Middle-of-the-Road Populist Convention Turns Out a Fizzle.

HALL CAPTURED BY THE DEMOCRATS

Effort to Secure the Nomination of Straight Bryan and Watson Electors Ensily Frustrated by the Crowd.

LINCOLN, Sept. 28 .- (Special Telegram.) -C. M. Clark of Lincoln and Dr. Bryant of Norfolk were at 1114 O street at 2 p. m. today for the estensible purpose of holding a middle-of-the-road populist state convention, pursuant to call published last week The hall was immediately taken possession of by about a hundred free silver democrats and populists, and all attempts to conduct the business of the convention were futile Mr. Clark said that so long as the straight ticket by petition anyway it would be as well to draw up the petition and name the candidates at a conference to be held later. William Dech's manager, Mr. Boulding said that Dech will not participate in the movement for a state convention. Among the populists present today who are opposed the populists present today who are opposed to a Bryan and Watson movement were: E.

When Mr. Clark had declared his intention to move by petition, Mr. Goodell seized the gavel and assumed the chairmanship of the from the Black Hills, where he went for convention. He called on Mr. Clark for an explanation of his position and he got it gradually failing and for the past day or straight from the shoulder. He was told that he, Clark, was in this movement for the purpose of securing the populist party of Nebraska from the clutches of democracy. He said an attempt was being made to sell out the populists and he stood against it. He denounced the ignoble fusion by which Watson was to be betrayed into the hands of democracy by Scnator Allen and Governor

In the course of quite a lengthy speech, J. C. McNerney said that Bill Dech and Paul Vandervoort were the instigators of movement, and that they were almost alone in wanting to put up another pop ticket. "Vandervoort." he said, "is the worst politlcal blackguard in Nebraska politics," and the sentiment was loudly applauded. Some one made the remark that everybody was a middle-of-the-roader. Upon this Mr. Clark exclaimed, "You are about as near the middle-of-the-road as you would be if you were in h-l." Having captured the "middle-of-the-road" convention, the combination of free silver Aged Nebraska Pioneer Passes Away nt His Fremont Home. FREMONT, Sept. 28.—(Special.)—Sireno B. Colson died at his residence on Nye avenue at 1 o'clock this morning. Since his return two has been very low. For over thirty years Mr. Colson had been a constant sufferer from asthma, and was obliged for the past few years to spend his summers at the hot springs.

He was born in New York state February 13, 1828. His ancestors came from Sweden to this country in the early part of the eighteenth century and his grandfather erved in the revolutionary war. He was educated in the common schools and learned the trade of a shoemaker. In 1859 he came to Fremont and homesteaded an eighty-acre tract of land on section 15, Platte town-ship, which he owned when he died. He continued to work at his trade at the same time taking charge of his land until 1865. In 1866, when the Union Pacific railroad was built through Fremont, he took charge of the station here and continued in that capacity three years. He then served two terms as treasurer of Dodge county. Though of frail physique and always having the appearance of a man whose days on earth the grain business with Theron Nye, his brother-in-law, the name of the firm being Nye & Colson. They did a large and the superscript of the content and 80 per cent saccharine content saccharine content and 80 per cent saccharine content were few, he was an active, energetic busiperous business, having many elevators along the line of the Elkhorn road, and their successor, the Nye. Schneider Co., is one of the largest concerns of the kind in the west. January 21, 1868, he was married to Francis I. Reynolds. They had three children, two sons and a daughter, all now living. He was a progressive, public-spirited man, and took an active interest in all that tended to promote the welfare of the city.

He attended the first caucus of the republican party held in his town in New York and has ever since been an active and zealous republican, having many times been delegate to state and congressional conventions and rendered efficient aid on state and county committees. He was very positive and outspoken in his convictions and of exemplary habits and character, which was o doubt the reason of his living so near the ns of the American Revolution.

FRIGHTENED BY PENDING AGITATION

Address Delivered by Henry W. Yntes Riefore the National Bankers' Association-Visit the Tomb of Lincoln.

Henry W. Yates returned vesterday from the annual session of the American Bankers' association, held in St. Louis. During tory Saturday, and tomorrow morning the pin, a young man of this county, was tried the proceedings of the convention the roll work of drying and preparing for the factive of the state was expected to respond. Mr. Yates responded for Nebraska and the Chronicle had this to say concerning his ago and remarks:

"Nebraska-Henry W. Yates, president of the Nebraska National bank of Omaha, spoke of how well the state had done in politics but said it had not done so well in banks The banks of Nebraska in the last three years had lost $25,000,000. The loss was attributed to the low price of grain and real estate, rather than to currency agitation He hoped the dark clouds of repudiation would roll away at election and prosperity return to Nebraska." Instead of spreading, as indicated by the Chronicle, Mr. Yates said "Mr. President, Gentlemen of the Amer ican Bankers' Association: It was not my expectation to be called upon to answer the call for Nebraska. In fact, I must admit that until I came here this morning I had not received into my mind any clear un-derstanding of what the 'call of state' meant. It seems now that it is a kind of 'experience' meeting in which bankers join in the good, old-fashioned way, by delivering what comes nearest to their hearts "I regret to say that our state s very small representation here, but it is seldom that the name of Nebraska can be called, without some one being present who is willing to respond, and so I shall not hesitate to say something upon this occasion. "Nebraska has done fairly well in politics this year. We have been able to supply the nominees of two of the presidential tickets, one of whom is making considerable noise in the world just now. We were also able to furnish the presiding officers for two of the great conventions and I have not the slightest doubt but what we could filled all the offices to be voted for in at ually satisfactory manner.

