Considering the Prices and Qualities Offered at This Great Sweeping Away of the Finest Shoes Ever Brought to Omaha.

Every hour and almost every minute dur-Ing the day the store formerly occupied by Wilcox & Draper was closed during Satur-day. The doors were opened only often enough to admit and let out the crowds of cager buyers. Omaha never saw such a sale, and Omaha will never see another like

It was due entirely to the popularity of the line that Wilcox & Draper carried. Every-body knew that bargains were in sight; everybody felt certain that anything that Mr. Wilcox managed was all right-that's why they came in such crowds that Douglas street was blockaded; that the store had to be closed it seemed almost all the time, in order to allow the great army of salesmen to even show once what the people demanded

And what they demanded they got. They got it for the asking, though, for bargains were free to all.

And you never saw such a sale in all your No store was ever so crowded. No life. crowd was ever so well satisfied.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS. CITY

Comptroller Reports on the Condition of City Funds. The special meeting of the city council yesterday morning stretched into a two hours' session in which as much business was transacted as at the average regular meeting. The judiciary committee did not report on the appointment of John T. Clarke as chairman of the Board of Fublic Works, so that matter is apparently hung up until the council returns from its western trip.

City Attorney Connell submitted the contract of the city with Irving Allison for the further notice construction of a city jail at Sixteenth and Leaven rouch streets, with the information that it was the best he could do from the meage: information afforded by the origifrom non-residents about real estate and the nal proposition. This is figures, for which the city gives the owner the use of the two storerooms on Sixteenth street. The discussion brought out no new points. Wheeler asked that the contract be referred to a committee for investigation, as he had been told that, according to its provisions, the city would be compelled to put in its Taylor cited figures to show that when the cost of feeding prisoners at the county jail was considered, the entire cost to the city of the proposed jail would be about half what it was a year ago, and before the rent of the present jail quarters was reduced. The contract was referred to the com-mittee on public property and buildings. Comptroller Westberg, City Clerk Higby and License Inspector Hurst were granted two weeks' leave of absence in August.
