London Cabmen Protest Against a Recent Order of the Police-Belief that France is Seeking War.

(Copyright, 1898, by Associated Press.) LONDON, Feb. 4 .- Queen Victoria is to return to Windsor from Osborne on Tuesday next and will receive the new United States ambassador, Mr. Joseph H. Choate, who will present his credentials before her majesty starts for the Riviera. Mr. Choate's reputation as a wit and a bright after-dinner speaker has preceded him. The newspapers are full of his witty sayings and the stories. credited to him, some true, but mostly apocryphal. In fact, from the moment he sets foot on British soil, Mr. Choate will be expected to coruscate like a brilliant.

The duke of Marlborough went to Osborne on Thursday and was introduced and "kiesed hands" on his appointment as paymaster general. He has also been sworn in as a privy councillor. The duchess of Marlborough is becoming very active in small public functions. She is to open a bazaar at Hackney next Thursday in aid of the Teachers' orphanage site. These kindly acts greatly promote her popularity, as they entail something more than mere attendance. It means a handsome contribution to the

The question of the hour in London is the stringent order of the police prohibiting empty cabs from entering the Strand, Bond street and other busy thoroughfares and compelling them to wait on the cab ranks. Every American visitor in London remembers the endless procession of loitering cabs, popularly known as "crawlers," rendering it almost impossible for foot passengers to cross the roadways and leading to incessant congestion of traffic. The cab drivers and the cab owners are now up in arms and are denouncing the police for their alleged tyranny, taking the ground that it spells ruin for them. They have been holding mass meetings to protest against the action of the police authorities. Already about 2,000 cabs have been withdrawn from the streets, although the regulation has only been in force

Discredit Alleged Interview.

An alleged interview with the French minister of marine, M. Lockrow, published in a Rome paper, has created considerable etir in some quarters in London, as it is held to show that France has in no wise buried the hatchet, but is determined to attack Great Britain at the first opportunity. People here, however, can hardly credit the veracity of the interview in which M. Lockrow begins by describing the British naval organization as being "all humbug" and saying "the English have only the brutal force of numbers." The minister of marine is also quoted as declaring that war with Great Britain is inevitable and he is said to have added, in consequence: "Let England continue to construct big war ships. Our naval program is steel-plated, powerful, swift cruisers, torpedo boat destroyers and submarine boats."

The British newspapers have apparently taken these utterances seriously and are urging the government to reply "to words with deeds." These French menaces seem to accord with information to the effect that military and naval circles here are convinced that France means war. Secret advices, it appears, have been received at the British war office showing that the French authorities are noiselessly preparing for the struggle. In fact, it is even said the Napoleonic idea of an invasion of Great Britain is revolving in the minds of the French military authorities and at the present moment a gradual but silent movement of troops is said to be proceeding towards the northern coast of France, where, in two months' time, it is asserted, about 150,000 men will be concentrated.

The British war authorities are determined not to wait France's convenience, but to call its hand, as they did in the Fashoda incident, and will declare that they regard this concentration of troops as an act of war. In the meanwhile the British navy is paying the greatest attention to gunnery. channel squadron this week has been engaged every morning in firing practice at moving targets. The results are being carefully noted.

What London's Society Leaders and the Sprigs of Nobility Are Doing.

(Copyright, 1899, by Press Publishing Co.) LONDON, Feb. 4 .- (New York World Cablegram-Special Telegram.)-The duke of Teck's condition is causing great pain and anxiety to his family and royal relations. His mental state is now hopeless and he is under perpetual surveillance day and night by two nurses. He has occasional brief lucid intervals when he realizes his condition, suffering the keenest mental anguish and giving rise to scenes most trying to himself and those about him. The duchess of York visits him at White Lodge regularly and is deeply distressed. Queen Victoria shortly expects to become a great-great-grandmother, a dignity to which no English soverign ever before attained. Princess Henry Thirtieth of Rouss, granddaughter of Empress Frederick, is expecting an interesting event within a couple of months. This arrival will make a greatgranduncle of the prince of Wales, a granduncle of the kaiser and the duke of York.

