evening for the hire of a riding horse for few hours. He said he had important business a few miles out in the country and would be gone but a few hours. He secured the horse, but failed to return.

Mr. Utterback's barn is just across the street from the police station, and after waiting an unusual time for the return of his horse, he went over to the police station to ask the assistance of the authorities in locating the missing animal. He found the police sergeant reading a description of a young man named James Gibbons, who had broken jall at Logan and was missing. He gave a description of the man who had taken his horse and the description tallied to a nicety with that of the man wanted a Logan. Yesterday a boy named Turner found the horse down below the transfer depot, and as he was just needing a horse to herd cows with, he appropriated the animal to his own use. He had found the horse with saddle and bridle, just as it had left Mr Uttarback's here broken had left Mr. Utterback's barn. Deputy Sheriff Baker discovered the horse and re
