One of the Serious Problems Now Confronting Exposition Managers.

CASSIDY HAS A CORNER ON THE CARRIAGES

Chicago Man Secures an Option on All the Rolling Stock of the Livery Stables for the Opening Day.

Acting in accordance with the old adage, "The early bird catches the worm," Thomas Cassidy of Chicago has had the foresight that day, will be sure of a ride. If the they will have to secure a place among Cassidy's friends.

All the liverymen in the city were asked to make a bid on furnishing conveyances for the exposition directors on June 1 and many of them sent in bids and heard no more from them. While the committee was considering the question Cassidy was making hay and offered the various stables a good price for all the conveyances they can supply on that day. Not having heard from the exposition people the liverymen did not know what the committee would do and grasped the opportunity to let their rigs for the day. Cassidy explained to all of them that he had a number of Chicago friends, who are to be here on that day, and that he was interested in a firm in Chicago which has an exhibit at the expo-

The only accommodations which it can be found that the directors have provided for the day are three tallyho coaches. Cassidy has been in the city about two months and has quarters at the Karbach hotel. The liverymen say, however, that Cassidy engaged their conveyances only a few days

Manager Babcock states that when he commenced investigation to ascertain the ability of the liverymen to furnish the carriages required he discovered that options cer; St. Wenceslaus, H. S. He then issued a request LIVE STOCK SHIPPERS FAIL to private citizens to loan their carriages for a couple of hours on the opening day and this request has been complied with in a manner which leaves no doubt about there being an abundance of room for all guests. Carpenter's Offer of Help.

Mr. Babcock says that soon after his request for private carriages was made public through the papers he was called upon by Liveryman Carpenter of South Omaha, who informed him that he could furnish all the carriages that were likely to be required

Mr. Babcock was greatly rejoiced to learn penter. The negotiations did not proceed very far, however, as about the first queshe asked Mr. Carpenter what he would the morning they would be required. Mr.

His proposition was to furnish fifty carriages at $10 apiece, and if desired assume charge of the loading of the vehicles, etc. He was offered $3.50 apiece, but declined to have anything to do with deadheds did not show up to any extent. the matter at this price.

Corn is also raised extensively in the southern part of South Dakota, and the prospect for a good yield is very flattering. South Dakota was formerly a small grain state, and confined itself to that class of products almost entirely. Of late years the farmers have engaged in stock raising to a considerable extent, and as a result the crops of the state have become more varied to provide stock food. In Mr. Oliver's opinion this change has been of great advantage to the state in that a failure of crop in a state which is given over to one product alone is more disastrous than where

HOW A WAR IS FOUGHT.

Changes in the Mode of Warfare If you wish to properly understand the var news, if you wish to have a definite knowledge of naval affairs and the events that are occurring in the East and West Indies you can secure no better, no more reliable source of information than the official photographs of the United States navy, just issued by the Omaha Bee. The price is only 25 cents, and more valuable and timely information was never offered for the money. It is on sale at The Omaha Bee counting-rooms, or will be sent to any address on receipt of price.

The book consists of nearly 200 pages of views made by E. H. Hart, naval photographer, and the list of subjects embraces everything of interest pertaining to our navy of which every everything of interest pertaining to our navy, of which every American is justly nay, or which every American is justly proud. First within the covers of this interesting work comes a map sixteen times as large as the book itself, showing on one side the Spanish possessions, and all adjacent territory, while on the other side the East Indian possessions are similarly treated. Steamship lines, with the distances intervening between different points, are shown, and a close study of these mays are shown, and a close study of these mays are shown, and a close study of these maps will give one a thorough understanding of this territory, in regard to which the interest of the American public is now at

Then follow more than 200 rare pictures of the navy, its officers and equipment. The views are all authentic, and are the latest official photographs of our torpedo boats, torpedo boat destroyers, cruisers, battleships, gunboats, monitors, rams, dynamite cruisers, dispatch vessels, and other war craft, the whole embodying an authentic portrayal of the American navy as it exists today. A complete description of the construction, displacement, size, speed, bat-teries, armor, crew and cost of each boat will enable the reader to form an accurate estimate of our fighting strength. Included with these are photographs of the leading Spanish men-of-war, also fully described. By far the most interesting portions of the book are views of the Maine, taken before the disaster in Havana harbor, showing the life and discipline aboard a battleship, to-gether with portraits of the officers and crew, supplemented by photographs taken after the explosion, depicting the divers at work, and other incidents in connection with this sad and memorable event. Patriotism.

Some people show their patriotism in one way and some in another, and some keep theirs locked up in their bosom somewhere-it isn't for show. About ten days ago a patriotic clothing maker of New York offered us a large quantity of serge suits "made up to retail for ten dollars," at the small sum of three dollars and 75 cents a suit. He was a patriotic cuss. His excuse for offering them at this low price was, "at this time when sacrifices of all kinds are in order and owing to the great dullness in business on account of the war," etc., etc. We didn't take the suits. We could't muster up patriotism enough to profit by our country's plight, and besides we happened to know that these same suits were made up for a large eastern house and were rejected for not being able to stand the acid test which all reputable houses employ. He sold the suits just the same. There are plenty of houses in the country that don't care ten cents for tests and that are just patriotic enough to take advantage of snide offerings so as to be able to advertise "ten and twelve dollar suits, in royal blue serges, for sale tomorrow at $6.98.
