To the Honorable the City Council of the City of Omaha: Gentlemen—Since the last meeting of your honorable body news has been received of the death of Colonel R. H. Wilbur, which occurred at Grand Junction, Co'o., March 31 last. Colonel Wilbur was one of the pioneers of Omaha, having located here in 1866, and he was prominently identified with the city's progress from that time until 1899, when he removed to Colorado. In 1875 he was elected mayor of the city of Omaha and served in that capacity until 1879. He was a man of energy, courage and public spirit and he left the impress of his character upon the municipal affairs of the city. Before the rebellion Colonel Wilbur was an officer of the Seventh New York militia and Governor Morgan appointed him as a staff officer under General J. W. Geary soon after the beginning of the war. He served with distinction during the war, receiving a gunshot wound in the shoulder at the battle of Antietam. His wound troubled him a great deal since the war and finally caused his death. The funeral of Colonel Wilbur was held last Friday at Grand Junction, Colo., and was conducted by the Grand Army of the Republic.

SOUTH OMAHA NEWS.

The city council, as now organized, has two sets of committees, one appointed by the president and the other by the mayor. Last night the new council met for the purpose of organizing, a big crowd being present to see the fun. Immediately after roll call Trainor nominated P. J. Barrett for president of the council and Kelly seconded the motion. Clingen placed Sam Mort in nomination for the same position and this motion was seconded by Wear. By a vote of 5 to 3 Barrett was declared the choice for president and Clingen's nomination of Mort was with drawn.

President Barrett then announced the following committees and followed the reading by a motion to confirm:

City Attorney Montgomery was called upon or an opinion and quoted a section of law thich provided that on the first Tuesday after the election the council must meet to organize, and further it was the duty of the mayor to preside at all meetings of the coun-cil. The attorney held that the mayor had the right to appoint the committees. Mr. Kelly give his version of the affair, which was to the effect that the mayor had no part in the organization and that the precident should have the appointing of the committees. At this juncture Mayor Ensor stated that he was willing to back down when he was shown that the position he had taken was wrong, until that time he would insist naming the committees.

Without hesitating a moment the judge sentenced the men to thirty days in the county jail and then in the same breath he suspended the sentence providing they left the city at once. It was all done so quickly that the lawyers who came to make fun were nonplussed. No one appreciated their pre-dicament more than Judge Babcock and he sent for a box of cigars, which he passed around among the members of the bar and

C. F. Weller. Chairman C. S. Hayward of the executive committee, remarked upon the great good that has been done the city by the Commercial club in a variety of ways during the last year. He urged upon the members of the club the necessity of continuing this progress during the coming year. He then introduced as the toastmaster C. F. Weller, who, after a few preliminary remarks, called upon Major T. S. Clarkson as the first speaker.

As a result the speaker stated that Omaha from a newcomer's standpoint is all right.

In his response to "Omaha in 1860," Captain Palmer spoke in a very interesting man-ner of the early days of Omaha and Nebraska, relating ancodotes from his own ex-perience in this pioneer time. In concluding he prophesied a great future for the city, even surpassing the years that have elapsed since his arrival. Peter E. Her was also called upon to espond to the same toast and related some

This stupendous progress of civilization and property is to be ex-emplified in the coming exposition, which is only to be the marking of an era of greater future development. G. M. Lambertson of Lincoln was to have respended to the toast of "Cur Prosperity." In his absence his place was taken by E. J. Cornish. The latter spoke in an optimistic tone of the future of the transmississippi region, saying that the solution of the water or irrication problem would make it the garden epot of the world. Omaha, as the center of this region, is bound to have a proportionate share of the prosperity. an indication of this the speaker alluded to the excellent business that is being done to day by the city merchants. To continue this prosperity it is necessary to see to the build-ing up of the state and interests of this city. Mr. Cornish deprecated the possibility of war, not only on account of delaying this presperity, but on account of the necessary lors of life. GOOD TIDINGS HOME FOR WOMEN Institution Which is Gaining Foothold in Omaha.

After twenty-two years of work among the poor in New York, Chicago and other cities, Miss A. E. Benedict has come to the conclusion that more effort should be exerted to prevent mothers who are compelled to support themselves from being separated from their children and to carry out this purpose she has established the Good Tidings home at 2803 and 2805 North Twenty-fifth street. The home is under the control of the Good Tidings company, which is designed to carry on other kinds of charitable work also as soon as its means permit. Any woman who wants work and is out of money will be received there, where she will be given an opportunity to work, and, if she proves efficient, a position will be found for her outside of the home. Women who are not com-petent to accept positions will be trained in the home and helped to a means of earning an honest living.

