MONEY SPENT FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Appropriation for Repaying the State for Expenditures by the Territorial Legislature_History of the Old Claims.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 3 .- (Special.)-The announcement recently made of the appropriation of $7,764 to reimburse Wyoming for expenditures made in protecting the Yellowstone National park seems in itself a dry and unimportant item. There is, however, an entertaining history connected with the passage of the bill. By an act of congress approved in March, 1872, the Yellowstone National park was reserved as a public domain. In the following May the secretary of the interior appointed N. N. Langford superintendent, the appointee serving in that capacity without compensation until April 18, 1877, when P. W. Norris succeeded him. This latter gentleman in his report to the Interior department, dated October 20, 1877. tells of the preciutions taken to preserve the park from the ravages of fire and the depredations of vandats. This "appeal" shows the little protection then afforded the park by the national government. After this, from time to time, small appropriations were made by congress, and finally in 1882 compensation for the superintendent and his employes was provided for. In 1883 a wave of public interest broke over the country and congress appropriated $40,000 for the "pro-tection, preservation and improvement of the park." In this amount was included com-pensation for the superintendent and his em-ployes. Roads were then built, the wonders of the park were made known to the public and platform. travel and the number of visitors increased Captain tremendously. Still the government neglected to provide the necessary civil force required to protect the park. Then, upon request of the Interior department, the secretary of war, on April 16, 1886, detailed a troop of cavalry under Captain Moses Harris for service in the park. The captain became the acting superintendent and since then the troops have served as park police PECULIARLY SITUATED.

The Yellowstone park is peculiarly sit-uated; it was carved out of three states, fifteen-sixteenths being taken from Wyo-ming. It was remote from Washington and over 1,000 miles in the ordinarily traveled route from the state capitol at Cheyenne. It can be readily seen that ordinary laws state, justly proud of the park and loyal to the government, on being appealed to from all sides, in 1884 appropriated $2.770 on the park and dialogues, which were delivered to the park and sides, in 1884 appropriated $2.770 on the park and by Miss Miller on the piano.

Then the children came in for their share of the entertainment. They had learned speeches and dialogues, which were delivered to the park and by Miss Miller on the piano. and peace officers would not suffice for the needs of the park. It was then that this mense amount of work done by our representatives in congress to secure an appropria-tion to satisfy Wyoming's claims. The tele-gram announcing the passage of the appro-priation tells of a successful culmination of the endeavors of Senators Warren and Clark.
Worth noting is the fact that the suggestion to protect the park by legislative action was made to the territorial officers by Senator Clark, who was then the prosecuting attor Clark, who was then the prosecuting at-torney of Uinta county. On the passage of the bill it was transmitted to the secretary of the interior—then the Hon. H. M. Teller— by Congressional Delegate M. E. Post.

ALIMONY NEED NOT BE PAID. Refusal in Oregon Does Not Mean a

Jail Term. PORTLAND, Ore., April 3 .- (Special.)-Judge Cleland has decided that the payment of alimony in divorce cases could not be chforced by imprisonment for contempt, where the party refused to pay, though well able to do so. The decision was invoked by attempted contempt proceedings in the cases of Robertson against Robertson and Henderson against Henderson. In delivering his opinion, Judge Cleland stated that he could only enforce the statute as he found it, and the proceedings were penal in their na-ture, every intendment must be given in taver of the party likely to be punished. There is no state where contempt proceedings are employed, but what gives special power to the courts to so punish. In Oregon there is a general statute which allows courts to punish for the disobedience of or-ders or decrees, but there is also another statute which declares in effect that courts cannot punish as for contempt where the order or decree is for the payment of money. Alimony being an order for the payment of money, the party in whose favor the order way of execution.

This decision sets at rest a much-mooted question. The legality of imprisonment for the nonrayment of allmony has been ques-tioned and doubted by attorneys in general. It has not hitherto been tested, and Judge Cleland's findings, it is said, meet with the general approval of the bar. In California and some other states, contempt proceedings may be brought, but in every instance the power is given by a special power-granting statute. In both the cases at bar, the defendants were required to pay certain speci-fied sums monthly, but had falled for the last three months to pay the stated installments, and hence the proceedings.

PATRIOTISM AMONG THE ALEUTS Washington's Birthday Celebrated by the Natives of Alaska.

Perhaps the strangest Washington's birthday celebration in the whole land this year was held on February 22 at Unalaska, says the Seattle Post Intelligencer. The Alcuts are intensely patriotic, although farther away from the capital that bears the name of the "father of his country" than any other of his children. Especially is this true this year, for one of the finest cutters in the United States revenue service has been opending the winter with them. With the assistance of the officers of the cutter Bear and the whites at Unalaska the Aleut chil-dren had a great celebration this year, the news of which was brought to Seattle on the steamer Bertha. Several weeks before the 22d the fifty Aleut children that attend the government school at Unalaska began to prepare for their Washington's birthday celebration. The brighter ones learned speeches and the entire school practiced on the choruses that they were familiar with. Miss Miller had charge of the program, and to her is due a great deal of credit for the successful is-sue of the affair. She was promised the hearty co-operation of the officers of the Bear, and many of the flags used in decorat-ing the Jesse Lee Mission home came from

he cutter. The celebration was held at the Jersie Lee home, as the most suitable place for the gathering. The home had been newly papered and was elaborately decorated. The large school room was decorated with flags. On a platform with a red, white and blue background were seated the American guests and entertainers. Fifty Aleut children were seated in three rows of seats in front of the

The company employing the next largest number of men is the Deadwood and Delaware, in the smelter, mines and lime quarry, the number being 373. The Golden Reward company comes next with 229 men employed at the chlorination works and the employed by the smaller companies in the mines and mills. With the present schedule of wages this army of men carns $11,322 every day, $339,675 every month and $4,076,-100 a year. At the same rate of increase in labor for the next ten years that has been made in the last year it is estimated that at the end of the century fully 10,000 men will be needed to work the mines and mills, who would annually earn the sum of $9,000.

