Today the Jews of Council Bluffs will observe the festival of Yom Kippur-the Day of Atonement. It began, like all Jewish holidays, last evening at sunset and will end this evening at sunset. In the Jewish calendar it is the tenth day of the month of Tishri, on which the Hebrews begin their religious year.

The regular Jewish service has three daily prayers, to which on the Sabbath and holidays a fourth is added. On this festival of Yom Kippur, however, there are five. At the close of the services the shofar, a ram's horn, is blown in remembrance of the Jubilee year. Then the blessing is said over a cup of wine and a braided wax candle, which is the first light allowed the Jew to kindle, for on Yom Kippur, just as on the Sabbath, the lighting of fire is minful. After the services the worshipers congratulate each other, expressing the hope that their prayers were answered.

The orthodox Hebrew believes that on New Year's day God judges all the inhabstants of the world according to their conduct during the past twelve month; and enters his judgment in a book called "The Book of Fate." This judgment is believed to include punishments in the form of misfortunes, sickness and perhaps death during the coming year. This book of fate is closed on New Year's day at sundown and | my on the tenth day, Yom Kippur, it is scaled. The ten days from New Year until Yom

State Superintendent Barrett Hands Down His Long-Expected Decision.

ADVERSE TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Question of a Location for the Proposed New High School Building Left in a Worse Muddle Than Before.

The ruling of State Superintendent Bar rett in the appeal of T. L. Smith from the action of the board of education in selecting the Oakland avenue tract as the site for the proposed new high school building, was received here yesterday. It is adverse With headquarters at Burnington, and H.

Decision in Full.

On the 17th of April, 1899, the Board of Directors of the Independent district of Council Bluffs selected a certain piece of property, known as the Oakiand avenue site, upon which to erect a high school building. From the order of the board appellant appealed to the county superintendent, who heard the case in regular form, and on the 5th day of June, 1899, affirmed the action of the board. Appellant now appeals to the superintendent of public instruction.

great care and when bonds have been voted by electors and taxpayers to purchase a centrally-located site the discretionary power is to a great degree submerged by that of the voters.

In the case before us the electors did not seek in any way to name the exact location upon which should be erected the new building. Each elector who voted to authorize the issuing of the necessary bonds has a just right, however, to expect that the new building would be erected upon a site as centrally located as in the judgment of the board it is possible to select.

Powers of Electors.

By the provisions of section 2814 the Board of Directors of the school corporation can ake and hold an entire block exclusive of the stream and erect thereon. High series take and hold an entire block exclusive of the street, and erect thereon a High school building. While it is desirable that sites be obtained by purchase wherever possible, justice to all parties sometimes requires that so much realty as may be needed for school purposes be taken possession of, by the provisions clearly set forth in section 2815 of the code.

By the vote of the electors the board is under legal obligation to use its best judgment to obtain the most central site possible, either by purchase or by condemnation. Whether or not certain properties once offered to the board at stipulated prices were then unavailable is not a controlling element. The chief consideration was a central location. There were no limitations as to the amount that could tion was a central location. There were no limitations as to the amount that could be paid for the site, the size of the grounds nor the cost of foundation.

The record shows that the board met on the 11th of April and on the ninth formal ballot selected what is known as the Street site by a vote of 4 to 3. On the motion to make unanimous, seven yeas were recorded. If by this vote the board attempted to carry out the express wishes of the electors for a central location, how can it justify its action when on the 17th of April, having previously rescinded its action of April 11, it chose another site nearly or quite ten blocks north? of April 11, it chose another site nearly quite ten blocks north? or quite ten blocks north?

In a very carefully prepared opinion, the county superintendent says: "From the mass of conflicting testimony and contradictory tabulations before me, I conclude that in determining the question of convenience and centrality, the board had no very narrow field in which to exercise their discretion. Six of them have reached a conclusion, and I deem that it would be sheer presumption on my part, in absence of proof of mailce or passion, to set up my judgment in opposition to that of six men selected by the people."

Must Select Central Location.

The ten days from New Year until Yom Kippur are called ten days of penitence. The day is observed by abstinence from food and drink and bathing and anointing. The only ablution permitted is in the morning, when they wash their firgers and their cyes. The day is not now observed as strictly, however, as formerly.

State Superintendent Barrett's ruling is number of citizens who were anxious to see the school built on the site selected by the amounting to $2,021.03. avenue site, although few of them expected a reversal of County Superintendent Sawyer's ruling, it was of course the occasion of much rejoicing.

President Sims thought the ruling was based on a misstatement of the testimony.

He said: "The language of the decision shows elearly in my opinion that Mr. Barrett had distorted view of the situation and the facts. According to the decision the board, it appears, must ascertain the exact geographical center of the city and must then ocate the school there either by purchase or condemnation, even if the geographical center should fall on the site of the Grand hotel or the Baldwin block. Mr. Barrett has in my opinion failed to take into consideration that we have a limited sum of money at our disposal for the purchase of a site, also that many of the sites procurable are not large enough for such a building as we contemplate erecting. I am in favor of applying for a rehearing, but will suggest to the other members of the board that the selection of the site be now left with the people of the district and cation of the school be held. This in my opinion will be the most satisfactory and the fairest manner of settling the question."
