DECISION IN LICENSE CASE

Question of Which Paper Goes Furthest Settled at Last.

EVENING BEE HAS LARGEST CIRCULATION

Three Judges Agree that it is the Paper in Which Notices of Appliention for License Should Be Published.

In the district court yesterday morning the decision of the judges who heard the appeal from the decision of the license board in the matter of the protest of N. P. Feil against the application for a license by the Kitchen Brothers' Hotel company was and occupied a seat in the rear of the court banded down. In the decision the content room. A few moments later Mrs. Weber arhanded down. In the decision the contention of The Omaha Evening Bee that it is the paper of largest circulation in Omaha the and Douglas county and under the law entitled to the publication of notices of liquor liceuse applications is completely sustained. and for a time they sat upon the hard bench.

The court, however, upholds Kitchen staring into vacancy. Finally Weber looked over at Mrs. Weber and she returned the Brothers in their plea that they did not know the law and the facts and allows them the license on the ground that their publication was made in good faith. To this finding Judge Fawcett dissents. The court also holds that the Daily World-Herald is one paper, although the court finds that The Evening Bee nas a larger bona fide circulation than the morning and evening editions of the World-Herald combined. In the District Court of Douglas County, Nebraska: In re Application of Kitchen Bros Hotel Company for Liquor License, Baker, J. This is a proceeding on appeal from the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners of the city of Omana, Neb., on the application of Kitchen Bros. Hotel company for a liquor license and a remonstrance. After consideration of all the evidence in the case, and the law applicable thereto, the court finds:

Frst: That the contents of the Morning World-Herald and the Evening World-Herald and the Evening world-Herald are substantially the same and that the words "morning" and "evening" are descriptive of the edition of the paper Rnown as the Daily World-Herald and that the morning and evening editions are sent descriptive of the edition of the paper Rnown as the Dally World-Herald and that the moraing and evening editions are sent to different subscribers. All concur.

Second: The court finds that the prima facie case made by the affidavit of publication of the notice and the circulation of the Daily World-Herald of Alam M. Griffith has been overcome by the testimony of Dwight Williams whose testimony is not of the most satisfactory kind, but, having been received without objection, is considered by the court and deemed of sufficient weight to overcome the strength of an affidavit as to the circulation of The Omaha Bee by a person who, in the nature of things, could not, and did not, know the facts as to the circulation of the said Omata Bee and could not therefore know that the circulation of the Daily World-Herald was greater than that of The Omaha Evening Ree, and there is no competent evidence or circumstances whatever to corroborate or support such affidavit. The affidavit being thus overcome by competent testimony, the burden is then upon the applicant for a license to establish by competent testimony that the Daily World-Herald had the largest circulation of sny newspaper in Douglas county, Neb. Dickinson, J., dissents.

On the question of establishing circulation the court is of the opinion that the only proper evidence would be the books and records of the Daily World-Herald. The testimony therefore of Thomas E, Harmon, concerning the circulation of the said World-Herald, was incompetent and is not considered by the court over the objection of the remonstrator, which leaves the ap-considered by the court over the objection of the remonstrator, which leaves the applicant for license with no competent testimony wintever to establish the extent of the circulation of the Daily World-Herald, Rosewater against Pinzenscham, 38 Neb., 327

The Omaha Evening Bee has established

The Omaha Evening Bee has established by competent evidence, to-wit: its books and records, that it had an average daily circulation from the fist to the 20th of December, 187, of about 8,450 copies.

The court therefore finds for the purposes of this case that The Omaha Evening Bee was a newspaper published in Douglas county, Neb., of greater circulation than the Omaha Daily World-Herald, and that said notice for liquor license was not published in a newspaper having the largest circulation in said county. All concur.

Third: The court further finds that the applicant acted in good faith in making its choice of the newspaper in which to publish its notice of its application for a liquor license. The court therefore affirms the order of the Omaha Board of Fire and Police Commissioners in granting a license to the applicant, Kitchen Bros, Hotel company, Fawcett, J., dissents, Lamber against Stevens, 23 Neb., 283, Rosewater against Pinzenscham, 38 Neb, 838.

The said Omaha Board of Fire and Police Commissioners is therefore ordered to issue a license to the applicant, Kitchen Bros, Hotel Commissioners is therefore ordered to issue a license of the applicant, Kitchen Bros, Hotel Commissioners is therefore ordered to issue a license of the applicant Kitchen Bros Hotel The said omana Board of Fire and Foliate Commissioners is therefore ordered to issue a license to the applicant, Kitchen Bros. Hotel company, to sell malt, spirituous and vinous liquors, in accordance with its application, Fawcett, J., dissents.

Undertakes to Inflate Himself with Illuminating Gas. T. E. Hill, a stockmen from Wayne, Neb. possessed . uch an intense desire to explore the great beyond that he made no less than three attempts upon his life Friday night and yesterday morning. Hill is about 45 years of age and says he is unmarried.

