To His Excellency, Silas A. Holcomb, Lincoln, Neb.; Sir; Your communication of June II to Hone A. J. In reply thereto would say that from the testimony offered before the grand jury when these parties were indicted, we are satisfied that you have been miled, both as to the character and amount of timber cut. You have not given the names of the parties who have made the representations, and therefore we are unable to discriminate as to them, but I may say this much as to the testimony offered before the grand jury, and that is that the timber these parties are charged with outting was taken from the Fort Randall military reservation, and much, if not most of it, was large, nice timber, for the country from whence taken; that some of these parties stood upon their wagons and cut much of the timber high up from the ground, leaving the land looking like a graveyard with headstones creeted; that they left the tops and brush scattered all over the ground and left much valuable wood to lis and rot on the ground, some of them cutting as high as 100 cords or more, as near as can be estimated from the piles at their homes, in short, committed a grievous waste of timber and persisted in doing this, notwithstanding the carness protest of the custodian in charge; that a deputy United States marshal, upon instructions from the department at Washington directing this to be done, went and examined the premises where the wood was cut and made his report before any proceedings were had in the case, and that they were not presented to the graind Jury until instructions were received to that effect from Washington.

thorities, he did not express great hopes of accomplishing much good for the parties goods clerk, had falled to contribute anywho petitioned him from the Sixth congressional district of the state of Nebraska. The cutting of the timber occurred at a time when there was a great deal of destitution in that part of the state. Since then a large number of the alleged trespassiers have been put to great expense in defending themselves in the federal court at Omaha, as well as for transportation to and from the court. The presecution of alleged timber thieves, while seldom resulting in timber thieves, while seldom resulting in heavy penalties, generally nets a snug sum per prisoner to district attorneys and United States marshals, and no one in the vicinity of the state house is at all surprised at the tone of the letter of the South Dakota district attorney.

FIRST EVIDENCES OF THE FOURTH. Bombardment of Fire Crackers Starts in a Mild Way Last Night.

The great national holiday was given a very mild starter in Omaha last night. There was a spasmodic firing of crackers as evidence of the fact that the day was approaching, just enough to keep the crowds on the streets dodging, but not nearly so much as on previous years. As a general thing there is a constant succession of re-ports from sundown of the 3d until far nto the night of the Fourth, but the greater portion of the people appeared willing to wait a day for their noise on this occasion. There were a few crowds of men who were having all kinds of fun with people issing along the streets, nervous women sured enormous dummy cannon crackers about a foot long and several inches in diameter. Instead of being loaded with explosives which make an unearthly noise, they simply had a small fuse and a little powder at the end which would sputter and sizzle. Watching their opportunity when a and the cry go up. "Look out!" The nervous pedestrian would shy out into the street in a hurry in anticipation of the approaching explosion, only to be given the laugh when the fizzle came. This operation was re-peated until the crowds left the streets and he sport became stale.

Judging from the reports of dealers in fireworks as to the extent of the sales and the comparatively small amount of them touched off last night there is plenty of grief in store for nervous people today. There is no doubt in the world the small boy, and some not so small, is well provided noise provokers, and that he will im-

HEADING OFF PLUMBERS' BILLS.

W. A. Paxton Locks Horns with the Muster Plumbers. There is a fight on between W. A. Paxton and the plumbers' combine, and as a result Mr. Paxton has filed with the Board of Public Works an application for a plumber's license. The application is for of Wilson & Paxton, the senior partner being Robert Wilson, who is employed as

The trouble originated from the increasing tendency on the part of some of the leading plumbers to monopolize the plumbing business in the city. Municipal legisordinances any house owner who uses a monkey wrench to tighten a faucet in his compelled to apply for a license in self-defense. According to the present regula-tions they were compelled to call in a plumber to do little jobs of repairing that they had always been accustomed to attend to themselves. For this purpose they em-ployed Mr. Wilson, who was a practical man and has had eight or ten years' experience in plumbing. Now, however, they were liable to arrest every time a faucet was tightened without paying an exorbitant fee to a plumber. The plumbers had been watching them constantly for two or three weeks and in order to protect them-selves they proposed to take out a plumbing license themselves.

Graham Park, John Rowe and a number of other plumbers appeared to protest against granting the license. They asserted that Wilson was not a plumber and that the board could not legally grant the application. They were given until the next meeting to file a written protest and Mr. Paxton was notified that he would be ex-pected to prove that Wilson was a competent plumber.

Sadie Ogden, living at 1412 Dodge street. omplained to the police yesterday that some ne had stolen her false teeth. They are valued at $12 and she would like to have the offender arrested. She has reasons for suspecting a young man boarding at the same place. This young man, so she alleges, is something of a practical joker and has attempted to get gay a number of times at her expense. She, however, gave him to at her expense. She, however, gave him to understand that he was treading upon dangerous ground and nothing transpired until yesterday. Miss Ogden had occasion to deosit her teeth in a tumbler of water in her bed room, and was then unexpectedly called to another part of the house. When she returned her teeth had disappeared, and as she intended visiting some friends that same evening it placed her in a serious dilemma. As Miss Ogden was figuring out the best method of recovering her personal effects, the young man came to the door and inquired if anything was wanted. She collected his effects and went to the Union | accused him of the deed and he only grinned
