Two Danes Contribute Their Hard Earnings to the Support of a Stranger.

OLD GAME OF THREE CARD MONTE WORKED

Victims Are Decoyed by Two Swedes and, as Usual, the Stranger Appears on the Scene and Turns the Trick.

Two Swedes who were looking for Scandianvian friends picked up a couple of strange Danes on the street Saturday afternoon. When they parted the Danes were the last week, especially since the latter ex-$20 poorer as a result of the acquaintance-

They consented, stop- markable expansion of $15,902.600 in foar ping in at a saloon on the way to trink a sum very much larger than anticipate some beer. Then they caught a car and There has been, it is true, some revival is rode to the grounds.

Soon after they alighted they were met to be a southwestern ranchman. This stranger told them of the money he had two having roosters across their face. He left one devil in his pocket and then began to slip the cards through his fingers. It was the same old story. Pretty soon was the same old story. A WORD FOR FLOWER MISSIONS

President of the Emma Flower Mis sion Explains Its Charitable and Benevolent Motives.

OMAHA, June 17 .- To the Editor of The the criticism on "Flower Mission Methods." which appeared in last Sunday's Bee, did not put her name to such an uncharitable article. Not for one moment do we take to our selves the ungenerous fault-finding of this anonymous invalid, as the methods complained of are never used by us, but in instice to the faithful girls who go out every Thursday on this mission of love and to all who have helped and sympathized with us in the work, and that we may not be misunderstood by those who know nothing of it, we feel that we must say a word for ourselves, for we are jealous of the good name of the for we are jealous of the good name of the Emma Flower Mission.

Perhaps, had "Dolly" been not generally higher. Business in this de able, she might have appreciated the one partment is moderate. Egyptian yarns ar

The manner of giving, as the critic finds it, cannot apply to us either, or we would not hear from nurses in the hospitals, as well as from the patients themselves, how much good our weekly visits do. We remember going into a hospital when a patient said as we entered with our basket of flowers: "It does us good just to see you coming in." Our manner could not have been so indifferent or our face borne a bored expression or we would not have been greeted thus.

The world is made up curious people and It is expected that deeds most kindly meant should sometimes be wasted on an unappreclative person, but in the five years of flower giving among the afflicted this is the very first instance of anything approaching fault-finding that has come to our notice. On the contrary, the smiling faces, whispered blessings and thankful letters for a gleam of sunshine shed on the path of suffering have been without number and are among the most precious memories of those interested.

It is not a work of charity only as it is significant of love and only a distorted imon the acts of these "flower girls."

As the critic has been "confined in seven different hospitals" it may be that she has had some such experience as quoted, but this should not be allowed to reflect on all work of this kind and give people in general an erroneous idea of it. Naturally a young girl would feel a little timid in approaching a stranger and a little awed in the face of so much they do not understand and the simple remark, "Have a flower," would be wiser than discussing "physicians and ailments" with the sick. Sometimes there are mistakes made in receiving as well as giving. MRS. GEORGE A. HOAGLAND.

The advance at Liverpool, September starting at 78144788c, compared with yesterday's close of 774c, and advancing limmediately to 784c. The advance at Liverpool, following yesterday's decline here, came as a surprise to traders and was taken to indicate that the conservative English market was at last responding to the Russian crop damage news. Domestic crop news, however, was favorable at first and shortly after the opening a realizing movement set in which carried the price back to 784c. Ideal weather for harvesting operations was reported from the southwest, while in the northwest the cool wave following the recent heavy rains quieted fears for the growing crop. Minneapolis and Duluth receipts were liberal—597 cars, against 688 last week and 83 a year ago. Chicago receipts were 113 cars, ten of contract quality. Primary western market receipts were 732,000 bushels, against only 199,000 bushels a year ago. Atlantic port clearances were equal to 225,000 bushels. Export trade at New York was only moderate, but 200,000 bushels were reported worked from here. Shortly before 11 o'clock the market again took an upward turn and from that time on was decidedly strong. Private cabirs and New York advices all confirmed that the drouth was spreading to districts that heretofore have not been affected. Shorts covered liberally. Outside buying was heavy on unfavorable reports from The hour. Minneapolis and Duluth reported large flour sales. September advanced steadily to 78c and was bringing 78%c at the close.

Some Furnish Excellent Examples and Others Fall from Grace. That the army is not exactly conducive to is pretty generally conceded, says the Sathings to say about their spiritual advisers that induce one to believe something of what that they are not very much good and are merely "sops to public sentiment." Many chaplains are as good men in the rmy as out and the lives of strict and up right Christianity they led before entering the army have been followed with even greater precision than before they doffed their clerical vestments to don the soldier's coat with the cross on the shoulder strap

But there are others. A regiment that arrived not long since from Cuba and passed on through to another city to be mustered out had what the soldiers denominated a "peach of a chaplain." He had been a minister before entering the service and it is probable he will return to his congregation when he is mus tered out and be as sanctimonious as re quirements demand. But in the army he has been looked upon as a sort of bon vivant and a rare old sport.

