

IMPORTANCE OF CHARACTER

Dr. Lyons of Monmouth College maintains that Without It Life is a Failure.

REV. BROWN ATTACKS EXPOSITION MIDWAY

Dean Fair on "Different Schools of Thought" - "Christ's Personality" by Rev. MacAyeal - "The Head of Wives" by Rev. Allen.

Dr. R. R. Lyons, president of Monmouth college, at Monmouth, Ill., occupied the pulpit of the Central United Presbyterian church yesterday morning. The doctor's visit here at this time is in the interest of the college. An opportunity has been presented whereby the college may have its endowment increased by $100,000. Chicago friends of the institution have pledged $50,000, provided another $50,000 be raised by commencement day next June. Dr. Lyons is now devoting his energies to raising the second half of the desired sum. The alumni of the college include a number of residents of this city, among them being the pastor of the Central church. It is among these, as well as among members and friends of the United Presbyterian church, that Dr. Lyons hopes to secure a part of the fund he is striving to accumulate.

A fair audience greeted Dr. Lyons yesterday morning and he preached a sermon of deep thought, leading up to the question of college work. His thought was that the essence of life is character and with character life is a failure. The Christian college moulds not only the mind, but the character of the young men and women who seek to improve their mental and spiritual welfare within its walls.

"I have come that they might have life and have it more abundantly," was the text around which the thread of the discourse was woven. "Spiritual life does not consist of outward things, but of inward character," said Dr. Lyons. "Few know what is spiritual life. The beggar in the street may have more of spiritual life than the occupant of the mansion, who possesses the material things of life. Character consists of the power to see the things of God. The millionaire may have the magnificent gallery of pictures, but the poor boy from the street may steal through the gallery and derive all the pleasure from the works of art. The owner has only the things of life, while the boy has the soul which enables him to see their beauties.

Life must consist of the qualities of your soul and of your goodness. You may adopt a poor child, furnish it with clothes and clothing and food, but you do not give it character. God adopts us that we may have His character and out of this come the blessings which fall upon the family of God. He gives us life and gives it abundantly as we emulate His character. You have a library in this city which is a credit and an honor to your citizens, yet there are many who cannot read, who cannot comprehend a thought. What an enlargement of life it would be if we could lift them up to comprehend these things. That is what Christ is doing. He is lifting us up that we may comprehend God. He seeks to open our eyes to another world."

Dr. Lyons then took up the point that Christian colleges are engaged in opening the eyes of young men and women of the world to Christ. Thus the mission which he sought in this city was one for Christ and the church, and not for earthly corporation. He explained the opportunity now before the college and the great need of its success. It was supremely essential that the endowment of the college be increased, or its work would be seriously curtailed. At the conclusion of the sermon it was announced there would be a meeting of the former students of the college, friends of the institution and members of the church at the auditorium of the Young Men's Christian association this morning for a conference with Dr. Lyons on the subject of the college endowment.

"MIDWAY'S BURLEFF INFLUENCE.

Inevitable Damage Done to the Spiritual Life of Omaha.

Rev. Andrew Christy Brown declared from his pulpit in the Knox Presbyterian church yesterday morning that the giddy Midway of the exposition last year did incalculable damage to the spiritual life of Omaha, from which the churches have not yet fully recovered. He found occasion for making this charge in the fact that the annual report of the congregation, which was submitted to the congregation, showed that the congregation had been at a standstill and has even deteriorated a little in point of numbers during the last year. "I find that the same complaint comes from other churches in the city," said Rev. Mr. Brown. "I do not want to disparage the exposition, which was doubtless a magnificent success from a scientific point of view, but the Midway had a deadly influence upon the churches. It was blatant and offensive—it drew church people from the churches on the Sabbath—it offered to the eyesight and the ears expressions to which many eyes and ears had never been exposed—it was more unbecomingly than some of the places in this city which people...

A new Flavor for Breakfast For "Finicky" Appetites. Grape-Nuts.