"While we have done so well in politics I regret to say that I am not able to make so good a report in respect to banking. Only recently I have had occasion to investigate the statistics of Nebraska banks, by compar-ing the reports of July, 1892, with those of July, 1895, according to the published figures of the comptroller of the currency in respect to deposits. Here it is shown that Will Retain Their Pastor.

NORTH LOUP, Neb., Sept. 28.—(Special.) the Omaha banks lost during this period about $7.500,000; the banks outside of Omaha -At the regular quarterly church meeting about $11,500,000, making a total loss of which is about $30 per capita. "We have heard a great deal concerning ne quantitative theory of money, by which t is claimed that prices are regulated entirely by the volume of the circulation. If there is any basis of truth whatever in the theory, it can apply only to the volume of money in actual circulation at any given period, which it would be impossible to estimate. But in the figures I have mentioned there would seem to exist an excellent object lesson in the campaign of education which is now being so energetically pressed throughout the country. In Nebraska especially we have more financial theorists and teachers of the science of money to the square foot than exists in any other section of the United States.

"Some things we all agree upon. We all know that real estate and all other values are very much depressed. Now, instead of favoring legislation which would add a preciated currency to the volume of that now existing, and of which we could receive no portion as we possess no silver, it would seem much better for us to investigate the causes which have led to the disappearance of the money we once had and by assisting stores, in counting rooms and offices, in in the removal of these causes we might states which produce the same commodities, SUTTON, Neb., Sept. 28.—(Special.)—The that the withdrawal of this capital is the Central Nebraska reunion of the Old Soldiers primary cause of the low prices, not only will open here tomorrow. The committee of real estate and other securities, but also of farm produce. "It is certainly evident, that when these vestern states produce large crops-as they have done this year-and the farmers are unable to obtain the money with which to purchase cattle to feed their corn to, this enormous crop must be thrown upon the narket to bring what It will, and thus still urther depress the existing low prices. When the true facts are clearly reasoned out and recognized, which I believe is now being done by our people-the dark cloud of repudiation and dishonor which now overhangs us will roll away and the sunshine of prosperity will again gladden our homes and fireside "

VISIT TO LINCOLN'S TOMB At the close of the convention the bankers went on an excursion to Springfield, Ills. visiting the tomb of ex-President Lincoln While there, Mr. Yates was called upon for an address, and in speaking, he said: "Mr. President and Ladies and Gentlemen

To be called upon to deliver even a five-minute address at the tomb of Lincoln is a privilege which cannot be too highly prized although within the brief time allotted no adequate expression can be made of the sentiment which the occasion inspires. But we are reminded that the great patriot who lies here has himself limited and circumscribed the scope of all that may be uttered within these hallowed precincts—for using his own words—which proved so singularly unprophetic when applied to himself—we may well say, 'The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here,' but it can never forget what this man was who lles dead here.

Senator Thurston has returned from his somewhat arduous campaigning trip through the east. His voice is much wearled by continual speaking, but he has renewed confidence in the success of the republican ticket in November next.

"I regard it an absolute fact," said the senator yesterday morning, "that every state east of the Mississippi and north of Mason and Dixon's line will be "But it may well here be asked who are the common people from whom Lincoln sprang, and is it true that we as bankers. for McKinley. There is room for doubt. The majorities will not be close, but they will be decisive enough to settle the cheap money fallacy for at least another generation to come. I think it may be said with perfect confidence that since the first ten days after Mr. Bryan's nomination there have been no desertions from the sound money ranks, but instead the tide is flowing steadily toward them. Every week from now to election fields and factories-but among these must be included the men who handle the re-sults of all these activities when they mawill show the same gain and I believe the time has come when the result is not in

We are only the servants and stewards doubtful column, Senator Thurston declared that they would be republican by tremendous necessary to them as they are to us. We that they would be republican by tremen-as necessary to them as they are to us. We have done nothing to injure the interests of these people—if for no better reason than that in injuring them we should injure ourselves, and we protest against the of election, but he was convinced that the democratic steering committee had given up hope and was simply making what it knew would be a losing fight.

"There is strong ground for the expectation that Kentucky will go republican," added the senator. "General Buckner will carry a big vote to the sound money demo-cratic ticket and the democratic vote will be so equally split that the McKinley electors stand an excellent chance of election. Kansas is also likely to go for McKinley and will at least elect the republican con-gressional candidates."

After his meeting at the Coliseum this evening Senator Thurston will spend the remainder of the campaign in this state. He will go to Des Moines for one speech and to Kansas City for another, and possibly one each in North and South Dakota but he will spend a solid month in active campaigning in Nebraska.