Suggestion as to How the City May B Beautified.

OMAHA, Neb., April 1.-To the Editor of that fully 3,500 votes will be cast Tuesday. The Bee: I arrived in the city from the east during the course of the state fair last year. Viewed from the Tenth street viaduct the flags floating from the tops of many buildings presented a most attractive sight. So much so that nearly every one in the crowd of assengers had some remark to make about t; residents to congratulate each other or the gala appearance of the city and strangers to inquire what the occasion was. Still probably not more than one prominent build ing in five was decorated with a flag.

The people who come to the exposition will mostly enter the city by way of the Tenth mostly enter the city by way of the Tenth street viaduct and from that point get a birdseye view of the city. The first impression is going to be good or bad, and whichever it may be it will take a good deal to wipe out this first impression. If when visitors enter the city they see flags and banners waying from the tops of all the high buildings it will be taken by each as a first later and and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame—keep a force busy all the time at our light later and the state you and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame—keep a force busy all the time at our light later and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame—keep a force busy all the time at our light later and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame—keep a force busy all the time at our light later and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame—keep a force busy all the time at our light later and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame—keep a force busy all the time at our light later and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame—keep a force busy all the time at our light later and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame—keep a force busy all the time at our light later and your home—perhaps you have a picture that needs framing—we frame buildings, it will be taken by each as a sort Izard street factory—our reasonableness of welcome to him or her; while, if the town in charges is what makes the business puts on no external appearance of welcome it is sure to have a depressing effect on the

One may talk all one pleases about the edu cational design of the exposition, but the fact remains that the vast majority of the visitors will come for a good time. The educational effect will be very great, but it that is at this time a bona fide member of | will be incidental. From an artistic standpoint the exposition is going to be the most beautiful ever held. The design and arrangement of the buildings on the grounds have not been approached in any former exposition, but this will not satisfy the people. Five or six hours a day at most will be spent there. The city must put on its holiday garb and keep it on from June to November No decoration is so effective, so artistic and at the same time so dignified as flags and banners waving from the tops of high build-ings. Many of the highest buildings in the town are not supplied with flag staves. Every building of three stories and upwards should float a flag or banner of some kind during the exposition. Nothing will give the visitor such a favorable first impression (and the first impression of the city is of first importhis mind the idea of a hearty welcome.

If anyone has any doubt as to what the appearance would be if such an arrangement were carried out, let him stand on any of our principal streets and imagine a flag waving over every building of three stories and up-ward, but from no point can as good an idea

SOUTH OMAHA NEWS.

Everything will be made ready today for the election which will occur on Tuesday. City Clerk Carpenter worked nearly all day yesterday preparing the blanks and ballot boxes for the different precincts and today Street Commissioner Ross will commence the erection of the voting booths. The polls will be open from 9 o'clock Tuesday morning until 7 o'clock in the evening at the following

First ward: First precinct, James Foramong the people of the Sucker state an in | Collins' music store, Twenty-fourth street,

Second ward: First precinct, H. Kennedy's building, Twenty-fourth street, between N Commissioner Kingman, who has direct streets; Third precinct, Morrill's feed store, charge of the furnishing and decorating of the building, rays it will be furnished lux-> streets. Fourth ward: Old school house, Thirty-third and K streets. According to the registration Saturday the vote will lack only nine of being 4,000. This is a much larger increase than was anticipated. The total registration by precincts, with the increase over last fall is as folfrom one precinct or from one ward to another. The largest registration previous to this time was two years ago this spring when 3,313 voters registered. It is estimated by members of the republican city central committee and others familiar with politics Tonight the republicans will hold a last grand rally at Blum's hall, Twenty-sixth and

James H. VaoDusen will address the voters at this meeting, as well as all of the candi-dates. Another meeting will be held during the evening at Koutsky's hall in the Second ward, at which some of the candidates will Grading Will Begin. Within a few days a great deal of grading will commence in this city and it has been suggested by a number of people who live on paved streets that the grading contractors should be compelled to obey the ordinance in relation to the hauling of dirt. The ordinance specifies that none but wagons with tight boxes shall be used, but this is now totally disregarded and any kind of a wegon is used. No attention is paid to an end gate and consequently a great deal of the dirt with which the wagon is loaded is strewn upon the streets. There is practically no system of street cleaning here and so when these wagons leave a trail of dirt it stays there until the wind blows it away or a good hard rain washes it into the sewers.

Property owners appear to be in favor of the scheme in vogue in Omaha, whereby the contractors are compelled to obtain permits for hauling dirt along paved streets. When such a permit is issued the contractor is required to deposit a sum equal to $1.50 per block and this amount is not refunded until the streets through which the wagons have passed are cleaned to the satisfaction of the regulation could be enforced here with the result that the paved streets would be kept much cleaner at less expense to the city than under the present losse system. No permit is required of the contractors now and they are allowed to haul dirt anywhere they choose without being molested. Spasmodic attempts have been made to compel conpiece of work, but little has been accomplished in this line. Even if the ordinance requiring tight boxes was enforced there would be less dirt spilled on the streets, but under the permit system every particle would have to be removed from the pavement be-fore the cash deposit was relinquished by the city. This matter will more than likely be called to the attention of the council soon after election.