"My investigation further shows that I believe men are more cranky on the subject of food than women. It will pay you to have some advertisements appealing to men, especially business men. "Keep in mind that men have very finicky appetites for breakfast. "They smoke a great deal during the day, stomach gets out of order, and the next morning's food must be very tempting to attract their attention, and Grape-Nuts are the one article of food that will find a friend among such men. Wishing you continued success, I am, etc." This is from a letter from a prominent business man, who volunteered the advice about Grape-Nuts advertising. There is one special reason why Grape-Nuts are popular among men who use their brains. The new food does contain certain natural elements that rebuild the gray matter in the brain, and a person can depend upon it that after ten days or two weeks' use of Grape-Nuts, he will discover a marked improvement in his mental forces. This is not merely a claim, but the statement is borne out by the analysis of the food, and by the actual experience of those who use it. When these facts are coupled with the really remarkable and delicious flavor, one can realize why it is the factory has been running steadily night and day for over five months and has been sold behind in filling orders.

pose, great fortitude and wonderful repose. He set before the world the greatest principle that was ever enunciated and He did it with a fortitude that nothing could disturb. His mental poise was a distinctive element of masculine greatness. The statement was made that future generations will agree that the greatness of William McKinley consists in the calm poise of his character. During the last few months the administration has been vigorously assailed, but this calm and heroic figure has stood unmoved through all the factional strife and clamor.

Graciousness, tact and sympathy were the feminine characteristics that the speaker considered most notable in the personality of Christ. He possessed these attributes as no woman has ever possessed them and he referred to a number of the familiar incidents in His life to show how frequently these traits had been exhibited. Another wonderful characteristic of Christ was the fact that, though by birth and training He was a Jew and a provincial, His after life was not what we would expect from such a source. He also possessed the peculiar combination of purity and righteousness with perfect sympathy and helpfulness for sinners. In this there is a lesson to be learned by the modern Christians. As men grow in outward propriety and in conformity to certain standards they seem to become harder and lacking in sympathy with the sins and failures of their fellow men. When Elizabeth was at the height of her religious fervor the heads of martyrs were lying upon the floor and when the Puritans were so eminently obedient of the faith that they considered it almost a sin to eat an apple on the Sabbath, they were cropping men's ears and banishing Roger Williams. The same tendency continues to the present, and in conclusion the speaker urged his hearers to study more clearly the personality of Christ as a model after which to pattern their own lives.

Tobacco Habit is Assailed. Rev. Savidge Gives Seven Good Reasons Against Using Filthy Weed.

The tobacco habit received some sledge hammer blows at the hands of Rev. C. W. Savidge last evening at the People's church. He gave seven reasons for his attack on "the filthy weed," as follows: The wisest and best men speak against its use; tobacco is uncleanly; it is expensive; it is an awful tyrant; it is a fruitful mother of disease; it seriously affects the health of the one who uses it; and it is a sin against God. Each of these points was proven by facts presented by Mr. Savidge. Franklin, Greeley, Jefferson and Webster all spoke against tobacco. The filthiness of the weed is witnessed everywhere. In our own country we burn up more than $100,000,000 annually for cigars alone. The people of the United States pay out for tobacco in all its forms $700,000,000 every year. The tyranny of tobacco is known to everybody; it makes slaves of millions and millions. Disturbing authorities were cited to show that tobacco is poisonous and productive of disease. A plug of a certain kind of chewing tobacco contains 380 grains of nicotine, enough to kill 200 men. General Grant, ceased smoking too late. Captain Hart of Minnesota died of cancer produced by tobacco. So did Captain Cook of Nebraska. William S. Sebring died from tobacco in Omaha in 1897. Shortly before his death he wrote a warning to his old comrades to abandon the tobacco habit. Dr. Mathewson is quoted as saying that tobacco and whisky can be traced seven-tenths of the cases of insanity. Dr. Kerlin, in charge of the largest asylum in the world for the feeble-minded, says that "by far the greatest proportion of the inmates of that institution are children of men who are tobacco users." The conclusion drawn by Mr. Savidge from these facts is that the use of tobacco is a sin. He urged all tobacco users to stop the vile habit and advised the non-users "never to acquire it."

HUSBAND IS HEAD OF THE WIFE.

Paul's Words are Discussed and Explained by Rev. C. B. Allen.

