Wabash Considers Advisability of Abolishing Expensive Foreign Agencies.

PLAN WILL BE WATCHED WITH INTEREST

Omaha Passenger Man Gives His Upin. ion on the Matter-Prosperity of Railroads is Shared by Employes-Railroad Gossip.

The Wabash railroad has a scheme on foot which, if it is successfully carried out, will be a valuable example to numerous other railroads all over the country. It is the abolishment of the expensive foreign agencies which it operates in cities far removed from its line. The plan is yet under edvisement and is expected to be definitely decided one way or the other by the first of next month. The arguments presented in favor of the closing of these offices is that their maintenance is expensive and the large amounts paid out in salaries and clerical hire. In doing away with the general this way at the present time, but will have freight and passenger agents who will work directly from headquarters instead of being under the supervision of general agents. If the proposed order of the Wabash is promulgated it will include the abolishment of the offices of general agents, of freight and passenger departments, and general agents of the combined departments, as well as contracting, commercial and soliciting agents and freight and passenger agents.

This plan of the Wabash is not new. A few years ago several roads attempted the same thing, but there was some kind of a hitch in the arrangements and the plan was never brought to consummation. Since then the various railroads have kept expensive general agencies in the larger cities, many of them thousands of miles from their actual operating territory, in order to meet the competition of other roads. If the Wabash takes the initial stand, without the aid and consent of any other railroad, and it proves successful in its operation, then a number of other roads may be expected to follow the lead.

An Omaha passenger man, connected with one of the large western lines, in whose territory there is an endless number of general agents representing eastern roads, said regarding this matter, "The proposition of the Wabash is a most sensible one. This thing of establishing expensive profitable, and it results in a competition of these outside roads with the transcontinental lines which takes from the latter much business which legitimately belongs to them. But while this cuts something of an inroad on the business of the through lines, it does not amount to enough for the foreign roads to pay them in keeping the agencies in operation. I will not be at all surprised to see the Wabash take the stand proposed, and if it does there will take similar action by the first of next Wages are also better than they have been for many years and the prosperity which is being enjoyed by all of the big railroad systems is shared by the employes. Nearly every road in the western country is keeping its men steadily at work and new schedules have gone into effect recently with the several railroad orders-the engineers, firemen, conductors and brakemen-because of the increased size of rolling stock, such as furniture, grain and coal cars.

In speaking of this improved condition of affairs a railroad man said: "Wages are certainly higher than they have ever been in recent years. Engineers are now earning about $15 a month more than they used to and it is a poor month when their pay checks do not reach from $185 to $190 per month. The same increase is about proportional with the firemen, conductors and brakemen and the working railroad men seem to be generally satisfied with the present condition. There has been a tendency of increase along all lines; even the section men are paid better for a day's labor now than they formerly rawls Between Bars on Second Stor; Window and Drops Eighteen Feet to Ground.

Ralph Cramer, a 16-year-old lad, locke up in the matron's room at the city jail, made his escape from custody Sunday night by slipping through the wooden slate on a second story window and jumping to the ground, a distance of eighteen feet.

Cramer was detained in an upstairs room seldom used for prisoners. Because of his youth, the police did not want to lock him up with the hardened criminals. The lad was in the room when the day matron left offices in cities nowhere near the line of for home, and in the fifteen minutes interthe road represented has never proven vening before the night matron reported for duty he made his escape.

Boys and important witnesses have got ten out of the window before, but the police thought by nalling slats across it there would not be a repetition of trouble. Young Cramer happened to be a slender lad and managed to slip between the bars without difficulty. The boy was being held for stealing a gold watch from the room of W. S. Hawley, 415 South Eleventh street. There was another small boy be a number of other roads that will implicated in the offense and the officers were searching for him. Cramer confessed to the theft and the watch was recovered.

Case Is Set for This Morning and When a Decision is Reached it Will Be Taken Before Another Magistrate.

Anton Albert Inda, the policeman charged brought before the police court yesterday to hear Judge Gordon's ruling on Attorney Connell's motion for his release on bail. The decision was that Inda could not be allowed to furnish bail.

Judge Gordon explained at great length the circumstances on which he based his opinion and when he wound up with the statement: "At this time there seems to be no other course than to refuse bail." Attorney Connell immediately arose and in-

Inda, in charge of Sergeant Wisenberg, ame into the court room at 9 o'clock County Attorney Shields and the city proseouter, Mr. Connell, were present, ready for ludge Gordon's decision. Before it was announced the two lawyers outlined their sides of the case. Judge Gordon said that the question of ball depended upon the evilence. The law, he said, exacted tha there must be either evident proof or great presumption of Inda's guilt to warrant his being denied bail. The attorneys had a rhetorical skirmish over the question of presumption and then the judge proceeded

Thousands of Silver Republicans in Black Hills Have Experienced

Thomas L. Redlon, city attorney of Lead. S. D., is in the city for a brief visit while en route to Chicago. Mr. Redion has been an active figure in politics in the Black Hills for several years and in speaking of the situation there, said: "The Black Hills region in general, and Lawrence county, in which Deadwood and Lead are situated, is particular, takes some peculiar notions is politics. Bryan carried the entire district in 1896 by an overwhelming vote, but it has since developed that the miners, who compose a large portion of the population, did not vote for him so much because they believed in the theories advocated by him, but for the reason that they hoped if free silve should carry it would result in the opening up of many of the western silver mines and the consequent furnishing of work to many miners then out of employment. It was purely a sympathetic question with them. Well, in the campaign of 1898 we had not become so familiar with the true status of the affair as we are now, and the fusionists believed that they would carry Lawrence county by a big majority. I was placed on the ticket as a candidate for county judge, representing the free silver wing, but to the surprise of all of us, there was a most decided change and instead of a large fusion majority, every republican, with one or two exceptions, was elected by an overwhelming vote, and I went down to defeat with the rest of the fusionists. We discovered then that the miners were not so much for free silver as we had believed, and as Mr. Bryan was led to believe when he made a jaunt through that country in 1896.

a sympathetic feeling in favor of opening false god of silver."

Mr. Redlon reports a marked improvement along lines other than political in the Black Hills at this time. Mining operations are being carried on extensively and there is an air of prosperity and advancement pervading the entire region.

"This year there is another remarkable change in the political situation in the Hills, and the several thousand silver republicans who went off with the fusionists on the money question have come to the conclusion that the silver issue is no longer paramount.
