PROGRAM FOR LINCOLN DAY

Enggestions to Echools for Celebrating the Anniversary.

CALCULATED TO INCULCATE PATRIOTISM

State Superintendent Jackson Sends Out a Circular on the Subject-Interial in the Public Library.

Lincoln day is the subject of a pamphlet which has just been issued from the Department of Public Instruction of Nebraska, setting forth to the teachers and scholars of the state why the birthday anniversary of the martyred president should be generally and fittingly observed. In this connection it is suggested by State Superintendent W. R. Jackson that this year the public schools observe February 11 with appropriate exercises, since the 12th inst, falls on Saturday and the schools will not be in session on that day.

The pamphlet says that the purposes of the special observance of Lincoln's birthday are to maintain in grateful remembrance the illustrious American and to foster such a spirit of patriotism in the education of the children of the public schools as shall result in building up noble manhood and womanhood. The members of the Grand Army of the Republic, of the Woman's Relief corps, of the Sons and Daughters of Veteraus are especially invited by the state superintendent to assist in making this day one long to be remem-

For busy teachers who may not have time to arrange a program for the observance of Lincoln day the superintendent presents the following suggestions:

following suggestions:

Song, "Battle Hymn of the Republic."
Reading, letter of state superintendent.
Recitation, "Lincoin."
Biography—Early life of Lincoin: His father—His Christian mother—The poverty of the early home in Kentucky—The teachings of his mother—The book he read—How he studied arithmetic—Moving to Indiana—Death of his mother—His first letter and the funeral sermon—The kind of people among whom Lincoin was reared—His step-motter—Splitting rails—Clerking in a store—Stories showing his honesty—His education. Lincoin as president: Election—The strong men of his cabinet—The difficult problem he was to work out—How he strove to maintain the union throughout the war—His ordering days of fasting and prayer—His treatment of persons calling at the White House to see him—Close of the war—His relection—His death—Thoughts of his administration.

of Mortal Be Proud?"

Unveiling—Secure a good picture of Lincoln, a large one if possible, and place it on an 'easel or table in a prominent place in the front part of the schoolroom. Drape the picture and stand with evergreens and flowers and let the folds of the national flag hang over the whole. Select a pupil to deliver the unveiling speech and, at the proper moment, gracefully remove the flag and bring into view the picture.

Reading—Extract from Geitysburg speech. Remarks by an old soldier or patron.

Reading, from the oration delivered at the unveiling of Lincoln's statue.

Song, "America."

Song, "America."

This program may be lengthened or shortened to suit the conditions of any school and the superintendent says that patriotic songs should be a prominent feature of the enter-tainment. He also suggests that in the exercises for Lincoln day the pupils should wear badges of red, white and blue, or bouquets of flowers to correspond with the bouquets of flowers to correspond with the national colors. Have a profusion of flags draped about the room. Mottoes like "Lincoln," "Emancipator," "Savior of His Country," etc., may be made of evergreen or colored paper and hung upon the walls of the school room. Invitations should be sent patrons and friends, bidding them to wit ness the exercises. In the superintendent's pamphlet is also contained material to assist the pupils largely in their preparation for the exercises.

At the public library of Omaha, in the Byron Reed collection, are to be found several interesting relies of Lincoln, along with those of Washington and other great men, which, with the approach of Lincoln day, are of more than passing interest. In the collection there is an autograph of Lincoln which was written at Washington on April 26, 1862, and the following note which appears in the emaccipator's own handwriting: "Secretary of State: Please see and con-verse with General Kimmell, who is a state senator of Frederick, Maryland. A. Lincoln September 5, 1861." The appointment of Cornelius A. Walbern as deputy postmaster of Philadelphia, made April 20, 1861, is among the best preserved documents of state in the collection and bears Lincoln's signature. Many medals of the martyred president in bronze and silver of all sizes and designs are also to be seen in the collection.

DAUGHERTY'S HERD OF HEREFORDS. How a Fine Bunch of Grade Cattle Has Been Matured.

Stockmen who were in the city yesterday discussed with keen interest the sale of the Daugherty herd of Herefords to Tinnin & Irwin of Texas, the announcement of which was made through The Bee last Tuesday. From a reliable source it is now learned that in the big deal Matt Daugherty re-ceived for his herd close to $38 per head, and the price is considered not at all out of the way for the grade of cattle which changed hands. Seven hundred head of cat-tle were disposed of in the deal, the transaction involving the round sum of at least

