SURVEYORS IN THE FIELD

Burlington Contemplates Building Another Line in Western Nebraska.
MUCH DEPENDS UPON ENGINEERS' REPORT

Proposed Extension to Tap the Rich Irrigated Agricultural Districts Along the Western Border of the State.

All that vast irrigated territory in western Nebraska lying between the Billings division of the Burlington road and the main line of the Union Pacific, and which is now without railroad connection, is destined soon to have this barrier to its progress removed. A line of road is almost sure to be built connecting Alliance, on the Billings division, with Brush on the Denver line of the Burlington. The line will probably extend southward from Alliance to Gering, the county seat of Scotts Bluff county, then almost due south to Brush on the Denver line, touching at Harrisburg, the county seat of Banner county, and Kimball, the county seat of Kimball county, and crossing the Union Pacific at the latter point. Just where it will cross the Cheyenne division of the Burlington is not known.

Surveys without number have been run through this territory in the past, but the work has always stopped there. The line mentioned will tap a rich portion of the Platte valley, where irrigation is in a more complete state of development than in any other portion of Nebraska. Large crops of good quality are produced there, and they are almost valueless because of lack of transportation facilities. The live stock industry is also important there, and will furnish a valuable source of income to the road which reaches out for the business.

Several towns in this section of Nebraska which have thrived for years without railroad facilities will take new growth with the advent of a railroad, and of course there will be numerous new villages springing up along the right-of-way of the road. The town of Gering, for instance, is one of the oldest communities in the western part of the state, and has been prosperous, notwithstanding the disadvantages under which it labored.

The Burlington officials in this line, being asked about the prospects of this line, said they have a party of engineers at work in that territory running lines approximately as described here. They would not say definitely that the company has determined upon the construction of the road, but informed the decision will depend upon the report of the engineers. They admit that the survey is through valuable territory which is not touched by any railroad, and that there are good reasons why the road should be constructed.

The building of this line would bring the Black Hills country and Denver closer together. Both being mining sections the advantage of this short line is apparent. It would also bring the northwestern section of Nebraska nearer to Colorado points and those further west. More important than all, it will open up a new market for the coal mines along the Burlington road in Wyoming.

REGARDING VIADUCT CONSTRUCTION

Railroad Officials Maintain that They Are Willing to Do Fair Thing.

Burlington and Union Pacific officials, in defense of their position in the Sixteenth street viaduct controversy, say the plans for the structure which they have submitted to the city are the equal in every respect to those submitted by City Engineer Rosewater, except as to length and breadth. As to material used in construction they allege their plans call for a substantial viaduct to provide for any more of a grade than that in the Tenth street viaduct, and they add that no fault has been found with the grade there. They resent the charge that the viaduct under their plans would cost only $100,000, but say the figure will reach nearer $100,000.

Nothing can be obtained from the officials as to their purposes toward the viaduct if the city refuses to accept their plans. They admitted that they had no objection to there being an amicable agreement reached. The Burlington people said they were ready to go ahead at any time, but the Union Pacific officials said the matter had passed entirely into the hands of President Hart, who is now out of the city.

As a sort of plea in abatement the roads are pointing to the new work being done on the Tenth street viaduct as evidence of the expediency of their plans. It is in the field of viaduct construction to erect a new floor of heavy oak timbers is being put in this viaduct, and it will be replaced. This will take time, as the work will be done in such a manner that traffic will not be interrupted. The road engineers estimate that this will cost them $20,000 to make this improvement, which will be borne by the Burlington, Union Pacific and the street car company.

UNION PACIFIC HOSPITAL FUND.

Money Will Remain in Treasury Until Buildings Are Sold.

H. S. Abbott, special master for the Union Pacific, says the money in the treasury belonging to the hospital fund will not be distributed until the hospital buildings are sold and the proceeds turned in. He says it will require about 10,000 checks to pay of the claims which have been approved. With a 2-cent revenue stamp and a 2-cent post-stamp for each of these an item of expense would be incurred. He says the claims would be approved if an attempt was made now to distribute the cash, and later a similar expense in distributing the proceeds from the buildings. He says everything is ready for the bank when all of the property belonging to the fund has been converted into cash. His report is ready to file, thus providing against any further delay.

