CARPENTERS WINNING OUT

Three Contractors Have Acceded to the Demand of Thirty-Five Cents an Hour.

The beginning of what apparently seems to be the end of the controversy between the carpenters and contractors occurred yesterday when Robert Burke, one of the members of the Contractors Mutual Benefit association, acceded to the demands of the carpenters for 35 cents per hour, and put several men to work upon the roof of houses on Twenty-fifth street, between Farnam and Douglas.

John Kerrigan, the foreman of the job, was instructed by Mr. Burke to return to work at the union scale of wages and place upon the building as many carpenters as he required. The result was that at 10 o'clock Kerrigan and several union carpenters went to work, and additional men will be employed today.

Walking Delegate Mouse of the Carpenters' union, responsible for the incident that John Ramussen, another member of the contractors' association, has put union men to work upon a saloon which he is erecting under the Sixteenth street viaduct, and that Philip Kunz will have more men to work at the union scale.

"By tomorrow noon we will have more good news for you," said Delegate Mouse. "I said all along that we would win, and it begins to look as though my prediction was coming to pass. With Kunz, Burke, and Ramussen paying the scale, I do not see how the other members of the association can help but give it. We are not crowing; we are simply making the announcement that the ranks of the contractors have been broken, and that in a few days they will fall into line and pay the men the scale asked for."

At an informal meeting of the contractors held Friday night it was strenuously denied that Contractors Robert Burke, Philip Kunz and John Ramussen are, or ever were, members of the Contractors' Mutual Benefit association, as given out by the officers of the Carpenters' union. The fact that these contractors acceded to the demands of the union men to have them to work at the new scale does not affect the determination of the contractors belonging to the association, so they say, to fight the matter to the bitter end. Robert Burke and John Ramussen, so it seems, did affiliate themselves with the association at the commencement of the trouble, but never went so far as to pay their dues.

The contractors say they have more applications for work than they possibly can consider, and see no advantage in acceding to the demands of the carpenters by paying 35 cents more an hour than is necessary. Fully 75 per cent of the contractors say they are working all the men they want, and when necessary can double their forces without even going so far as to advertise. They state positively that they have no intention of giving in at this time, and will refuse to employ union carpenters in the future except at 30 cents an hour, unless given a reasonable time in which to meet the advance. While they are determined to fight the matter out to the end at the present condition of affairs, still, for the sake of peace and harmony, they would be willing to arbitrate if the carpenters would meet them half way. All their contracts have the "abandonment" clause in them, which will not cause them to suffer by the action of the union men, but unless a contract promise is effected soon they will use the non-union carpenters who are anxious to work and send out of town for non-union men belonging to other trades and complete their jobs on hand.

CONSUMPTION CURED. An old physician, retired from practice, has placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma and all throat and lung affections; also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints. Having tested its wonderful curative power in thousands of cases, and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge to all who wish it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail, by addressing, with stamp, naming the paper, W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Charged with Theft of Wheel. Harry Kellner, 12 years old, deaf and dumb, was arrested Thursday night by Detective Grier for the theft of a bicycle from the Boston store. The lad has been living with his aunt, on North Twenty-eighth street. He is charged by store clerks with having stolen two bicycles and sold one of them to Hayden's wheel shop, Sixteenth and Chicago streets. Both wheels were recovered. The Boston store proprietors refused to prosecute the case and the lad was discharged. His relative says he did not know he was doing anything wrong in taking the bicycles and that he did not sell either of the machines, but gave one away.

TAKE HASTINGS BY STORM

Omaha Business Men Will Invade the Enterprising City Early This Morning.

All the arrangements for the Commercial Club and Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben trip to Hastings today are complete and the indications are that not less than 700 of the Omaha business men, many of whom will be accompanied by their wives, will accompany the party. In the two organizations there will be forty-two musicians.

All the people who go to Hastings will be replete in badges, ribbons and buttons. The members of the Knights of Ak-Sar-Ben will all wear the official badges, while everybody will wear the button designed especially for this occasion. This button is a huge affair, fully two inches across. The body is white, with the ornamentation in blue. At the top are these words: "Commercial Club," while at the bottom is "Ak-Sar-Ben."

Upon the excursion reaching Hastings the members will be met by the mayor at the head of a procession. There will be a parade through the principal streets, after which the male members of the party will be permitted to take in all the attractions of the street, while the wives and daughters of the Omahans will be taken in charge by the women of Hastings and entertained in royal style.

RUSTIC BOUGHT TIN WATCH

Typical Tittle of the Sell Pays Big Price for Timepiece Worth a Dollar a Barrel.

Jasper Duncan of Arkansas is a typical tittle of the sort who stopped in the city for a few hours on his way to Iowa and was buncoed into paying $3.75 for a tin watch worth 99 cents a barrel. Jasper wore boots and wide jeans trousers. He carried a carpet bag, through holes in his straw hat poked wisps of hair in true farmer fashion, and from his chin hung a lambrsequin of whisks of rural length and color.

When Duncan's curiosity prompted him to pause for an instant in front of a fake auction shop, near Douglas and Fourteenth streets, and glance inside, the auctioneer at once spotted him for a "good thing." The auctioneer held in his hand a watch, which he said, was formerly the property of a railroad engineer who died in destitute circumstances and left his widow and orphans nothing at all on which to subsist. They, poor people, had to sell the dear man's effects for whatever strangers would charitably give.

Here was a timepiece worth $150—the kind all railroad men carry. Would the stranger, who looked as if he knew a good watch when he saw it, give $10 for it? Duncan took a closer view of the watch. The wide, standing near by dressed in mourning weeds, shed a few tears. A sympathetic looking individual, who gets a per cent on every sucker, dropped the remark that he would give $10 just to help the lady out, if not as

AN INVESTMENT, IF HE ONLY HAD THE MONEY.

Duncan made an offer of $3.75. The auctioneer accepted, and the man from Arkansas carried away the watch. Finding he couldn't make it keep time he tried to return it, but the auctioneer had never seen him before, so Duncan had recourse to the police. He finally concluded it would be too much trouble to prosecute the auction-shop proprietor and decided to continue his journey on the next train out of the city.

Boys Terrified Community.

Phillip Handschuh, living near the corner of Thirty-third street and Fort Omaha avenue, has filed a complaint against two boys, Anaker Wild and John MacIntire, charging them with assault. There is a gang of boys, Handschuh says, infesting the neighborhood about the fort and whipping all the other small boys in the community. The two named in the complaint are said to have jumped on one of Handschuh's sons without provocation and trounced him. Handschuh says his boy is afraid to drive him to work in the morning because when returning alone the tough youngsters scare the horse till it becomes unmanageable. He asks that the lads be brought before the police court and admonished by the judge to behave.

Where is there within the range of one's trading in Omaha or elsewhere, a Cloak Department that compares with this? We can well afford to be boastful speaking about it. It has brought up cloak selling in the town to a higher plane and lessened the fakeishness that has been practiced upon you by some stores. Basing calculations upon information by the writer, the retailing of cloaks here equals that of several stores of the town put together. Aren't our conclusions at the opening of the department correct? That the trouble in Omaha was not the lack of cloak stores, but the lack of Popular priced ones.