While the chaplain did not play poker, he was yet a judge of the great game, and it always gave him a pain to see a novice losing golden opportunities with good hands. He sat behind an officer, young in the serv ice, on the way up from Cuba. Time has hung heavily and a quiet little six-handed game had started. Pay day had been almost forgotten it had been so long since the pay master had turned over the crisp new bills that Uncle Sam uses to pay off his soldiers, so the limit was small.

The chaplain was interested. Perhaps i his younger and sinful days he had bucked the striped cat himself and a little of the virus of those days remained. He continued o inspect the hands as they were dealt the officer in front of him. The latter was not superstitious and made no objection to the chaplain sitting behind him, but finally he got three jacks. Another player made a good stiff bluff and raked down the pot the jacks should have won. "You play like a fish," said the chaplain. "Why the mischlet didn't you kick him up?" which, in the days of the pastor chaplain's youth meant "raise

When one of the regiments discharged here was about to go out of the service a question arose about the chaplain. enior officers were in a quandary. The chaplain had forsaken the straight and narrow paths, officers and men said, and there had been nothing of a very religious character about him since his connection with the command, though he had been a good preacher before securing his commis slow and had stood well in the church. It was another example of the effect of army officer in the regiment who received a dis-

life. Finally it was decided to hold a court ture of an uptown evening company on Friof inquiry to look into the chaplain's record day, relates the Philadelphia Record, and and the result was that he was the only after most of the party had expressed their thoughts on the subject with the result that opinion was about equally divided, a baldheaded man spoke up, saying he had become convinced that the word that should be used was "got." carted away to the dump. In all these months that the contractors have been at work on the old building a great change has been wrought. The building has been practically demolished save the mere outside shelf. The old girders, lathing and plastering have been torn out. The massive beams that once supported the might not have woke him up, and there Tool, hoor and gattered with slow, owing to the delay in receiving the steel work. Now, however, the heaviest work is almost completed and the lighter construction will be rushed to completion with all possible speed. Steel framework, eteel girders and steel beams have replaced the old-style wooden construction. The interior of the old hall presents a most chaotic aspect. Vistas of great steel eclumns in all their ugly barrenness, wooden stagings and supports, greet the eye in all directions. The heavy steel work is now all in position with the exception of the tower. Two-thirds of the roof is ready for the slaters. This roof is of concrete on top of steel and the end of next week will see this part of the work in a finished state. When that is out of the way the tower will be undertaken. This, also, will be of steel and will conform exactly to the lines of the old one. The great bell was taken from its resting place in the storehouse on Thursday and hoisted to the roof. Work on the tower was of necessity delayed until the roof was practically finished, as the room was required for the swinging of the huge derricks to hoist material into position. The bell will first be placed in position and the work of building the tower about it will be begun. Then will come the plastering, the interior work, the grand cleaning up, and finally the more delicate work of reconstructing the interior to conform in every detail with its

as different from that shown by the chaplain as it could well have been. The chaplain had never shown any great fondness for holding services even in this country and when his command reached Cuba their frequency was not increased. His plea, when his brother officers joked him about it, was that he had no place to hold services. 'I'll call that bluff," a young captain deided, and he got a lot of his men together

It was then about a quarter past 2. Whether the alarm had gone off and failed to wake him up, or whether it was likely to ring at any minute while I was standing there, or whether it busted up and wouldn't go off at all was but that interested me very much. sales at $3.60.

The receipts of hogs this week have been arge, but at the same time the market has been in fairly good condition. The week started out with a decline of about 2c, but values advanced 7½c on Tuesday and the narket was a shade stronger on Wednessiay, which proved to be the high point of the week. Thursday's market was a shade savier and Friday's market was a shade very the week. Thursday's market was a shade easier and Friday's market was also a very little lower. Converting the Historic Edifice Into To the eye of the casual observer, says the Boston Transcript, there has been little change in the appearance of Fancuil hall since the day when the familiar tower of that historic edifice was razed and the roof and timbers torn out by the contractors to whom it had been given over for improvement. The public is quite familiar with the plans of the architects. They were to provide a structure conforming to the modern ideas of building-an edifice solid on its foundations, safe from basement to tower top, and withal fireproof. It was for this reason that the occupants of the basement were discommoded for many weeks, while massive stones were dragged into position, existing walks strengthened and columns of iron and steel substituted for pillars of wood. This was the first step. Then the tower disappeared and the familiar, sounded to martial tread. Outwardly that was the only sign of the havoc within, save the debris poured from the entrance and
