Secretary of State Porter will hear testimony and arguments Thursday afternoon on the protest of Juan Boyle against certifying the name of William Neville as the democratic nominee for congressman from the Sixth district, Deputy Attorney General Oldham this afternoon expresed a desire to appear for the democratic committee. It is not known who the other attorneys will be. Cooperage Case Submitted.

The case of the Omaha Cooperage company against Warden Hopkins, an action in replevin instituted by the Omaha concern to recover 272,000 barrel staves held by the warden of the penitentiary as security for the debt of the Lincoln Cooperage company, was argued and submitted before Judge Holmes in the district court this afternoon. The state contends that the name of the Omaha company was changed from the Lincoin Cooperage company to evade the payment of $4,000 due the state for convict labor. When the contract of the Lincoln company expired Warden Hopkins seized the staves in question and refused to allow them to be taken out of the penitentiary building. Ed P. Smith, formerly deputy attorney general, appeared for the relator and Attorney General Smyth and George Corcoran represented the warden and the state. An additional petition in error in the case of W. A. Paxton et al against the State was filed in the supreme court today by E. E. Brown. Numerous objections to the Douglas county court's ruling during the trial of the Bartley bondsmen are cited, several of them relating to the signing of the waiver. C. E. Wiedeman, for several years chief of the Lincoln fire department, resigned tonight and Captain Clements of the Omaha department was elected his successor at a salary of $1,200 per year.

BOUNTEOUS CROP OF FINE VEGETABLES

County Exhibits Are Elaborate and Creditable to a High Degree-Products Are Attractively Arranged for the Show.

The great fertility of Nebraska soil is nowhere better attested than in the Agriculture building at the Greater America Exposition just at this time, for that great building is filled with evidences of fertility and also of the wonderfully bountiful crops of this year. In this structure, set apart for Nebraska products, there is at present one of roads in the maintenance of rates, saying corn, emall grain and vegetables ever ing made last year in the same building. It is but within the last two weeks that the interior has been put in shape, as the for publication, touching upon his position odist Episcopal church at this place, in a decorators were compelled perforce to wait series of revival meetings. The meetings until after the harvest to obtain samples of the year's growth. As soon as the small Powers is a very able preacher and seems to grains were ripe they were put on show, and now that corn, the chief crop, is ready to be husked the amount of that staple coming in for display is simply enormous Several counties in the state have made excellent showings and there are also very fine exhibits from Iowa and Kansas. By all odds the Douglas county show is the best of all. It is the most elaborate and the largest. At the present time the corn is attracting the most attention. Some corn picked from the field of J. M. Abraham, near Valley, is about the finest that has ever been raised in the state. The seed was obtained from Ohio last year. One ear in the lot weighs over two pounds and it is all very large. The cob is small and filled to the very end compactly, many an ear not having a missing

Besides the corn there is also a fine showng made of potatoes. W. E. Some, from near Elk City, has an exhibit of potatoes that are top-notchers for size and perfect ness, some of them weighing as high as two pounds each and forty of them filling a bushel basket. A pumpkin weighing over 150 pounds attests to the fertility of the soil in this county and a number of very large watermelons also are another evidence Waterloo comes in with a large and artistically arranged display. products. The arrangement of articles is very good. A very extensive and elaborate display of vine products is the most prominent in the booth. There are pumpkins, squashes, gourds and citrons of every variety, size the post of honor, with portly dimensions, its weight being 160 pounds. Ingalls Announces His Confidence in Interstate Commerce Commission.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 .- The industrial ommission today heard the testimony o President M. E. Ingalls of the Big Four and the Chesapeake & Ohlo Railread companies, on the transportation subject, and of William T. Graham of Chicago, vice president of the American Tin Plate company and director of the Federal Steel company and the Steel Hoop company, as a part of he inquiry concerning trusts.

Mr. Ingalls announced his confidence in the Interstate Commerce commission as useful to the railroads. He said he was willing to trust the commission to a large extent in the regulation of rates, and would be willing that its decisions should regulate unpassed upon by a United States court He wanted the government to aid the railthe finest and most extensive displays of that this power should go with the power to regulate the roads. He said there was brought together in the state. It goes far less discrimination on the part of roads ahead of any state fair that was ever held now than during dull times, but he feared and will more than compare with the show- that with a change for the worse in the foreign conditions there would be a return to the old system of discriminations to get freight business.

population of the country is directly dependent for a livelihood upon the railroads he thought the commission should give the question of protecting the roads against one another in the matter of rates a great deal of attention. He wanted the anti-pooling feature of the interstate commerce law abolished and would go farther and ask for a law enabling the railroads to make rate agreements, their maintenance to be controlled by the courts Mr. Ingalls also advocated the enforced publication of all freight rates, saying that he would be willing also to submit to the inspection of the books of the railroad companies as the books at national banks are now inspected. He thought the criminal feature of the laws had been abolished. He also favored the abolition of the pass ystem and the ticket brokerage system, With the proper laws for the regulation of sitting in his chair at 3.45 p, m. today. He ates so as to insure steady incomes to the roads, Mr. Ingalls said, he would favor a system of profits sharing. He thought such a system would insure better service by employes and be more equitable, but felt that it would not be satisfactory in the absence of a system guaranteeing stability. Mr. Graham, the second witness of the day, said that the capital stock of the American Tin Plate company was $50,000,000, of which amount $18,000,000 was preferred stock and the remainder common. There were about forty old companies in the com bination. When he went into the consolidated company he was told that he could have only a certain amount of stock, and he was given $100 worth of each kind of he was given $100 worth of each kind of stock for each $100 of the cash valuation of his old plant. Since the consolidation had been effected prices had advanced from $2.75 to $4.65 per box, but this advance did not more than cover the advance in the prices of steel, pig tin and other ingredients and the price of labor. Indeed, the profits were not so large as formerly. He said that there was no restriction in contracts with buyers requiring them to buy from the American company only. No preferences were given to one jobber over another, and no sales were made to retailers.
