Five May Monopoliss the Attention Usually Paid to a Dozen.

LOT OF THE SOCIAL BUD A TRYING ONE

Critical Scrutiny of Rivals and of the Leaders of Society a Galling Fire-Affairs of the Past Week in Their Honor.

Instead of the dozen or more American beauties who lend their fragrance and beauty to the social realm only five will grace the kingdom this season, though they are of sufficient charm to leave nothing wanting. With all the gallant young beaux of which Omaha can boast to be divided among so few these ladies will be the proud possessors of numbers of strings to their over white silk and carried red roses. bows and will certainly have no cause for ennul or for shedding tears over wasting their sweetness on the desert air. The entree of a society bud into the social life is really an ordeal through which she must pass triumphantly and with flying colors if she is ambitious for social honors-and who does not long for that power, that personal magnetism that makes one a factor, a leading light in whatever walk of life she is? But it is an ordeal, for the bud must be most groon!. gracious, most unaffected and unconscious of the many critical eyes or admiring glances, and say the most appropriate bon mots with a composure that would do credit to her blase sister of two seasons. This charming bud has been most guarded by her society mother from having even a surreptitious glimpse of the giddy whirl, and yet must be in all readiness to put into practice her theoretical lessons of some most select school. The teas or receptions are even more of an ordeal than the dances, for the leaders of the "400," the ultra-fashionable ladies, know that often the success of their entertainments depends upon their bevy of beautiful girls assisting, and will consequently consider carefully the charms of the bud, her dainty gown and the other accessories so essential to perfect appearance. There is sufficient variety in the character and appearance of the debutantes of this season to add spice and zest. There is one who is tall and dark and queenly, a veritable ruler wherever she appears. Another captivates by her pretty childlike simplicity and gentle ways. A third is truly a Gibson girl, with a Gibsonesque pose an artist might envy. A fourth is a jolly rollicking girl, whose merry peals of laughter win her hosts of admirers, and the fifth is the versatile girl whose popularity is already assured.

Miss Edith Smith is one of Omaha's charming debutantes who will make her entree into the social world November 15 at a reception given by her mother, Mrs. A. B. Smith, and at a dancing party the evening following. Miss Smith will be a decided acquisition not only on account of a natural and unusual attractiveness but also for her musical accomplishments. She is a pupil of the well known teacher, Foley of Cincinnati, and is the possessor of a rich, sympathetic mezzo of considerable range and power. It is hoped that her voice may be frequently heard during the coming season.

Barker-Peck.

At high noon Tuesday, October 31, the wedding of Miss Bessle Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Porter Peck, and Mr. Joseph Barker was solemnized at Trinity cathedral. The simplicity of the perfect appointments enhanced the beauty and sacredness of the occasion. The chancel was adorned with white chrysanthemums and tall palms. Miss Helen Peck acted as maid patrick. They were attired in handsome