The foundation for this herd was laid by Mr. Daugherty in 1886. Then he purchased 403 head of Panhandle helfers which had been brought up to Nebraska on the last trail drive to Ogalalia by the pioneer cattle firm of Grome & Crumbaugh. These helfers. together with 1,600 head of 2-year-old steers, had been taken to Crete and fed during the winter of 1885, and Mr. Daugherty bought them in the feed lot landing them on his registered shorthorn bulls secured from the Waveland herd of John Fitzgerald, then ter it will undoubtedly take place as he tered shorthorns. Then he brought into the breed a cross of Galloway and another core of Polled Angus bulls. The next cross was thoroughbred registered Hereford bulls bred master Woodard says: "I have no doubt at Albany, Mo., and the last two crosses but that we will move into the new building have been Herefords, on the foundation as on the 22d, that is, providing no further had already been outlined. This brings the herd up to the condition it was in when the sale was made, and those who have seen the stock say that there is not a finer herd of stock say that there is not a finer herd of the condition it was in when the furniture on time. It will be a holiday and we will be obliged to keep the office open for only about an hour in the morning. The cattle in the west than this one.

Since he started this herd, in 1886, Mr. Carriers will also make their regular morning delivery, but after this we shall get worth of cattle. The 2-year-old feeders of them to carry over their cases and help in this bunch sold off the range at the South transferring the other furniture. Of course, Omaha market on May 17, 1897, at $5 per 100, weighed at the yards. The purchaser was laughed at for paying such a price. He did not put these cattle on feed until the following August, and when he returned them to the South Omaha yards last month big consignment of railroad matter ready, them to the South Omaha yards last month they weighed nearly as much again as at the which is due to leave the office at about 6. time of their purchase. The Chicago live I think that the best time to move would be stock journals took particular note of this between the hours stated. As to the mandeal, and commenting upon it, said that the stock dealers at the South Omaha market were going insane; that in support of this assertion the bunch of feeders in question brought $5 per 100 in the market, while a herd of finished Polled Angus cattle that was in the market at the same time, weighing 380 pounds, brought only $4.80 per 100. The purchasers of the Daugherty here Herefords have decided to range the cattle in Sheridan county.

Dunn and the garbage contractor and the consideration of the bids for furnishing the city with street sweeping machines were postponed by the Advisory Board until next week in order that acton might be taken by the full board. Building Inspecor Butler was out of the city and Mayor Moores was busily occupied in sign ing the January salary warrants.

The owner of the building at 1320 Douglas street, which was damaged by fire the other day, complained that the building inspector had refused to issue a permit to repair the building. The building is a frame structure and was condemned by Building Inspector Harte a year ago, but the owners insisted that they would not tear their building down until similar treatment was accorded to the owners of other frame buildings in the business district. The board refused to act on the matter, holding that it belonged entirely to the building inspector.

the East Finds a Ready Echo at Omaha. The egg market has dropped down another otch consequent upon the break in eastern markets. This is the time of the year to eat eggs. It is still too early to commence putting stock in store and last year's stocks are all cleaned up, so that there are none out strictly fresh eggs in the market. The production of eggs is running con-siderably ahead of the consumption in this state, so that surplus stocks have to be shipped to the eastern markets, with the result that any break in the New York market is at once reflected in the local price.

COLIDITY is a desirable thing. No man wants to do business with a weak bank. The history of business everywhere shows that the stronger the concern financially the cheaper it can sell goods. Special discounts, special prices, special offerings of all kinds come the way of the store that can buy large quantities at one time. Manufacturers do not go around with a lantern looking for small stores. A recent order of ours called for nine thousand yards of one kind of cloth for one kind of a suit. It took a mill four weeks to turn it out. We bought that suit low of necessity. We buy everything low. Perhaps we don't deserve so much credit for selling things cheap after all.

A Story of A Wolf in a Lamb's Pelt. Another existing proof of how some angelle self sacrificing high for and who never, never takes advantage of those who are trusting to his scrupulous integrity, for the best at least cast. A public notice, directed to whom it may concern is before us. As an advertisement it is entitled to first prize for sarcasm even though it is directed to us. But for logic it takes the "booby. However, it sounds honest, especially when it rends thus... "Getting rich minded merchant prince, who worships integrity if it is well paid is what we are after" and "what we want is the public coin, etc." winding up with a "great shirt offer, which supposed to be an extra big value for 25c. Of ye gods and little fishes! How these prince merchants protect the innocent from being cheated and robbed, and what a safe and protected store they operate. Here is a living proof of it.

That very identical shirt-same article with double yoke, double collar and cuffbands, made in the same factory here in Omaha, likely cut and made by the same shirt operators same everything, even same in factory lot number, which proves that these shirts were manufactured for any store who choose to buy them, and not to any one's particular order, as the "ad" claims. These extra big value 35c shirts are, and have been selling here, at the Guarantee, the store, that supposed to be, according to these noble self sacrificers,

At only Twenty-Five Cents Each.

If it is not the identical shirt we agree to make you a present of full dozen for the trouble of proving. The workingman who is advised to keep away from this confidence store, saves more than one-third of his money, which otherwise goes toward making the rich richer and the paor poorer.