The United States court, according to Mr. Abbott, has turned the matter of disposition of the buildings over to the receivers, and the latter are in constant communication with real estate men at Ogden and Denver. The condition of the real estate market, it is said, is such that the sale of the property would result in virtually giving it away. This the court is opposed to, but there is a limit to waiting. If in the course of a reasonable time some satisfactory offer for the buildings is not received a public sale of the property will have to be ordered, but this will not be done until the court is satisfied that every effort has been made to dispose of the property at a fair price. In the meantime it is said the cash on hand belonging to the fund, estimated at about $50,000, is deposited in the bank and is drawing 3 per cent interest, which increases the total accordingly.

Death of H. J. McClure.
R. J. McClure, who for thirty-five years had been connected with the Burlington road, during which time he had been chief and consulting engineer, died a few days ago at Miami, Fla., and he remains will be taken to Chicago for burial. He had been a sufferer from Bright's disease for some time and was in the south in quest of health when death came. He was 60 years of age. The Burlington Hawkeye, in giving a sketch of Mr. McClure's life, says: "He was a native of Ohio, and as a young man he served in the engineering arm of the British army in India. Coming to

RECEIVER POTTER'S REPORT

Showing Condition of Defunct Savings and Exchange Bank.

Very Small Amount of Assets Has Been Available in Settlement of Affairs of the Institution Except Through Legal Proceedings.

Receiver William K. Potter of the defunct Nebraska Savings and Exchange bank yesterday filed in the district court a report showing the condition of the liabilities and assets of the institution on March 2 and containing a detailed statement of the receiver's position since his last report. Receiver Potter also filed, in answer to an order of the court, a statement showing what has been accomplished by him since the bank closed. This showing was ordered by the court in answer to claims made by depositors of the bank that the receiver has not economically and carefully performed his duty. The statement of the condition of the bank on March 2 follows:

| ASSETS.                                      |              |
|--|--------------|
| Cash on hand and in bank                     | $ 12,230.58 |
| Mortgage loans, mostly in foreclosure        | 36,727.25    |
| Real estate, mostly in foreclosure           | 23,174.41    |
| Warrants and stocks                          | 2,535.55     |
| Judgments                                    | 2,535.55     |
| Real estate and fixtures                     | 75,151.48    |
| Overdrafts                                   | 2,441.28     |
| Securities held in trust                     | 1,000.00     |
| Total  | $243,034.57 |
| LIABILITIES.                                 |              |
| Claims allowed, less dividends paid in trust | $ 84,491.29 |
| Amount retained from interest on mortgages   | 1,425.00     |
| Dividends unpaid—amount                      | 15,129.16    |
| Contested claims for                         | 6,074.18     |
| Total  | $107,119.63 |
| Capital stock not taken into account.        | $113,699.89 |

The supplemental report in which Receiver Potter explains what he has accomplished since he was appointed receiver is as follows:

Before closing its doors the Nebraska Savings and Exchange bank had paid more than half of its liabilities. The assets coming into the hands of the receiver were the "slow assets," or those hard to realize upon. The loans were all made upon high collateral, the parties owing the same could not renew them or place them with other loan companies; it therefore became necessary to foreclose nearly all the mortgages and a large part of the notes. Many of the suits are still pending, having been very earnestly contested, some of them even through the supreme court, taking a great deal of time and a large amount for court costs.

With the exception of two small pieces the receiver has been obliged to bid in every piece of property sold at foreclosure sale, even though they have been advertised and sold at auction.

A comparatively small amount of the assets has been available for use in settlement of the affairs of the bank, except as they have worked out through the courts from time to time.

The receiver has been without a clerk and not one dollar has been expended for help in any kind in his office since December, 1898. It has been necessary for most of the time of the receiver to be devoted to detail work of the office and he has thereby been prevented very especially in the settlement of the affairs of the bank.

Advantage has been taken of every discount that could be obtained, amounting to $25 to 50 per cent on the large number of abstracts and printers' bills that have been paid for, and credit has been given to the full for the same.

It has been the constant aim of the receiver to conduct the affairs of the receiver in accordance with that strict business as well as in the best interest of the creditors of the bank closed.

