YOUNG PEOPLE HAVE IT THEIR OWN WAY

Some Trolley and Picnic Parties, Few Surprises and Some Coming and Going Make the Receord of a Dull Week.

It will be seen from even a casual survey of the brief record which follows that the events which lightly rippled the surface of society last week were brought about almost entirely by the doings of the younger people. whose zeal in the pursuit of pleasure is proof even against a summer temperature. Their elders have confined themselves pretty strictly to fattening the column of "People who come and go," or else to enjoying a wellearned rest in and about their own premises: although some have officiated as chaperone to parties of the young and innocent and are said on several occasions to have bad their

At one pienic, for example, it is reported that it taxed adroit brains and experienced bands to the utmost to sunder certain youthful couples who threatened to form a life attachment then and there; and signs are not wanting that in some cases the seeds of eternal devotion were sown in spice of all possible precautionary measures.

At a more or less fashionable resort in Omaba, where liquid refreshments are com-bounded and sold, there is to be had a minfuley, the most delectable, the most restora tive, the most completely informed with the spirit of generosity and peace and good will that ever entered into the mind of man to conceive or into his mouth to swallow and They are rich and insidious and of great potency; insomuch that the wise, in dealing with them, set a bound to their thirst and restrict themselves to two, mindful of the aphorism of a great war governor, who said: One is enough, two is not half enough, and

A certain counsellor, learned in the law, having been told of the manifold excellences of these juleps, was minded to try for him self if they might be all that his fancy had painted; but he forgot in the delight caused by the actual experience, that a limit of two had been imposed by the warning of his friend and by his own sober judgment and intention. Wherefore, in one mad hour, he encomparsed no less than four of these heavenly horns, which, as the merest child who reads these lines will readily see, was a rash thing to do, especially on an empty

He arose in due course of time, paid for his entertainment and called at a neighbor-ing hat store where, feeling unaccountably drowsy, he lay down on the floor behind the counter and went to sleep. Awaking some-what later he remembered that some fellows were coming to his house that evening to Day whist. He picked out a good serviceable motor car and found his three friend waiting for him at home. His apologies were indulgently received and the hands were t. But the others had sent out for a fourth lent host, and played whist for two hours

The following pastoral idyl has been contributed to the society column, and is sup-posed to have a local application which the parties implicated will probably be quick

There may have been a wealth of poetry in those bright summer nights, drenched with the flood of golden moonlight, but to them as they drove along the ridge over looking the city, nothing could be more in spiring than the dim, graceful outlines of the outstretched prairie and the great black canopy above, with its myriad shining lights. It was no wonder that it brought to his nd that old legend of the 'shooting stars' and the privilege which their mystic power Yet as they watched the jeweled heavens, it was strange how few 'shootingstars' there were among all those million twinkling gems. He was telling her the story, how the lantern of a brakeman, flagging a train from the top of a moving freight had served as a meteor, 'on such a with as this,' for some Jessiea and Lorenzo, when she exclaimed, 'Isn't it glorious! We can see the headlights of the trains on the belt line from this ridge for eleven miles around." It is evident that he also discovered the belt line, for as the man on the silent steed behind passed them, he noticed that she was driving. And above was the black canopy, with its myriad shining lights and below rumbling train glided through the

Doings of the Younger Set.

The presence in the city of a number of charming young girls from other places and the return to town of some dozens of college undergraduates of both sexes have been indirectly responsible for several pretty occasions during the past week. Of these the first in point of time was the tea given by Mrs. Francis W. Wessells and Miss Fred ericka Wessells on Monday afternoon in nor of their guest, Mizs Eliza Wessells. Many young men dropped in toward the close the entertainment, and the party was a delightfully informal one.

On Tuesday afternoon a very enjoyable trolley and picnic party was given by the college men at Fairmount park, in Council Bluffs. Mr. and Mrs. Winston chaperoned the affair, and the participants were: Misses Bingham, Violet Bingham, Higginson, Peck Hoagland, Allen, Elizabeth Allen, Ringwalt, Palmer, Nash, Squires, Heien Millard, Towle, Kilpatrick, Shiverick and Buck; and Messra Luther Kountze, Palmer, Floyd Smith, Wil bur Lake, Fonda, LeRoy Cummer, Burns, Mercer, Millard, Young, Morsman, Towle, Caldwell and Shiverick.

$70,000,000. I believe it a safe and conserva-tive estimate to say that the agricultural products of Nebraska alone in the year 1896 were worth $175,000,000, or considerably over $100 per capita. I read a report in yestertween $25,000,000 and $30,000 000 of its mort gaze indebtedness. I do not think this an exaggeration.

