REGIMENT OUT OF OFFICERS

Twenty-Second Infantry Shows the Effect of War on Its Roster.

SICK LEAVES AND DETACHED SERVICE

Eighteen of the Forty-Two Are Absent from the Post at Present—Captain Kell Asks for a Chance to Recupereate.

As an indication of the ravages of disease, and the demands of the War department for the services of experienced officers, the condition of the roster of the Twenty-second infantry at Fort Crook is somewhat of interest. Six of the officers are absent on sick leave, and two others are on detached service. Only three members of the staff corps are now at the fort; Company A has its two lieutenants; Company B has its first lieutenant and he is in charge of the post exchange; Company C has only its first lieutenant; Company D is short its first lieutenant; Company E has all of its commissioned officers; Company F has only a second lieutenant; Company G has its second lieutenant; Company H is short its first lieutenant; Company I is short its captain; Company K is without any of its regular commissioned officers; Company L has both of its lieutenants, but the first lieutenant is temporarily in command of Company G; Company M is yet a skeleton organization.

Lieutenant Peter W. Davison, Company K, is on two months' sick leave; Second Lieutenant David S. Stanley is an aide to Major General Wilson; Captain Edward O. C. Ord, Company L, is judge advocate of the Department of Santiago.

At the fort now is First Lieutenant Jacob F. Kreps, who is unassigned, and Company D has a vacancy in the first lieutenantcy which is unfilled. Out of forty-two positions at Fort Crook eighteen are temporarily unoccupied.

Captain Kell on Sick Leave. Captain William H. Kell, Company C, Twenty-second Infantry, who has been doing detached service as muster officer for Nebraska, has been relieved of that duty and has been granted a leave of absence for two months on account of sickness. The captain spent two months in the Cuban campaign, going there with his regiment in June, and served as adjutant general of General Ludlow's brigade. While there he acquired a large section of malaria which has refused to leave his system. He has not yet decided where he will go during his leave, but will select some place where the climate will recuperate his health, and will start as soon as he receives official notice that leave has been granted. The captain is one of the youngest officers in appearance, there is at the post, and those who meet him are surprised when informed that he is a veteran of the civil war, and served three years during that conflict.

The quartermaster's office has opened a bid for 500 cubic yards of tanbark, which is to be used at the riding school at Fort Riley. Four bids were submitted, none of them being from this city, and the lowest was $2.90 per cubic yard, which is considered to be low.

Vouchers for Funeral Expenses.

The quartermaster's office is kept busy making out vouchers for the expenses incurred in transporting the remains of dead soldiers to the homes of relatives. This expense is borne by the War department where it does not exceed in amount what it would cost the government for the same service. In addition to this sum the government allows $25 for funeral expenses. These items require the making and signing of many papers, and constitute an important part of the work of the department.

Major A. S. Tovar, chief paymaster of the Department of the Missouri, now absent on sick leave, has just recovered from an operation for appendicitis, which was performed in a hospital at Detroit. He has written to the officers of the department that he was up and around after ten days, which he believes is the quickest recovery on record for a man of his age. He adds, however, that the surgeons instruct him to be careful in his movements.

Major W. H. Hamner, acting chief paymaster of this department, is the oldest officer in point of military service there is in the paymaster's corps of the army. He joined the regular army in 1858 and has served in every position from private to major. He was on Fort Sumter when it was fired upon by the confederates. He was ordered to divide the force at the fort into three reliefs when the attack began, and as that left him in a measure without anything to do, he organized the unassigned men employed at the fort into a firing squad, and says they took to the work so enthusiastically they worked at it without relief, while the regulars had two hours on duty and four off. The major was out of the army two years after the civil war, but has been forty years of service, enough to retire him if he wished it. He was appointed to his present position in the paymaster's corps in 1893.

Who Was the Youngest.

Contests for the honor of having the youngest enlisted soldier during the Spanish war are now in order. Until recently it was supposed that Henry W. McCorry, Jr., a private in Company F, Second Ten-

Candidates for Speaker

Pollard of Cass and Haller of Washington Visit Omaha and Speak About Their Chances.

E. M. Pollard of Nebraska, who has been re-elected to the legislature, was in Omaha yesterday in the interest of his candidacy for speaker. Mr. Pollard feels very much encouraged over the progress he is making. He has many friends in this city, won by his outspoken support of the exposition bills in the last legislature and his favorable treatment of other measures in which Omaha was especially interested.

Speaking of the work of the coming legislature Mr. Pollard says: "I believe it is the duty of the republican majority of the legislature to make a record by redeeming the pledges made by the party at the last election. I hope to see the legislature do business on business principles from the start. I hope to see it cut loose entirely from all the legislative on-hangers who have had anything to do with the old ring which brought the party into disrepute. If the legislature will in its leadership and organization give evidence that new blood is at the helm of the party, I am sure it will contribute more to the success of the party in its efforts to regain control of the entire state government than any other one thing. That is the platform upon which I am making my campaign for the speakership and that will be my program if I am elected."

