Secretary Wilson Says New Colonies Mean Greater Market for Business

IN ATTENDANCE AT LINCOLN GATHERING. Cabinet Member Among the Advance Guard at the National Creamery Buttermakers' Convention—Nebraska as a Dairy State.

LINCOLN, Feb. 18.—(Special.)—The advance guard of the National Creamery Buttermakers' association, which will begin its annual meeting in this city next Tuesday afternoon, began to arrive today and by noon every hotel in the city was crowded.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson arrived last night and will remain until the close of the convention. Mr. Wilson has taken a deep interest in the dairy interests of the United States and his visit to Lincoln is made with the intention of assuring the buttermakers that the government department of agriculture is anxious to assist them in building up the dairy industry.

Ever since the meeting at Owatonna, Minn., in February, 1897, the conventions of the association have attracted the greatest interest from all parts of the country, and have drawn thousands of representatives of creameries, both owners and operators; manufacturers and supplies, institutions devoted to instruction in dairy science, transportation lines and butter merchants.

At the meeting at Owatonna, at Sioux Falls last year and who was again called upon to supply the material for the year which will end with the meeting in this city. During the year ending with the convention at Topeka in 1898 J. E. Nisley of Topeka was secretary.

The great attendance attracted from the creamery owners and operators has induced manufacturers of creamery machinery and supplies to make unusually full exhibits of their wares and it has been possible for creamery operators to become acquainted with almost every form of appliance used in the business.

The convention will also serve to advertise the natural advantages of Nebraska for the production of dairy products. The development of the dairy industry, concerning Nebraska as a dairy state, S. C. Bassett, secretary of the Nebraska State Dairymen's association, says:

"The state of Nebraska comprises 49,187,500 acres of land, of which 12,000,000 acres are in its natural state, covered with a growth of native grasses, palatable and exceedingly nutritious to all kinds of live stock, not only in the production of flesh, but also that of milk and butter."

On account of the climatic conditions the western portion of the state is better adapted to live stock raising and crop production, and for this reason it has been thought that dairying could not prove profitable in this section of the state.
