CHICAGO, Jan. 29 .- The Post's Washing ton correspondent sends the following exclusive interview with Chairman Hitt of the house committee on foreign relations:

"The gist, in my opinion, of the whole Hawaiian question, lies in the strategical importance of the little group, considered as tions facing our western clast. There is a strong resemblance in this case to the Bermudas, except that the Bermudas are not so commanding. That is, there are other islands to the south of them which would, is case of conflict, to some extent take their place with foreign powers even if we posseared the Bermudas.
