Baltimore, 4; Washington, 1. BALTIMORE, July 8.—But one game was played here this afternoon with Washington and the Orioles won that. A double-header was expected, but rain delayed the beginning for half an hour and at the end of the third inning of the second game McDonald brought matters to a close on account of darkness, caused by another storm. At that time the score was tied, each team having secured one run. Attendance, 2,470. Score:

AMERICAN, KING OF THE LINKS

Home-Bred Golfer Wins Championship for First Time on Record.

SCOTCH PLAYER BEATEN AFTER HARD FIGHT

Victory of Long Island Contestant May Go Far Toward Rendering the Game Popular on This Side of the Sea.

LAKE FOREST, Ill., July 8 .- Herbert M. Harriman of the Meadowbrook Golf club of Hempstead, Long Island, today won the amateur gold championship of America from Findlay Douglass, who won the championship last year. The score was three up, two to play. The game was by long odds the most exciting that has ever been played in a western tournament and when the old foot ball player finally hoed down on the thirty-fourth, bringing the coveted championship to himself, the crowd broke into enthusiastic cheering and Harriman was nearly lifted off his feet by the attempts to congratulate him. For the first time since amateur golf championship tournaments have been held an American-born goffer holds the honors and this fact was commented on by golfers tonight, who believe it will go far toward popularizing the game in the United States. Harriman's work with the irons during the morning game was pronounced the prettiest seen during the tournament, although the meda? score, 81, was but one more than that made by Douglass earlier in the week. But Harriman's playing was a marvel of steadiness, and although Douglass almost invariably outdrove him the difference was not enough to materially affect the result, and the Meadowbrook man's approaches forced Douglass to play the odd in nearly every instance. Old golfers, men who learned the game on links in Scotland, pronounced Harriman's play superior to that ever shown in a tournament in the United States and fully equal to amateur playing in Scotland. Douglas, on the contrary, especially during the morning, was sadly out of form on his putting, and although during the afternoon Promptly at 10:30 a. m. Douglass and Douglass had the honor and drove off about 200 yards. Harriman's drive was five yards shorter. His brassie shot put him well on the green. Douglass sliced a trifle, but got on the edge of the green and his third massie shot was within two yards of the cup. Harriman putted nicely to within two feet of the hole. Douglass was down in massie shot was within two yards of the cup. Harriman putted nicely to within two lefect of the hole. Douglass was down in four on a pretty put and Harriman followed suit, the hole being halved.

Douglass drove for the second, went to the right, but it was a good lie, Harrimans' drive was a beauty, landing well on the green. On his second Douglass approached within a yard of the hole, Harriman's approach hit the champlon's ball and went beyond the cup. Douglass missed a three-foot put and Harriman playing the like and was down three. Harriman one up. At the end of the fourth hole Harriman on was three up on Douglass' was better by three yards, Harriman's drive for the third went true fand far, but Douglass' was better by three yards, Harriman slightly pulled his brasse shot, landing on the edge of the bunker, but his third, a mashle shot, landed him dead on the green. Douglass' brasse shot was true and his third placed him within four yards of the cup. Harriman playing the odd putted within a yard of the hole. Douglas overputted, and playing five again missed an easy put, Harriman holed in five and the score was 2 up for the American. Both made splendid drives for the fourth, but the champlon's was again the farther by about six yards, though somewhat to the right. Harriman used a mid-iron shot, went over, but Douglass lofted too far also. Playing the odd, Harriman putted within a yard of the hole. Douglass' drive was a beautiful one, fully thirty yards farther and close to the bunker. Harriman iofted within two yards of the hole. Douglass' drive was a senior and harriman holed down in four, a nice three-yard put. Harriman iofted within two yards of the hole. Douglass missed his filth and Harriman holed down in four, a nice three-yard put. Harriman iofted within two yards of the hole. Douglass missed his filth and Harriman was power putted, but Douglass, who appeared rather nervous, missed an easy put, and playing two daying two again missed an easy put, and the hole was Harriman. Harriman underestimated the fo feet of the hole. Douglass was down in bunker on his third. Harriman's second of putting, and although during the afternoon he made a remarkably game uphilf fight the handicap of eight down, the result of the morning's play, was too great for him to overcome.

At the end of the eighteen holes Harriman was eight up on Douglass. Driving for the thirteenth against a strong wind, Harriman got a good lie, Douglass barely cleared the bunker on his third. Harriman's second approaches within five yards of the hole. The hole was halved.

Conditions were far from favorable for first-class golf during the morning, the high wind which swept over the links rendering good driving extremely difficult on the first, second, third, tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth holes, But this apparently did not affect the playing of the men and their drives were nearly always long and splendidly placed.

But Douglass' poor short iron work was fatal. Time and time again during the morning he lost holes or lost opportunities to halve by missing puts of from one to two yards. During the afternoon the young Scotchman, with the score nine up, in favor of Harriman, played desperately and slowly reduced the lead.

But at last an error of judgment settled the question. On the thirty-fourth, the "baby" hole, where Douglass had fallen in the morning, he used his brassle and drove far beyond into the trees. Harriman similed grimly as he saw the little guttapercha ball light in the grove and taking his middron ke lifted his ball and the game was fost and won.

Promptly at 19:30 a. m. Douglass and Douglass, playing the odd, made a solen-

Harriman started on their long struggle. Douglass had the honor and drove off about 200 yards. Harriman's drive was five yards shorter. His brassle shot put him well on on a two-foot put and Harriman holed in Harriman five up. four. Harriman five up.

Both drove well for the "westward ho" hole. Douglass was farther by a few feet, hole. Douglass was farther by a few feet, Harriman's brassle shot was true as a die, but Douglass drove into the bunker. He was well out on his third. Harriman landed dead on the green. Douglass made one of the prettiest shots of the day, his long approach putting him within two feet of the hole. Harriman was short in his put, but Douglass again missed a short put and Harriman holed it in five. Harriman six up. At the end of the eighteenth hole Harri-

At the end of the eighteenth hole Harriman was eight up on Douglass.

The play proceeded with varied fortunes until the thirty-fourth hole, when Douglass drove far into the trees with a clumy lie and Harriman used his mashie and landed far on the green. Playing the odd, the Scotchman overran the hole by eight yards. Harriman rimmed the cup on a fifteen-yard put. Douglass' put was to the right and, playing another, he rimmed the hole. Harriman then carefully cleared the grass between his ball and the cup, then holed it and the amateur golf championship was his.