"When the apostle, Paul, wrote the words, 'the husband is head of the church,' it does not mean that the wife is to be a slave or treated like one," remarked Rev. C. B. Allen, pastor of the Beth-Eden Baptist church, yesterday morning. "However, when Paul wrote this sentence existing conditions were different from those of the present time. Then the husband was the master and the wife was merely a slave, doing every duty required of her. She was regarded as a piece of property and frequently disposed of like any other article of furniture in the household. The husband could sell or dispose of her in any manner that pleased his fancy, and in some instances he was at liberty to kill her if he felt so disposed. "In this day and age of the world the husband is not always supreme, and I can call to mind cases where certain wives have more sense than their husbands will ever have. "Paul declares that the husband is head of the wife, and the term may be used much in the same manner as the expression that 'Christ is head of the church,' and in this connection it seems to me, first of all, that the husband's headship is moral and spiritual influence. In this connection man's headship should be one of great moral power; man should be such a manly man as to command the respect and esteem of his wife, for it is a fact that no man can afford to be anything but a manly man. He should be such a man that his wife can look up to him as a guide to holy living. "I have no sympathy with the statement frequently made that religion is only for women and children; I have no sympathy with the statement so often given publicly that 'I look after the business and my wife looks after the religion.' The wife has a divine right to look up to the husband as an assistant in the religious training of the children, as God places at least a portion of this responsibility upon him. In early days the entire responsibility for the moral and religious training of the children was placed upon the husband, but now there are many fathers and husbands who seek to shirk this responsibility by saying: 'God put it on the mother.' If men are not Christians they ought to be; it is to a man's everlasting folly and shame that he is not a Christian; there is no way by which he can justify himself and...

PERSONALITY OF JESUS CHRIST. Combined Both Masculine and Feminine Traits of Character.

The personality of Christ was the topic of the morning discourse by Rev. Howard MacAyeal at Plymouth Congregational church. His remarks were based on the scriptural passage which declares that "Christ is wonderful" and he briefly cited some of the reasons why this declaration is literally true. The first remarkable characteristic of Christ that the speaker emphasized was the fact that there were exhibited in Him the peculiar attributes both of a man and of a God. He received from His fellow men that which gave Him sorrow and returned to them that which gave them the highest joy. He was in every respect a man like unto other men, but He also displayed all the characteristics that belong to God. MacAyeal also declared that Christ was wonderful because He combined both the masculine and feminine traits of character. That He should be a man was natural, but it was also essential that He should have those qualities that would bring to Him the love of the world. This remarkable feature of His life predicated the fact that in the final redemption there will be neither male nor female, for all shall be one in Christ Jesus. Continuing the speaker called attention to three striking characteristics of the Savior as illustrating each side of His dual character. His most prominent masculine traits were the inspiration of a mighty pur-the fault is all the greater if he is not a follower of Christ.

"The words of Paul do not enjoin upon man to command his wife, but rather, they imply that he should love her. It is by love that Christ rules the church and it is by love that man should rule his wife. Love is the tie that binds man to his wife and this tie should be the prime consideration in the family. There may be other considerations, but they are all secondary. I believe that a majority of families are happy ones; I believe a majority of marriages are happy ones; I believe a majority of homes are happy ones. But of these we hear nothing, instead, if there is an unhappy home every person in the block knows of it and hears of it."

"Rosemary" is to be given at Boyd's tonight, tomorrow night and at a special party Tuesday by Gus Skinner and his company. Mr. Skinner has executed an exceedingly clever move in securing this bright and popular comedy. It had the longest run in the city last year. The cast is exceptionally good. The supporting company of the leading female roles. The piece will be given on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, judging from the heavy advance sale.

Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock the box office will be open for the exchange of tickets and sale of seats in the Grand Opera House. The play to be given is "The Rough Mr. Ryder," which will be played Thursday and Friday nights of this week. Hundreds of applications for seats have been received, but all have been referred to the rule that a clean box sheet awaits the first person in line tomorrow morning. The advance sale is a revelation to the friends of the talented amateurs in the cast and the many bright songs, dances and specialties are on a par with the best. Be on hand in the morning and reserve your seats.

Rosenthal, whom foreign critics deem a great actor, will appear at the Grand Opera House at Boyd's Wednesday night. Rosenthal gave over 100 concerts in America ten years ago when only 24 years of age. His initial appearance did not receive the wonderful success he has since acquired. Every season brings out a new and original opera. It is certain that Rosenthal will be "the" star of the musical world this year. Most of the concert dates are already taken or bespoken for and his original tour of fifty concerts has been extended to seventy.

Mrs. Longshore Potts, M. D., who is to give five lectures at the Boyd opera house, commencing Thursday afternoon, is a specialist in the study of medicine. She holds that to keep women in ignorance of the physiological rationale of their functions is nothing less than a crime. There is no need that women should be familiarized with unpleasant pathological details, although there is more than a little justification for the observation that some knowledge of pathology in its relation to vice and heredity is their right.