The death of the princess of Bulgaria is regarded by all familiar with her domestic life as a happy release from an intolerable position. The princess never forgave Prince Ferdinand for having his eldest son, Prince Boris, christened in the Greek church to conciliate Russia. The ceremony was intensely obnoxious to her, a member of the oldest Catholic family in Europe. The pope sympathized deeply with the princess. He had designated her this year as the recipient of the golden rose, the highest honor the pope can confer on a woman. Her mother-in-law, Princess Clementin, an intriguing tyrant of the worst description, made her a cypher in her own home, as Prince Ferdinand was always guided by his mother and completely ignored his wife. in order to further consolidate his position. He is the most despised prince in Europe, Mrs. Douglas and I saw her in her magnifias even the czar refused to receive him despite his craven desire to be in his good graces. A New Magazine.

Lady Randolph Churchill, seen at her house Great Cumberland place respecting her projected magazine de luxe, said; "Really, the whole affair is so nebulous as yet I can say nothing definite or worth telling about it. All I can say is we have fully determined to make a venture of publishing a one guinea quarterly periodical, believing ts literary and artistic contents are of the highest value and interest. It must find a paying place among current publications. Mind you, this is no philanthropic plan to provide readers with a beautiful, fascinating periodical at the expense of a wealthy syndicate. Prince is Hard Up. The Prince of Wales, it is rumored, will benefit to the extent of £250,000 under the will of the late Baron Ferdinand Rothschild, bequest to that amount having been left in the will to Alfred Rothschild, Baron Ferdinand's cousin, who is already a multimillionaire, and the suggestion is that this sum is intended for the Prince of Wales, to whom the legacy was not formally left to obviate gossip about his financial affairs. which the prince detests. The prince is well known to want money badly, as although his allowance is increased by Parliament £30,000 a year to provide marriage portions for his daughters, he is obliged to make the Duke of York a large allowance out of his private purse and his own excenses are very heavy.

SLIGHT DAMAGE BY

Quick Response by the Fire Department Saves the Webster Street School House.

Fire was discovered Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock in the basement of the Webster Street school house. There was considerable excitement in the neighborhood, but the damage will not exceed $300. Janitor William Stewart discovered smoke oming from the basement and turned in the alarm. When the fire department arrived the building was filled with smoke and the through the basement in an attempt to find Paxton, W. H. Dudley. the fire, Chief Redell shot into a basin of water, which soaked him to the waist. He finally found the flames on the east side. near the center. The fire had undoubtedly started in a lumber pile and burned upward finally eating its way between the wookwork of the floor above the basement. It did not take the firemen long to extinguish the flames, but from outward appearances it was thought the building would be a total loss as the smoke was emerging from the windows in heavy columns. After the windows had been opened and the smoke permitted to escape it was found that the damage was slight on the first floor. In room three, over the place where the fire started, the woodwork was slightly charred and some of the wainscoting was torn away to make sure that the fire was out. The room was badly smoked, but the furniture is not damaged. The remainder of the building was smoked and the ceilings were steamed, but a coat of paint will repair all the damage done to it. In the pasement the windows were broken out and the woodwork prettly badly scorched.

Janitor Stewart thinks the fire was due to spontaneous combustion in the which had just been put in, but Chief Redell laughed at the idea, because the fire started in an east room, while the coal is on the west side of the building.

The building is uninsured except for the fund of $12,000, which the Board of Education has set aside for the protection of buildings by fire instead of taking out in-

Stone Walk Around Old Government Building Not to Be Repaired at Present.

Omaha citizens will have to wait some time before the stone sidewalk about the old postoffice building is repaired and put into more passable condition. The council re-cently sent a request to the Treasury department at Washington asking that the sidewalk be fixed up. A response has been received to the effect that the Treasury department would not do the work because he building is about to be turned over to the War department as headquarters for the epartment of the Missouri.
This means that the sidewalk will not be repaired for the next six months at least. The Washington dispatches announce that money for the remodeling of the building will not be provided, in all probability, until the next congress meets. The cost of fixing the sidewalk would properly come out of such a fund.

The testimony given to the jury went to show that Spellacey was intoxicated at the ime he went to work and that the accident was due to his own carelessness. The jury, after hearing the evidence, returned a verdict in accordance with the facts. It seems that Spellacey boarded the elevator backwards and when his floor was reached he moved backwards instead of forwards as the other truckmen did. It was inferred by the jury that on account of his intoxicated condition he did not know what he was doing and thus made a mistake which cost him his life. The deceased was a single man and lived at the Offerman house, Twentyfifth and O streets. The remains are still
