To the Honorable, the City Council of the City of Omaha-Gentlemen: I have re-ceived a number of protests, both by letter and by 'phone, against the condition of Thirty-eighth avenue, from Farnam street over the whole city. this street have grown very rank and talf by reason of the wet weather prevailing throughout the spring and early summer Property owners say that the present con-dition of the street is very unsanitary, and that it is a menace to the public health to allow it to remain longer in this condition, and that the weeds should be cut at once, and dried and burned. Property owners also say that suspicious-looking characters have been seen hiding in the weeds in that

The same condition of affairs exists on all the streets of the city. Weeds have grown so rankly that on some streets they stand as high as a man's head. The police inform me that two or three suspects whom they were on the point of arresting have escaped from them by dashing into the high weeds along the streets. The Health department states that the present condition is liable to bring on malaria throughout the city. I do not report these facts to you with the idea that you can remedy them, because the absurdly low levy passed by a majority of the council last February is practically exhausted and there is no money to pay for doing the little work on the streets which would be required to keep them in decent condition. My reason for calling it to your attention is that when the levy is made next February you will be impressed with the fact that there are many people in the city who have a right to be considered who will not be found at the so-called taxpayers' meeting, protesting against the making of a reasonable levy. Respectfully, FRANK E. MOORES, Mayor.

Idea of a Regimental Reception Abandoned by the Committee.

EACH TOWN TO RECEIVE ITS OWN COMPANY

Sentiment of People at Large Thought to Be Unfavorable to the Omaha Plan-Local Movement

Started.

The committee in charge of the reception to the First regiment decided at its meeting Tuesday afternoon to abandon the plan of holding a demonstration in the name of the state and for the entire regiment, and to leave to each town the task of entertaining its own company. This decision was reached only after careful consideration of all the facts at the command of the committee and a full discussion of the probable sent to all those throughout the state who have signified their willingness to assist in the movement. The statement was signed by a member from each city represented at the meeting. It read as follows:

The general committee in whose hands was placed the reception on the part of the state of Nebraska to the returning members of the First Nebraska volunteers, bringing the regiment direct to the city of Omaha by special train from San Francisco, deems it best, and has so decided, to aban-don the project, feeling it to be the general sentiment of the people of the state that each town or city would prefer to enter-

J. H. CULVER, Milford, CHARLES H. SLOCUM, Geneva, JAMES D. GAGE, Franklin,

T. S. CLARKSON, Omaha. The main consideration leading the comnittee to the above decision was the receipt of two letters indicating the light in which many people of the outside towns have regarded the movement since its beginning. These letters stated that before any requests for funds would bear fruit in those sections of the state the people would have to be informed as to the intended place in Omaha of holding the reception and how many days the members of the regiment would be expected to stay in this city. Both letters asked if it were true, as many people supposed that the reception was to be held in the interest of the exposition.

The members of the committee deplored the fact that the spirit of the undertaking had been so misunderstood. Captain Culver as a member from outside the city of Omaha, stated that he was firmly convinced the scheme had been projected in pure, disinterested regard for the regiment and in no way from mercenary motives. The facts that the regiment was to be held in Omaha only one day and that the stores were to be closed the entire day, he thought, were enough to prove the truth of his opinion As a member of the committee he knew that every effort had been made to keep the welcome and all plans for it entirely disconnected from the exposition and it was unfortunate that an incorrect impression of the intentions of the committee in this regard

Charles H. Sloane of Geneva held the same opinion. He said the people of his section of the state had felt very friendly to the work of the Omaha committee and he regretted that the state welcome would hav to be abandoned.

Local Demonstration.

The Omaha members of the committee concluded to hold together and form a committee to arrange for the local demonstration of the company, not only after its arrival in of the company, not only after its arrival in are said to exist in the forests several hun-Omaha, but also en route east from the coast, dred miles from Quebec. were informally discussed. STOP REMOVAL OF HOSPITAL

Seventh Ward Property Owners Make a Successful Protest.

OTHER LOCATIONS WILL BE CONSIDERED

Captain Palmer Urges the Merits of River Tract-Advisory Board Promises to Visit the Place Suggested.