After rounding up the town Friday night Hill, in company with another stockman, J. W. Haines of Carroll, Neb., registered at the Arcade hotel, and both men went to sleep in room 67. This was about 1 o'clock. Some time between this hour and 2 p. m. Hill got out of bed, and crossing the hall, took possession of room 55. After carefully turning the gas on at full head, Hill turned in dressed in a portion of his clothes. About 4 o'clock one of the porters possing through the hall detected the odor of escaping gas, and breaking into Hill's room found him breathing hard. The jet was turned off, the window raised and the eleeping man aroused sufficiently to preclude his life being in denger. Shortly after 6 o'clock Pete Rasmussen, a bell boy, was passing through the hall when the smell of gas again floated over the transom of the stockman's room. Forcing his way in Rasmussen found Hill unconscious from the gas and hurriedly aroused other inmates of the place. The window was again raised, the gas turned off and the would-be suicide given a new start in life by his friends. He was again left alone with his conscience and the means still within his power to make a job for the Hill evidently took the hotel people at their word, for they had no sooner dis-appeared than he shut down his window, turned on the gas once more and prepared to turned on the gas once more and prepared to die. He had nearly crossed the great divide about 8 o'clock when an industrious bell boy again stopped the deal and called the police. Hill had absorbed so much of the deadly gas that it took several hours to resuscitate him. He at length came to, how-ever, and instead of expressing gratitude for his deliverance charged Officer Connell, who had been working over him, with having had been working over him, with having picked his pockets.

When questioned as to his motives for wanting to die Hill refused to give any ex-planation stating that it was "no one's business but his own if he wanted to shuffle off." Hill came to South Omaha last Thursday with a carload of cattle and is supposed to have sold them for a considerable sum of money, judging from papers found in his packets. This morning he had but 60 cents in his possession, and the rest of the money is supposed to have been spent in a debauch.
Drink, together with the loss of the money, is supposed to have been the stockman's source of trouble from which he sought release by way of the gas route.

returned to the hotel, where the visitors were entertained at luncheon by the executive committee, while the object of the visit of the Wyoming delegation was discussed and an understanding reached re-garding the exhibits to be made by the state, GOVERNOR RICHARDS' IDEA.

Previous to the meeting with the executive mmittee Governor Richards discussed the situation in the rotunda of the Milard.
"Our people want to make a state exhibit," said the governor, "and we have made such arrangements us are prosible in order to do so. We are here now to learn ust what is expected of us so that we may know whether we will be able to comply with the conditions. Our legislature failed to make any appropriation for an exhibit, and we are compelled to rely upon private con-After discussing the matter among ourselves we hit upon the only plan that seems practicable and that is to have each county in the state contribute its proortion of $7,500, the apportionment being based on the taxable valuation of the prop-

"The $7,500 we will ralse," continued the governor, "will be barely sufficient to pay for installing the exhibit and taking care of it during the available. to depend upon private enterprise to con-tribute the material constituting the exhibit, but I do not have any fears on that score. The state has no collective exhibit to speak of, although we have a large quantity of agricultural material which was left from the exhibit made at Chicago. This consists of spring. grain in sealed glass jars, grasses and similar This can be utilized and the balance of the exhibit will be made up of articles illustrating our other resources. We no collection of material grown last year, and can only augment the Chicago collection by such material as grows between now and June. We will have a good exhibit of our other resources, however. These will include specimens from our seda beds, oils, stone of various kinds, ores and numerous minerals.

WILL HELP BUILD THE ARCH. 'We have a variety of building stone, an that reminds me of the request of Governor Holcomb for stone for the Arch of States you are going to build on the exposition ground:
As goon as I received his letter I made i public and have requested the numero quarries in our state to supply me with sam-ples of their stone and I expect these will be ready within a very few days. Wyoming will contribute her quota of stone to the arch and we have some very fine varieties from which your perole may select. I think that idea is a good one and I believe it will grove very opular among the states in this section.
"I am glad I was asked to supply stone to "I am glad I was asked to supply stone to the arch instead of being asked to pick out our two prettiest women," remarked the governor, jokingly. "That is quite an original idea for a medal, but it means trouble for the man in Wyoming who is called on to pass on the beauty of our women. We have so any that can be properly classed under that heading that it is no easy mat-ter to select the two prettiest, and and I am glad Prof. Graves was assigned to that job instead of having it to do myself. We have the women, though, and if the professor ever succeeds in passing the ordeal we will do our share in that direction as well as in every other where we are called upon. State Engineer Mead will probably have direct charge of Wyoming's exhibit, he hav ing acted in that capacity during the World's fair, having charge of the collection and installation of the state's exhibit. He has taken a prominent part in arousing interest in the matter of state representation and Governor Richards stated that his experience in that line makes him a most valuable man in the present emergency. Prof. Graves is president of the Wyoming State university and is also vice president for the exposition for that state. He has taken an active interest in arousing the people of that section to the necessity of having an exhibit at the exposition. CONCLUSIONS SATISFACTORY. After the luncheon with the executive com mittee the Wyoming committee had a lengthy conference with Manager Bruce of the Department of Exhibits, during which the vorious phases of the situation were carefully canvassed and a complete understanding reached which proved entirely sat sfactory to all concerned. The visitors ex ressed themselves as more than pleased with he treatment accorded them by the expesi ion management. They will leave for Wyoming this afternoon, and say that the re-port they will make to their constituents will increase the already intense interest the people of Wyoming have in the exposition. Committee Meeting Fails. The Chinaman said he did not have that much money in his clotaes, whereat Morris appeared to be much offended. Then he attempted to stand the Celestial off for the amount of his bill, so Lee says, and as this went no better than the first proposal Morris then found fault with the work. The Chinaman agreed to do the work over again and this was done, but when Morris again called for his property he found that the bill had also expanded.
