Fired by the Seventh Ward Republicans in the Judicial Contest.

BAKER AND POWELL WIN FIRST LAURELS

Sentiment of the Club Favors Their Candidacy and Their Official Conduct is Unnaimously Endorsed.

The first large political meeting of the year was held at the quarters of the Seventh Ward Republican club last night and the aspirations of four rival candidates for the district bench were thoroughly ventilated before a crowd that included nearly all the most prominent republican workers of the The meeting was ostensibly to determine the manner in which the preference of the voters in regard to the various candidates should be expressed, but it developed that the sentiment was very onesided and a resolution that practically endorsed Judges Baker and Powell for re-election by endorsing their conduct during their first term was adopted by a rising vote against which Sam Macleod registered himself as a minority of

The fight was between the supporters of Baker and Powell on one side and those who favored the aspirations of A. S. Churchill and George A. Day on the other, and the Baker and Powell faction was plainly predominant. The speakers expressed the best of feeling toward the other candidates, but based their support of the present incumbents on the rule that a second term is due to an official who has once served with

Vice President G. S. Ambler called the meeting to order and E. T. Peterson acted as secretary. After some preliminary business the candidates were called on to express themselves and the first call was for Judge Baker. He received an enthusiastic stated his position. He referred to the gen- hold good until June 1, 1900. At the last eral practice of endorsing an official by rethe last four years he wanted them to re-elect him. He took occasion to toss a few permanent walks to be laid in certain discidentally to throw a brick in the direction of certain other residents of the ward. "I abhor," he said, "and God despises a man cinct to precinct and sows dissension in the ranks of his party. " The crowd applauded the sentiment in a manner that indicated it was intended to hit someone and then the other side was given a chance.

Day States His Case.

Mr. Day followed with a brief presentation of his reasons why he considered himself entitled to the support of the ward. He suggested that the political somersault executed by Judge Scott left one vacancy on the bench so far as the republican ticket that some of the other judges are not entirely satisfactory. In view of this and the fact that he had lived in the ward longer than Judge Baker he had decided to be a candidate. He declared that he was personally friendly toward Judges Baker and old system walks used to be laid on 2x4 Powell and would have nothing to say stringers. These stringers soon rotted and try to secure the nomination and if he out, causing accidents when a person walked decided to endorse. He suggested in closing that the names of all four candidates be

He declared that the attorneys were all voting for Baker and Powell because they were afraid of them and this raised a general protest which merged into an emphatic invitation to Macleod to eit down. Then Sam's Scotch blood mantled the back of his neck and he vehemently called for some one who was big enough to make him sit down. No one answered and he raised the limit. "Any two of you," he shricked, "come on and try it," and what else he said was lost in an uproar that con-

Fugitive Quickly Caught. The efficiency of the present police regime illustrated by an arrest that was made last night. Jens Jorgeson from justice wanted in Chicago on the harge of seduction. He came to the city Friday and, although believing himself safe from capture, he was careful not to appear n public places. Thursday night Captair Donahue read to the patrolmen and de-tectives assembled at roll call a printed circular containing Jorgeson's description sent by the Chicago police to all the cities of the middle west. An hour later Jorgeson ventured down town for a walk and was seen by Detectives Jorgenson and Mc Carthy, who took him into custody. son confessed to Captain Donahue that is the person wanted in Chicago and he agreed to return without requisition papers. The Chicago authorities have been notified of the arrest.

Mrs. Siegel Traced to Chicago. Moritz Monheit has at last received word hat Mrs. Siegel, his mother-in-law, left New York for Omaha last Saturday, arrived in Chicago. Nothing further has arrived in Chicago. Nothing further has yet been learned as to what became of her. Her departure was to be taken from the same departure at which the same depart at which the same department at the same de the same depot at which she arrived in and it is inconceivable how she should have been lost. Railroad officials are still doing their best to locate her.
