SENATORS FALL EASY VICTIMS AGAIN

Steady Hitting on One Side and Poor Fielding on the Other Make the Game Quite One-Sided-Raltimore and New York Divide.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 .- The Boston team today made its possession of the pennant a certainty by defeating the Senators easily. The Senators fielded very badly and could not hit Lewis, while the wearers of the laurel pounded Baker's delivery freely. Attendance, 1,400, Score;

Divide at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11.—Baltimore and New York broken even today. In the first contest the locals got five of their six hits in the second and fifth innings and so tallied enough runs to win. Both teams played a sharp and errorless game. Four singles, a two-bagger, a hit batsman and an error gave the visitors five runs in the fifth. McGann's and Keeler's ankles were troublesome and they did not play in the second game. Doheny was hit in the short ribs by a pitched ball and resigned in favor of Seymour, who retired the Orloles without a hit in the two limings he pitched. Score, first game:

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR ON PARADE

Crowning Glory of the Great Triennial Conclave in Session at Pittaburg.

Each Commandery Headed by Band and the Air of the Smoky City Echoes with the Sound of Patriotic Melodies.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11 .- What Jerusayears, that was the city today to the morning every railroad leading into the city, every street car line entering from the surradius of several hundred miles the towns, the line of march to accommodate 200,000 ers and the vendors of these seats. Long before the parade began to move, however, all these seats were occupied, and, in fact every available foot of space along the line of march was filled with men, women and children, while windows, and even roofs, also swarmed with anxious sightseers. It is estimated that the parade proper was made up of 25,000 uniformed knights, moving along in carriages, on horseback or on foot, and seven miles long.

Parade Starts Promptly.

The head of the parade was formed at the gheny City, and at 9:30 o'clock Brigadier General J. P. S. Gobin, the grand marshal of the parade, with his staff of mounted lieutenants and aides, left his headquarters at the Monongahela, and accompanied by the strains of Sousa's march, "The Stars and Minnesota Mississippi Stripes Forever," made his way down Fifth Missouri bridge into Allegheny City.

Promptly at 10 o'clock General Gobin gave the command and the great parade started. The parade passed off very successfully further consideration of the proposition for rain in short, but sharp showers. However, not even the downpour appeared to have any visible effect upon the enthusiasm words "Protestant Episcopal" from the title thing, the latter became more emphatic in

There were no serious accidents or mishaps of any kind during the entire march, which lasted fully three nours; the only case was that of the prostration of one of the knights.

There cannot be too much said of the arfine a set of men as could probably be gotten together anywhere. Sir Knight Edwin du Laurens, charter member of Columbian and enjoys the distinction of being the country, participated in the parade, and whereever his venerable appearance was

The parade disbanded at Shenley park, and immediately after the grand commandery met in Conference hall for the first actual business session of the conclave. After addresses of welcome by Chairman Arthur I of the growth of church work in Alaska, Wigley, Mayor H. P. Ford of Pittsburg and the establishment of hospitals at Skagway State Grand Commander Kuhn, the grand and Circle City and the founding of schools encampment was declared open and Grand Master Warren Larue Thomas delivered the annual address, after which the report of liamson Smith of Hartford and Bishop John Grand Treasurer Lines and Grand Recorder Mills was presented.

w the Police Wrestled with the Jam that Choked the Streets. Chief White and his 100 men, representing the entire strength of the police department, reinforced by fifty-two of the exposition guards, handled the crowd with credit Not an accident occurred and but two pockets were picked. On Farnam street from Tenth to Seventeenth streets where the crowds filled the street from one side to the other the greatest difficulty was experienced by the police and guards in maintaining order. An officer was stationed every six feet on each side of this street from Sixteenth street to Seventeenth street. During the early hours of the evening this force of men was able to maintain a clear street from curb to curb, but as soon as the head of the procession swung into Farnam street from Tenth the crowds that lined the sidewalks crowded out into the street despite the frantic efforts of the police to force them back. The surging crowd was reinforced from all the side streets the length of the route and by the time the president's carriage had started well on its way northward just a narrow lane, through which his carriage barely passed, was all the space the bluecoats could keep open. At Fourteenth and Farnam this lane began closing up and by the time the foremost carriage reached Sixteenth street the pavement was simply one mass of closely-wedged heads From there to the reviewing stand the police had to fight their way through the crowds.

The carriages of the presidential party were besieged by anxious ones desirous of sha, ing hands with some one of the notables. The handshaking mania did not appear to strike the crowd until Sixteenth street was reached.

At the Tenth street depot the dense crowds were more tractable than those on Farnam street and the ten officers under Sergeant Whalen were able to maintain a clear pathway for the presidential party from their trains to the waiting carriages. On the approach to the viaduct, over which the procession passed, a force of fifty officers, the combined forces of Sergeants Her and Whalen, held in check the people and prevented them crossing the structure with the procession. This precaution was taken to insure the safety of the people.

After the parade, considerable difficulty was experienced at the Douglas street bridges in holding the crowds of Council Bluffs residents, who were anxious to return to their homes. The street cars were blockaded and the wagon roadway was congested by all manner of vehicles, which were wedged into one compact mass. But two officers were on duty at this point and they might just as well have been paper men, for all the good they did. A hurry call to the station for more aid was re day the officers will be moved up in rank, sponded to by fifteen men, who succeeded in breaking the barriers and allowing the crowd to trickle out across the bridge.

privations and sufferings and anxieties of the last five months will flow benefits to the nation, which may be more important

"No development of the war has been more gratifying and exalting than the complete unification of the nation. Sectional lines have been obliterated; party differ ences have been hushed in the great chorus of patriotism which has been heard from one end of the country to the other. To the