Miss Benedict feels that the opportunities the home offers to women with children are of especial importance, as there is no other place in the city where they can go. Children without mothers will also be received if they cannot gain admission to any of the other institutions in the city. The work provided in the home for these women is of various kinds. Washing, sewing and baking are done now, and weaving will be introduced as soon as looms are secured. The products of the home are to be placed on the market by the Good Tidings company and in this way they hope to make it self-supporting. It is the purpose of this company to assist is given and every effort will be made to avoid pauperizing persons who are helped.

Miss Benedict is assisted in the work by Miss Nichol of the Moody institute, Mr. and Mrs. Sleeper, who came recently from the Woman's Christian Temperance Union pital at Kearney, and several other helpers.

It is not the amount of work we do, but the amount of vital force expended, together with a lack of sufficient and proper nourishment and rest that injure health. Men are slow to admit that overwork sometimes kills. Some men who never go into vicious dissipation, use up their energies just as fast by overwork or late hours; and nearly all women are compelled by circumstances to use up their vital powers beyond all reason. The man or woman who gets run down and in ill health from overwork needs the special strengthening and invigorating support that is always obtained from tha use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. It is fool for the worn out brain and the wasted tissues. It is fuel for the vital fire.

"About one year ago I was all run down so it was impossible to obtain sleep and rest, and I had to give up my work for a time. I visited two expert physicians in Chicago, but could obtain no relief whatever. Then I was advised to try Dr. Miles' Rostrative Nervine, which I did, although I must confess with little faith in its value. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after using it a few weeks I was able to attend to business without fatigue my health was restored." L. B. Assistant County Attorney Winter, who con-ducted the prosecution, was practically alone in the fight for the binding over of the de-fendants. The state's first witness was Captain Haze, who detailed the facts about the robbery as reported to the police by Beaver and the manner in which the Stortzes attempted to hide from him the whereabouts of the Stephens woman. Officer Havey told about conversations he had with the Stephens woman while he was bringing her back from Chicago, where she was arrested. On these occasions she told him that Beaver wanted her to go to the Klondike country with him and that she had run away from him because she had no desire to go 80 far away from home; that Beaver was a married man and she was leaving him in the hope he would forget her and return to his family

Then in an effort to bolster up a charge of collusion between the Stephens woman and Beaver, the terms of which were that the complaining witness was to assist the woman in getting out of trouble, Attorney Winter called O. W. Verley of Ulysses to the stand. He testified to the fact that he was a neighbor of Beaver's family, consist-ing of a wife and two sons, but the court ruled that the witness could not testify to the point that the attorney had attempted to make. Mr. Winter said that on the previous afternoon Beaver told witness and an-other neighbor, who was also present to testify, that he had a bond from the Stephens woman for $600 to indemnify against the loss of any money, with the understanding that he would assist her in getting out of trouble. The attorney for the defendants objected to such evidence, and the court sustained his position.

Y. M. C. A. GIVES A RECEPTION. Closing the Class Work of the Year

Made a Notable Occasion. Last night the closing exercises of the Young Men's Christian association's educational work and the spring reception were held at the association halls. The exercise Ulysses stockman, of $350 while she was liv- opened with a prayer by Mr. Willin. Next ered a scholarly address.

Mr. Hughes urged that the heart be cul-tivated and that all of our time be not given over to things to the neglect of the finer sen-sibilities and faculties. He pointed out the great improvement in the intellectual condiion of the masses and traced it to the limitless advantages which are afforded today in the way of books and reading matter. In the classics, said the speaker, are stored away the treasures which we should all avail ourselves of. Many people say that they have no liking for Cicero, Herodetus, Shakespeare, Tennyson and Lowell. The fault is with them. If they will devote some time to a study of the master the; will develop a taste for the best in literature. In conclusion the speaker said that he had no de-sire to tell people what they should or should not read, but that he wished to encourage young people to have the courage to say that they have not read the latest novel. There is so much that is worthy of reading that to run after books which are fads and which perhaps sound false notes of ife.

When President Hughes finished speaking Miss Getty and Mr. Tucker rendered a vocal duet very creditably. This concluded the program, and the company repaired to the dining room where dainty less and cakes were served. The dining room was tastily decorated with palms and cut flowers, and hearty welcome was extended to guests on all sides. The reception and entertainment were certainly a fitting ending to the year's educational work.

Optical widsom consists in the proper crae of the eyes. Nature always warns you when your eyesight commences to fail, by the eyes smarting, running water, or the eyeball throbbing, the lids twitching, etc. Be careful of your eyes, you will never have another patr, unless we furnish you second sight with a pair of properly adjusted glasses. We have a way of testing eyes that brings out all the little and big defects and enables us to properly fit your eyes.