W. D. Haller of Blair, another candidate for the speakership, also dropped into town for the day, accompanied by W. J. Cook, Blair's postmaster. Mr. Haller, however, was not saying anything about his candidacy except to intimate that he did not think Paul Clark of Lincoln had any more strength than himself.

he is simply tolerated. We who live in this, the fairest land under the sun, know nothing of the miseries and sufferings of our brethren in other countries. The Jew has upon him now the necessity of assenting to the world that he is not simply to be borne with, but that he is by right entitled to all the privileges of his fellows.

"The conditions leading up to the feast of Chanukah and those of today are similar. Then it was a battle for life, and now it is a battle for equality. We could not have won over the Assyrians with leaders less fearless and less heroic than Maccabees and we can not win our contest over prejudice and injustice without heroism, sacrifice and perseverance. The battles will be fought by congregations such as this. They are the armies and the rabbi is the Maccabee. It is, therefore, important that congregations should exercise great care in selecting a rabbi. He should be a man whom they could, above all things at all times, respect. But the congregation, as the army, must be brave and loyally support its general, carrying out his banner onward, forward and upward. At the end, we can be enthused with the thought that ours has been the victory."

TRIAL OF CHARLES COSTANZO
Preliminary Investigation of the Affair in Which One Italian Was Killed and Two Wounded.

The trial of Charles Costanzo, who is accused of shooting with intent to kill, and also with intent to wound Pedro Mancuso, commenced yesterday morning before Judge Gordon. Costanzo is a brother of Philip Costanzo, whom Mancuso is accused of murdering with a pair of scissors on November 22. He is an old man, and, as an attorney expressed it this morning when he entered the court room, looks very much like Gerontius.

The court room was crowded with Italians, who were either witnesses or friends of the men interested. Deputy County Attorney Herring did not think it necessary to employ an interpreter, so the trial commenced without the use of one. Niniki Barbato was the first witness. The shooting of Mancuso and the fatal stabbing of Philip Costanzo occurred in front of his house. He testified that he was at home all day on the 22d of November. Pedro Mancuso, Philip Costanzo and Sam Maraski came to his house about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and engaged in a game for the beer, playing with Joe Bambanato and a brother of Pedro Mancuso, who were already there. Bambanato and young Mancuso left about 5:30 and Pedro Mancuso and Philip Costanzo commenced playing cards for $5 per game. Pedro Mancuso dealt first and made an error in doing so. Philip claimed the money and Mancuso said it was no game. They quarrelled and Mancuso drew his revolver to enforce the return of the money, which Costanzo had picked up. Maraski stepped in and separated them, taking Mancuso's revolver from him. Maraski left the house shortly afterward, and in a few minutes Charles Costanzo came in and the quarrel was renewed. The witnesses ordered them out of his house and they obeyed. Charles Costanzo going first, Philip second and Mancuso last. He closed the door and in a few minutes heard some shooting. When he went out he saw Philip Costanzo lying on the ground dead and Charles Costanzo standing near by. A crowd assembled and Charles Costanzo and he were arrested.

Sam Maraski was the second witness to be called. His testimony did not differ materially from that of Barbato. When he took the revolver from Mancuso he left the house and went to his own home.

Detectives Dunn and Davis told how they had visited the home of Barbato and had the remains of the murdered man and had recovered the ring, but the repairs to the plumbing will require the expenditure of as much money as the cost of a couple of rings.

FOUR MORE GOOD HU-CANERS
Names of Winners in Bean Guessing Contest Closing Last Night—One Cospon Without Any Name.

Below the Merchants' Bean Club announces the successful guessers in the four bean jar contests ending last night. In many cases ballots deposited later were as close as the winners, so that participants are advised to deposit early. John Baumstark, the secretary of the club, will formally announce to them by personal letter the fact and by Monday the winners will be enjoying the fruits of their carefully computed estimates.

In the Balduff contest it is said to record that a coupon giving as an estimate 1,093 was deposited and by reason of its early deposit was entitled to the second prize. It is to be hoped that the next time "1093" takes a shot on a jar he will remember his name. The results are as follows:

Bean Jar No. 16—Nearest estimate, 1,114, by Maud Peterson, 1010 North Twenty-fourth street. Club member, Aloe & Penfold Co., 1508 Farnam street. Award, $7.50 Monroe folding camera.

Bean Jar No. 16—Nearest estimate, 1,070, by C. Robertson, 2427 Dodge street. Actual count, 1,071. Club member, T. L. Combs & Co., 1520 Douglas street. Other close estimates, deposited later, were 1,072, by Alice Mainwaring, 318 South Tenth street, and 1,072, by Fred Truesen, 3564 Howard street.
