Visitors Cordially Welcomed to the City by the Mayor and Congratulated on Their Devotion to Music by Editor Nonck.

The third annual saengerfest, a festival of song to be celebrated by the Nebraska Saengerbund during three days, was opened last night with a mixed program of addresses, songs and feasting. The occasion was called a "commers," a form of entertainment borrowed from German students. and was partaken in by the 150 musicians visiting from throughout the state and a large number of local German-Americans. There was an address of welcome by Mayor Moores and the festival was formally opened by Theodore Sinhold, president of the Nebraska Saengerbund, and R. Noack, editor of the German Post-Tribune.

There is a larger attendance present from towns in the state than had been expected and the following banners were hung on the walls by large delegations from each town: Schuyler Maennerchor, Schuyler; Germania Gesangverein, Stanton; Germania Gesangverein, Madison; Maennerchor, Columbus: Liederkranz, Grand Island, and Orpheus, Omaha. The delegations arrived during yesterday and established themselves at the Colonade hotel. Turner hall had been prepared for their arrival with abundant decorations of greens and oak leaves. Outside of the entrance a covered walk had been erected decorated with garlands and legends of welcome which led to a bower also adorned with oak leaves, symbolic of German steadfastness and virility.

Steinhauser's orchestra opened the pro gram with a rendition of the "Poet and Peasant," by Suppe. The overture was done by the full orchestra of twenty-five pieces and the selection from the German opera was well received. Orpheus Singing society then greeted its guests with the "Welcome Song, by Decker, and was followed by an opening address by Mayor Moores. The was introduced by President Sinhold and delivered the keys of the city in a speech that was enthusiastically received. He said it had been his purpose to commit the welcoming address to memory in German like the other speakers of the evening, but that had proved impracticable be cause of the fact that he was obliged also to prepare a welcome for a Bohemian soclety, and he was apprehensive of a confusion of tongues. Although it is the twenty-seventh pair of keys which he has delivered since the opening of the exposition, the mayor guaranteed the present pair to unbolt every lock in the city limits, and urged the visitors to make themselves at home. He praised the spirit of union for mutual good shown in such organization as the saengerbund and the turnverein and expressed the opinion that they were productive of good American citizenship. The singers appreciated the cordiality of the greeting and acknowledged it with three vigorous cheers for the mayor.

Welcomed by Editor Nonck.

A short interval followed, during which there was music by the united societies with the orchestra, and the mayor and other guests were invited to partake of the na tional beverage. The "Festredung," or banquet address, was then delivered by R. Noack of the German Post-Tribune. Noack gave a historical sketch of the development of music through the Greeks, Italians and finally the Germans. He de- cadero. The slarm proved to be false.
