PENSION LEGISLATION IN HOUSE

Curtis of Kansas Criticises Rulings of Commissioner Evans.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 .- The pension appropriation bill engaged the attention of the house today. Before it was called up a bill was passed to extend the time for the completion of a bridge across the Missouri river at St. Charles, Mo. Barney of Wisconsin, who was in charge of the pension bill, made a general statement of its contents. He said the commissioner of pensions estimated that the amount of the pensions during the coming year would largely decrease, but that owing to the influx of claims on account of the Spanish war he did not deem it wise to reduce the general appropriation this year There were 25,000 Spanish war claims pend-The commissioner thought $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 would cover these claims.

Curtis of Kansas criticised some of the rulings of the commissioner of pensions. He said he did not believe the president approved all that Commissioner Evans had Grosvenor said he knew Evans to be private soldier during the war.

Curtis of Kansas ascalled some of the rulings of the commissioner of pensions, tracing their origin to the "startling, false and fictitious charge made in 1893 that thousands of fraudulent pensioners were on the rolls." 'If the present commissioner is not conducting the office properly is not the remedy in the hands of the administration?" asked Bartlett of Georgia,

"I don't believe the president enderses the acts of the commissioner." replied Curtis. "I don't believe he knows what is going

"They say he was," replied Curtis, "I don't believe he ever carried a musket." Here Grosvenor of Ohio intervened to say that Commissioner Evans was a private soldier in a Wi consin regiment and later joined the Army of the Cumberland. Before the close of the war he was made a clerk in the quartermaster's office at Chattanooga.

Contradicts Lentz Regarding Language Used by Him in Conversation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 .- The investigation as to the alleged polygamous status of certain federal appointees in Utah was resumed today by the house committee on postoffices and post roads. In view of statements made at the last session by Mr. Lentz of Ohio, author of the resolutions of inrestigation, the committee had requested "A man called me a bad name," he said, Postmaster General Emory Smith, J. Addison Porter, secretary to the president, and Representative Grosvenor to be present. Relating the circumstances connected with Before the committee met the members discussed informally the right and propriety O of asking the president's secretary to submit to interrogation, Chairman Loud maintaining that such a course would in effect mount to the summoning of the president and an inquiry into executive affairs.

Mr. Grosvenor made a flat denial of the statement made by Mr. Lentz as to the words | 3 we have not let the grass grow under our fect" in reference to the charges. The conversation was informal. Mr. Grosvenor said, and he would as soon have expected that a o private conversation with a member of his family would be brought before the com- o mittee as to have this talk brought here. Mr. Gresvenor sald his statement to Mr. Lentz | was in substance that the investigation would fail, there was nothing in the charges O and that he had taken steps to learn the facts at the time of denying them on the floor of the house. His denial was based on his knowledge of the character of the president. He said he had also said to Mr. Lentz that a search would show that there was no scrap of evidence to sustain the charges. Subsequently, during a call at the White House on another matter, Mr. Grosvenor said the president remarked to those present that he had never had a suspicion that he was appointing any one guilty of polygamy, as he had never heard of the charge until it was made in the house. To many questions Mr. Grosvenor emphasized his awceping deplat of the language and inferences attributed to him by Mr. Lentz as to the disposal of papers.