HARVEST OF 1897. "I do not think the crop of 1897 will be less than last year. Indeed, the prospect is that it will be much greater. The small grains are being harvested and can be deemed secure. The acreage is very large and the yield abundant. The corn never looked better in any July in my thirty years in the west, and all the signs of the times are favorable and evidence that prosperity has returned to bless us. It has come, and will, I believe, remain from natural causes and not as the result of political or legis-lative action. Good laws are undoubtedly lative action. Good laws are undoubtedly beneficial and bad ones injurious, but substantial prosperity cannot be enacted by law. Value cannot be legislated, but must be produced, and the west is producing value by the best possible methods—the cultivation of the soil under favorable climatic condi-

"Are the western cities and railroads Decidedly so. The commercial banks are in better condition than at any time since 1892. Real estate is firmer in the towns, more building in large cities like St. Pari at any time during the last four years, and both wholesale and retail dealers are re-porting improved trade. The commercial traveler is again largely in evidence. His occupation seemed to be gone in 1894-95, for his employer had called him 'off the road.' The movement of the great crops has given business to the railroads, which means the active use of idle cars and the employment of idle men. The increased value of stocks has the substantial basis of increased earnings. If the bears of the stock market bring down the figures it will be from some baseless war scare, or some sensational canard. "I think not. Much of that sentiment the country over was because of the depressed business condition and the people wanting a change were willing to take any nostrum that any well advertised political quack was ready to prescribe. With a presperous condition and good business, with increased manu facturing and idle hands taken out of empt ockets, there will be no desire to try the patent medicines of peripatetic hysicians who make up in glibness of tongu what they lack in soundness of brain. Samples Will Be Sent Free to All Who Write for It. Jas. P. Johnston of Ft. Wayne, Ind., afte:

battling for years against the mental and physical suffering of last manhood, has found the exact remedy that cures the trouble. He is guarding the secret carefully, but is willing to send a sample of the medicine to all men who suffer with any form of sexual weakness resulting from youthful ignorance, premature loss of memory and strength, weak back, varicocele and emaciation. The remedy has a peculiarly grainful effect of warmth and seems to act distributed by the second strength and development. rectly, giving needed strength and develop-ment wherever needed. The remedy cured Mr. Johnston completely of all the ills and troubles that came from years of misus-of the naturally ordained functions, and is said to be absolutely reliable in every case said to be absolutely reliable in every case.

A request to Mr. Jas. P. Johnston, Box. 1010. Ft. Wayne, Ind. stating that you would like a sample of his remedy for men will be complied with promptly and no charge whatever will be asked by him. He is very much interested in spreading the news of this great remedy and he is careful to send the sample securely scaled in a perfectly plain package, so that its recipient level have no fear of embarrassment of seed have no fear of embarrassment or Readers are requested to write without

For thirty years he has resided west of the Missouri river and he is now the general solicitor of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, which operates 7,000 miles of lines in the ten states west of Chicago. He is presumably, therefore, in a position to speak of conditions in the west as he finds them, and his reputation as a man of experience and sound judgment in public affairs precludes the assumption that he is far from the truth in his conclusions.

The Brooklyn Eagle of last Thursday gives Nebusaka a great advertisement in an interview with General Charles F. Manderson, who is making a brief stay in Brooklyn as the guest of Mrs. Camden C. Dike, 194 Collumbia heights. An Eagle reporter called upon the general and saked him to talk concerning business conditions in the far west. General Manderson said:

"The period of financial depression and commercial distress is fast passing away in the western states, especially so in the great and selfound as the states of the work of the products of Nebraska alone was over 300,000,000.

The year 1886 was one of agricultural section comprising the states of the products of the products

CHECKER CONTRACTOR CON The Woodward company enters upon its third week at the Creighton with two performances of "The Brothers" today, afternoon and evening. The patronage extended to this organization by the theater going peo-ple of Omaha has increased in volume with each performance, and the daily matinees have marked a decidedly growing attendance of those who would avoid the evening crowds. The Rays, whose noisy and rather vulgar specialty has yet succeeded in pleasing many patrons of the Creighton during the past week, give way today to a return engagement of Fred Hallen and Molly Fuller, who will appear at every performance, mati-nee and evening, in a new sketch called

The Artist and the Model. The members of the company by hard and constant practice together have attained a commendable degree of proficiency and team work, and the performances at present are the best ever given here under Mr. Woodward's direction. "The Brothers" will be repeated Monday. The fine old English com-"The Brothers" will be edy "Caste" will be the bill on Tuesday and Wednesday, and for the balance of the week the management announce 'East Lynne, a new romantic drama, which is supposed to have been written by Mr. Woodward though it is not openly claimed by him.
