York City, will have none of her. Instead she has brought to this country with her a man servant, whom she calls a courier-valet, and who is part of her establishment in Paris, where she makes her home. The young fellow is a sturdy German boy, and is learning to speak English, and a being who can do more things than a juggler, and has more of the virtues of service than any article in the advertising placards of the elevated train.

"How did I come to have a man instead of the time-honored maid?" said Miss Freeman. "That is easy enough told—he is a better servant—men make better servants in the duties that this one has to meet than the best maids that ever were born. Why?

The fuliness of the front is gathered or pleated into a small space at both neck and waist line. The back has a slight fuliness under the pointed yoke. The meck is finished for wearing plain collars and cravats in tailor style. The shirt sleeve, with few gathers at the top and wrist, has a broad, straight cuff. The appropriate finish of this waist is a jaunty leather belt. The proper cut of the waist can be obtained from the cut patterns furnished by Harper's Bazar, where it appears Quantity

In Warsaw, Poland, in France and in England they have valets, and it is such a common thing that no one ever pays any attention to it, and no one ever comments on it." Our American queens and daughters of crowns and barons may be glad to learn a Parisian method of advertising nobility. Instead of the old baskets and vases of flowers, autocratic mistresses now adorn their tables with heraldic crowns. Thus, a baron's board rose-bush branches of various kinds, with their thorns and blossoms left on. Handsomest of all is the closed crown. It is usually very large and made of orchids. It is placed by itself on a vermilion epergne, all the rest of the table being bare of side slippers can very easily be made at home. The leather is of any color that is desired, and it is often a very gay one, and is mounted over the toe of a lamb's wool insole. A bit of fur finishes the edge, and thus is evolved a comfortable toe slipper. A comparatively small piece of the skin makes two or three pairs and the expense of both money and effort is very trifling. A woman who has carefully studied the effects of light at her dinners says that unshaded candles in high old-fashioned candelabra that branch out in many directions are absolutely the perfection of light for a table, and are, too, a most becoming light to the faces of the guests gathered around it. The candelabra should be tall enough to carry the lights fairly high. The pretty caudle shades so much in use are decorative to the furnishings of the table, but they prevent the most effective and becoming light.