A delegation representing the property wners of the Seventh ward made an effective protest before three members of the Advisory board against the removal of the pest house in Fontanelle park to the county poor farm grounds. At their solicitation the board, or as much of it as was present, promised to suspend the removal of the hospital pending an inspection of other sites suggested by the protestants.

Yesterday the delegation appeared before the mayor and stated the object of the ited and there was not much opportunity to and richness to the blood. It is a promoter call. at once, but suggested that other members of the advisory board should also be present, and they were accordingly sent for. Comptroller Westberg and Health Commissioner Spalding were the only ones who could be found.

C. A. Baldwin asked the mayor and mem bers of the board to consider the feelings of the men who had epent their lives in building homes for themselves in that portion of the city. The location of the pest house in their immediate vicinity, he said, might damaged were it placed where the board proposed to put it. Center street was the city will have an exceedingly prosperous most popular street in the city, and in-future." cluding its connections with county roads, was paved a greater distance into the coun try than any other. Therefore thousands of farmers used it every week and it was a favorite drive for the people of Omaha He and his colleagues of the delegation, he asserted, were not opposed to a pest house. They were in favor of one and realized that the city must have one, but they were unalterably opposed to its location in the heart of the residence portion of the city. Mayor Moores pointed out that there would be objections from property-owners, no matter where the hospital were located, and asked what the city was to do. He did not believe the location of the pest house a part of the duties of the advisory board, but the board had been forced to assume it by a cowardly council, afraid to take ur its proper responsibilities. The council had further tied the hands of the city administration in this and all other matters by foolishly making an entirely inadequate Mr. Baldwin asked if the county commis sioners had ever consented to the location of the pest house there. Mayor Moores replied that they had, lately. Mr. Baldwin then declared that the commissioners were wholly without power to grant such permission, or put the grounds to any other use, but that for which they had been intended. If they attempted to do so they would be enjoined. Captain Palmer advocated the location of the emergency hospital or pest house on a tract of land east and slightly north of the city, by the river. He admitted that the "Winspear triangle" was a totally unfit place, but mantained against the objections of Doctor Spalding that the tract he had in mind was an ideal place. It had never been overflowed by the river, he said, within the memory of man, was covered by magnificent trees and had a beautiful outlook over the river. He claimed that it was not open to the objection that the air would be filled with fine sand, to the fatal injury of all smallpox patients, as Dr. Spalding claimed.

The discussion that followed, over the comparative merits of the various locations and the methods of conducting emergency itals in large cities was animated and times became heated. Mr. Ambler, chairman of the delegation, made a particularly violent attack on the advisory board and vociferated the statement that the pest house would never be located at the poor farm. Then the meeting became calmer, and Comptroller Westberg drove the entering wedge for a temporary settlement of the trouble by agreeing, as one member of the board, to visit the location suggested by Captain Palmer and examine its merits carefully. Mayor Moores then made the offer that the board would go in a body to the place and look it over, meanwhile suspending the steps toward the removal of the hospital from Fontanefle park. This offer was greeted with applause and was cheerfully accepted by the delegation. This aft ernoon was set as the time for the official turn home. "After my term of office at Washington expired I resumed the practice of law, dropping out of politics altogether. There isn't anything of interest on that subject I can say. Twenty years ago I passed through not harm them greatly, and the actual Omaha on a trip west. It was then almost danger might not be so great, but never- a village. Omaha's growth since that time theless they would consider themselves has been marked. Its commercial advantages are many and in my estimation the > Arrests Tom Jett. Tom Jett, wanted here ever since June 18 on the charge of assisting Charles Paris to hold up an employe of the Marks Saddlery company, dropped into the city Tuesday and was arrested by Officer Fisk. The robbery occurred at Twelfth and Jones streets. Jett will be prosecuted if the complaining witness can be located.

Omaha, Neb. Gentlemen-I cheerfully reply to your request for testimony because of the wonderful benefit I have received. I suffered months with rheumatism; went to Hot Springs; consulted the most eminent physicians and received no benefit; went on crutches until I took your glandular remedies. After taking them for six weeks I discontinued the crutches, and in three months I was perfectly cured. I wish to say remedies are all right. Yours very truly,