With the above statement, showing some of the conditions that have hampered the receiver in his work, he desires to call the court's attention to the following comparative statement, drawn from the reports on file, showing just what has been accomplished since the bank closed:

|   |              |
|---|--------------|
| Assets when bank closed, as shown by this report                                | $44,823.80  |
| Total assets now on hand as shown by this report                                | $234,034.57 |
| Deducting amounts held in payment, dividends unpaid and dividends held in trust | 113,699.89   |
| Assets still available as shown by the books                                    | 210,334.68   |
| Assets exhausted since the bank closed  | $134,118.29 |
| Liabilities when bank closed, as shown by this report                           | $196,927.73 |
| Liabilities not on books when bank closed, but covered by claims                | 4,549.58     |
| Total liabilities   | $201,477.31 |
| Amount of actual liabilities at present time                                    | $84,491.29  |
| Liabilities reduced since the bank closed                                       | $117,006.11 |
| Amount of assets exhausted more than liabilities have been reduced              | $117,006.11 |
| Amount of assets exhausted more than liabilities have been reduced              | $117,006.11 |
| On mortgage loans   | 3,541.24     |
| On bills receivable   | 2,355.75     |
| On tax certificates   | 490.77       |
| On judgments  | 249.53       |
| Total   | $7,637.29   |

It will be seen from the above figures that every dollar of the assets, as shown by the books, which has been used since the bank closed has paid an equal amount of liabilities, except that part charged off as actual loss, in shrinkage in value of real estate sold at other times, as shown above.

It will also be seen that the total expenses of the receivership, and also the amount of $7,637.29 as attorney's fees, court costs and other miscellaneous items paid and charged to profit and loss, have been entirely made up by income collected and gain to the assets of the institution, etc., made by the receiver since the bank closed, in accordance with the orders of the court.

Suspicious Character Arrested.
Frank A. Uterson was arrested by Detectives Keyser and Sullivan Thursday evening on a charge of suspicious character. Uterson answers the description of a man wanted at Craig, Mo., for burglary. The police say that he was convicted of burglary at Fremont, Neb., two years in the penitentiary, and that shortly after his release he was sentenced to a term of six years' imprisonment in Iowa for a robbery committed at Jew Moines.

"Give me a liver regulator and I can regulate the world," said a gentleman. The druggist handed him a bottle of Dr. Witt's Little Blue Pills, the famous Little Pills.

TWO WOMEN ARE ASSAULTED

Their Assailant Has Been Positively Identified and is Now in Jail Awaiting Examination.

J. Spenser, a marble cutter, locked up in the city jail charged with attempting criminal assaults upon Ida H. Green, 1828 North Twenty-first street, and Mrs. Tillie Pettys, 22nd North Nineteenth street, has been identified by the latter.

Detectives Keyser and Sullivan arrested Spenser at the corner of Sixteenth and Cuming streets at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, having recognized him from a description furnished by Mrs. Pettys.

Mrs. Pettys prepares the "Merchants' Lunch" for the bakery at Nineteenth and Spruce streets, her son being proprietor of the place. While she was cooking in the kitchen Wednesday afternoon Spenser entered and complying with his request for something to eat, Mrs. Pettys gave him a lunch, answering the questions he asked in a conversational way as he sat eating. Mrs. Pettys observed that many of the man's inquiries regarded her husband, but she did not become suspicious until the conversation was ended and Spenser had departed. Among other things she had told him that Mr. Pettys was a motor contractor who left home for work at 5 o'clock in the morning.

Thursday morning at the hour Mr. Pettys usually departs for work he was still in the house, but his grown-up son went out the door exactly at 5 o'clock. Spenser, who was hiding not far away, seeing a man leave the place, supposed it was Mr. Pettys and opening the door of the house, entered. Finding Mrs. Pettys in the kitchen, he attempted to assault her, but in the scuffle that followed he fell into the bedroom and was forced open and Spenser caught sight of Mr. Pettys. He then beat a hasty retreat, disappearing down the street before Mr. Pettys could throw on his clothes to give chase.

Spenser has also been identified as the fellow who assaulted Mrs. Ida H. Green the morning of March 2, since which time the police have been looking for him. Mrs. Green's husband is employed as steamfitter by the Omaha Brewing company and his duties necessitate his leaving home shortly after 4 o'clock every morning. The morning in question Green went to work as usual, leaving his wife asleep. Spenser, who evidently had been hiding awaiting his departure, entered the house soon after and finding Mrs. Green asleep, seized a man and attempted to assault her, but she managed to beat him off and take refuge under the bed. The neighbors were aroused by the noise of the struggle, but Spenser made his escape. Mrs. Green's 8-year-old son saw Spenser run out of the house and positively identifies him.
