of the club, and the remarks of his personal followers.

Senator Thurston was greeted with prolonged cheering when he was introduced by Major D. H. Wheeler, and he explained at the outset that he proposed to merely talk a few minutes and reserve his speech for the following evening. He expressed his appreciation of the manner in which his friends in Nebraska had stood by him during the past few weeks, and added that this signified that the people were united in their adherence to Major McKinley, and any effort of political bosses to deny their hope and wish was bound to fail.

The speaker alluded to the fact that for many years he was the representative of great railroad interests. In that capacity he performed his duty, but now he represented the people of Nebraska, and he posed to serve them with the same fidelity with which he served his other clients. I was alleged that he owed his election as senator to the influence of a great corporate interest, but this was utterly and en-tirely false. He was elected, not because he was a railroad attorney, but in spite of it. If the time should ever come when corporate demands should stand on one side and the interests of the people on the other, he would cast his lot with the pea-ple, at whatever cost. Senator Thurston then proceeded to justify his action in regard to the selection of the Nebraska delegation to the national conventhe same subject, with some additions in details. He complained that for some reason the newspapers of Omaha had persisted in the position of delegate at large. Evans is exceedingly popular, but the fact that he is not a pronounced McKinley man is tallied misrep esented him. had been a staunch supporter of McKinley from the start, and regarded him as a true type of the patriotic American, in whose bands the reins of the government would rest with safety. It had been alleged that in the late McKinley-Manderson compromise he acted in the character of a dictator. This was far from the motives that actuated him in the matter. The letters and agreements drafted by himself were submitted to men having the interests of Mr. McKinley and Mr. Manderson in hand, and met with their approval. He thought it to the best intercats of the republicans of the state that such an amicable agreement was made. He said that the St. Louis convention would be only a McKinley ratification meeting.

John L. Webster followed in a short address, in which he stated that he felt assured that the voters of Omaha and the state of Nebracka were all thoroughly for McKin-

Nebraska Delegates to St. Louis Should Go Uninstructed. NIOBRARA, Neb., March 23 .- To Editor of The Bee: The side-play differences between Schator Thurston and General Manderson having been adjusted, as far, at least, as Douglas county is concerned, I take the liberty to express my views.

I have all along been opposed to the ognition of either faction, so-called, because there has been no apparent principle involved. Both gentlemen have like records on all questions uppermost in the minds of the people, and it was a toss-up with an indifference as to results. Mr. Thurston has, indeed, taken a bold step when he assumes the dictatorship of the republican party of Nebraska. I realize the great following he has. But there is another element that may submit, in fact, be led, but not driven, like so many sheep.

I have never had but the best of faith in Governor McKinley's individual high-mindedness. His managers, however, if Senator Chandler of New Hampshire is to far too dictatorial in urging his candidacy.

I am opposed to instructed delegations, as a rule. The instructed delegation for Harrison's nomination was one of the rules that could be broken. He had inaugurated a policy which deserved endorsement. But McKinley has no higher endorsement due trustworthy as to be at various conventions | for interment mentioned in connection with the presidency.

I have, however, watched the brilliant career of Reed with no little pride. It has been many-sided and remarkable in emergencies. One listens to his jokes and his stories and watches his face beam with good-natured lights and shades, to be by circumstances turned into biting sarcasm. Then, again, standing out upon his rights and demanding obedience to them, to finally have his successor endorse them. Then his have his successor endorse them. conservative nature asserts itself and new conditions arise to show the man in a greater light than ever. COMBINED AGAINST M'KINLEY Fight in the Texas Convention Linble to Be a Hot One AUSTIN, Ter., March 23 .- Though the republican state genvention does not meet here until tomorrow, the city is crowded with delegates, great numbers having arrived on the early trains. Up to noon today it seemed as though the fight were going to be both a lively and bitter one. It will be McKinley and anti-McKinley. Cuney, the Allison leader, announced himself as a candidate for temporary chairman at midnight last night, and the further fact that the Reed men were at once rallied to his support looks as though the lines were going to be tautly drawn on McKinley. The McKinley men are still very sauguine and are asserting that they have everything their own way and will send at least three of the four delegates to St. Louis. Cuney is a power among the negroes, how-ever, and it is just possible that he may turn the tide in the direction that the McKinley men are least expecting. His object is to send an uninstructed delegation to St. Louis, and he will leave no stone unturned to do it. He practically promised the Morton men that the delegation shall go uninstructed, and he will train his effort in that direction. The politicians here are looking at the situation rather seriously this morning, and some of them are not slow to say that they are afraid of a bust-up tomorrow. The gauntlet has certainly been thrown down to the Mcas to whether they have the nerve and strength with which to fight the battle out to a successful termination. After an all day wrangle to arrange a com-bination between the Allison and Reed men, the whole business was knocked into a cocked hat late tonight by the Allison men, with Cuney at ther head, forswearing all combinations and announcing that they would make the fight singly for Allison for president and for Cuney for temporary chair-man of tomorrow's convention. The Reed men are apparently frustrated by the action of the Allison men. McKinley's forces say they will fight to a finish and the result will probably be suicidal to the Reed men, al-though they seem to think that they will combine with the McKinley men if assured a divided delegation.

BURGLARS UNDER THE BED.

How a Woman's Nerve and Quick Wit Effected His Capture, A young Philadelphia woman of rather graceful, dignified appearance, about 25, had become kefatuated with histrionic art. She was of excellent family, of wealth, who gave her a thorough musical education at home and in Paris. To become a celebrated songstress was the dream of her existence, and when an opportunity occurred that she could display her vocal powers on the boards this amateur theatrical company, says the Phila-

> Released the Receivers. MILWAUKEE, March 23.-Judge Jenkins

today refused a petition of the Clybourne Park company of Chicago in the Wisconsin Central receivership, holding that the company was not entitled to equitable relief be-cause it permitted gambling on its premises in opposition to the laws of Illinois. The Central company repudiated a contract to run trains from Chicago to Clybourne park at the rate of $17 per car and demanded $30 per car. The receivers held that the contract was burdensome. Judge Jenkins said that if it were not for the gambling he would have ordered a referee to determine just how far it was burdensome and in event of its being but elightly so would have overruled the ac-tion of the receivers by virtue of the general powers of the court in receivership cases.

Suits Against the Q. to Be Dismissed. DES MOINES, Ia., March 23 .- (Special Telegram.)-A series of suits recently begun in the federal court against the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road in the name of the United States to oust the road, and a large number of settlers who bought lands from it, from their holdings, will be dismissed. cases involved about 30,000 acres of land in Page, Montgomery and Mills counties, which it was claimed by the government were held by defective titles, having been claimed by the road under its land grant. It has been found that all the questions raised have already been settled by the federal supreme court and that a new hearing would result in a victory for the present settlers.

Security Holders Want Readjustment. NEW YORK, March 23 .- A committee has been appointed in the interests of the security holders of the Mexican Southern railroad to develop a plan for readjustment of capital.
